Everyone knows what a difference is made in the family life by the screened porch, but comparatively few of un have become equally conscious of the pleasure to be gotten by enclosing the screened porch in glass for the winter.

First, there arises the thought of cost. It is an expensive luxury but well worth the amount put into it. well worth the amount put into it.
As to heating the enclosed porch, the best way is to use the same heat used all over the house. If you have a hot

The most charming way to heat an enclosed porch is with an open fire. If a chimney runs up in the wall against which the porch is paced, it is not very difficult or very expensive to cut into it and have a orick or stone mantle built over the fire place. The most expensive part of this way of most expensive part of the main-heating an enclosed porch is the main-tenance of the fire. In most places wood is far from cheap, and the fire sed porch is the mainrequires constant attention to keep it going. If none of these methods of heating can be managed, an ordinary coal oil stove is almost as effective very cheap and very caeap.

The chairs and table on an enclosed porch should be covered with bright, cheerful cretonne. There should be a good reading lamp on the table in case the porch is used for an evening sitting room

A swinging canvas couch with some comfortable, soft sofa cushions in it and a warm, bright blanket at one end is a great addition.

FLOWERS AN IMPORTANT FEATURE There should always be flowers grow ing on an enclosed porch. It should have a little of the appearance of a conservatory where people as well as flowers are allowed to flourish in warmth and sunshine even when it is bitterly cold outside. Ivy grows well on such a perch. It will climb up on such a porch. It will climb up the posts and can be trained to me between so that it gives the effect of arches. Geraniums are good growers on an enclosed porch. They are hardy and willing and can stand an extraordinary amount of cold.

A bird seems naturally to be part of an enclosed porch, a canary or a parrot, and there is on the market now the loveliest bird cage made of wicker with a little pointed roof. This COMPRISON CONTRACTOR
