Samuel Wilson	Niel M'Grachy	Elisha Fowler
		Adjutant, T. York

[Not having had it in our power to obtain regular returns of the Militia, we are apprehensive there may be a few incorrections in the foregoing Lists.—We have also been obliged to omit altogether the Lists of Militia Officers for the other parts of the province.—This inconvenience may be avoided in future, by the Commanding Officers of the respective Regiments favouring us in season with correct returns.]

SENTIMENTAL MEDLEY.

[Extracted from celebrated Authors.]

ABSTINENCE.

TO fet the mind above the appetites, is the end of Abstinence ; which one of the fathers observes to be, not a virtue, but the ground-work of a virtue. By forbearing to do what may innocently be done, we may add hourly new vigour to resolution, and secure the power of resistance when pleasure or interest shall lend their charms to guilt.

ACTIONS.

THINGS may be seen differently, and differently shewn ; but Actions are visible, though motives are secret.

ADVERSITY.

WE are taught in scripture, that the Almighty chastens whom he loves ; and scourges the men whom he receiveth to himself. Adversity is a school, in which both private persons and public societies have learned the most heroic virtues.

THE greatest object in the universe, says a certain philosopher, is a good man struggling with Adversity ; yet there is still a greater, which is, the good man that comes to relieve it.

AMBITION.

AMBITION is as restless as fire, which still consumes whatever comes in its way without determining where to stop.

— Ambition, scornful of restraint,

Even from the birth, affects supreme command,

Swells in the breast, and with restless force

O'erbears each gentler motion of the mind ;

As when a deluge overspreads the plains,

The wand'ring rivulets and silver lakes

Mix undistinguish'd in the general roar.
