Ireland.

The London Law Times, in referring to the case of Mr. P. J. Sheridan, says: "The utmost charge that can be brought against Sheridan is conspiracy to murder, and his offence therefore is not within the strict terms of the treaty; but the United States has the discretionary power in the matter."

A man named John Walsh has been arrested at Havre on suspicion of complicity in the Phoenix Park assassinations. He is held by the French authorities pending the arrival of papers from England. It was about to start for America when arrested. Important papers were seized at his lodgings at Rochdale, England.

Meetings have been held in Paris to protest against the arrest and detention of Messrs. Byrne and Walsh at the request of the British Government. It is now understood that the charge against Mr. Byrne of complicity in the Park affair has been withdrawn, and a new charge of complicity in the alleged attempts on the lives of Juror Field and Judge Lawson substituted.

Judge Lawson, in opening the Dundalk assizes on Tuesday, said the revelations made at Dublin had given him the liveliest satisfaction. It is understood that Juror Field has received a gratuity of £10,000 as compensation for his injuries.

The Dublin Council have expelled James Carey, the informer, from membership, and have declared the seat vacant.

It is said that Mr. A. M. Sullivan has declined to act as counsel for the men charged with the Phoenix Park assassinations.

At a meeting of the Local Board of St. Andrew, county Mayo, it was reported that great distress prevailed in the district. Over thirty persons are in the workhouse suffering from famine fever. There are seven hundred names on the list of persons needing relief. The distress has not been so great since the year 1847. People who refuse to enter the workhouse are lying from want of food outside.

John McPhillip, editor of the Tuam News, while undergoing imprisonment in Mullingar Jail, was elected to the office of Town Commissioner by the electors of Tuam, as a protest against his unjust imprisonment by the Coercion Government.

A death from starvation took place in Clonsilla Workhouse on the 21st ult., the victim being a woman named Keogh. She was the wife of a laborer out of employment, and just before her removal to the workhouse she had entered her humble dwelling, where, on a pallet, without food or raiment, she gave birth to a child.

France. The Herald's Paris special says the workmen constituted an infatuated part of the Socialist demonstration Friday. The whole affair was planned by Reactionists and Anarchists, and instead of breaking the Government's strength, the display will increase its strength.

Paris, March 11.—Several thousand persons gathered to-day to take part in the advertised demonstration of the Socialists, but they were dispersed by the police and a troop of cavalry without any serious disturbance taking place. A number of arrests were made.

Paris, March 10.—In Esplanade des Invalides yesterday, Louise Michel climbed up the balustrade of a hill poster and harangued the crowd. Among those arrested was M. D. Keratry, formerly prefect of police. The mob which broke the windows, etc., was headed by Louise Michel bearing a black flag. The cavalry dispersed the crowd, and wounded a number of persons. But little importance was attached by the public generally to the outbreak. The firmness of the Government is generally commended.

C. M. B. A. NOTES.

The Recording Secretary of Branch No. 9, Kingston, informs us "that the circulation of our official C. M. B. A. organ the Catholic Record, is rapidly increasing in Kingston, and the members of Branch 9 notice a corresponding increase in the number of applications for membership in their Branch."

We have no better means of making our association known, than through the Record, and our members desirous of increasing our Branches and membership, should use their influence in circulating and enlarging the subscription list of our official organ.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION. We find in the Michigan Catholic an account of a recent decision in the case of the Supreme Council vs. the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association vs. Firman. The opinion was given by Justice Cooley, the other Justices concurring. We condense the opinion: On the 25th day of July, 1880, the day before his marriage, Michael Firman, of Detroit, made a will. He gave to his wife one-half of his property, of all kinds, real and personal, that he may die possessed of, and the other one-half to his sister, Bridget, in trust of his father's family. The concluding clause of the will is as follows: "For the convenience of my executor I say that all evidence of my estate, real and personal, is found in my desk and tin box, deeds, mortgages and notes, and one-half interest in the firm of Hawley & Firman, and a life insurance policy of $2,000 in the C. M. B. A."

These letters indicate the Catholic mutual benefit association, and the question of the right to the moneys mentioned in this policy is all that is involved in this suit. In the superior court one-half was awarded to the plaintiff and the other half to the defendant.

The facts occurring subsequent to Mr. Firman's marriage and which may have a bearing are the following: Mr. Firman died August 22, 1881. Special administration was granted upon his estate September 5, 1881. About September 25, 1881, two posthumous children were born to him, both of whom died a few hours after their birth. October 4, 1881, the will was duly probated in the probate court for the county of Wayne. William Aikman, Jr., who was named executor in the will renounced the trust, and on November 1881, the widow was appointed administratrix cum testamento annexed and received letters accordingly. A controversy then arising respecting the right to the insurance moneys, the benefit association filed a bill of interpleader, and upon that bill a decree for interpleading was duly made. The present appeal is from the decree in the interpleader suit. The benefit association is a New York corporation and by the provisions of the act under which it is incorporated the beneficiary fund or insurance money is to be paid over to whomsoever the party insured should in his lifetime appoint, and the same is to be "excepted from execution" and not "liable to be seized, taken, appropriated by any legal or equitable process to pay any debt" of the party insured. The fund is evidently intended to be a provision for the family, and not to become a part of the general estate.

By statute it is provided that "When any child shall be born after the making of his father's will and no provision shall be made therein for him, such child shall have the same share in the estate of the testator as if he had died intestate, and the share of such child shall be assigned to him as provided by law in case of intestate estates unless it shall be apparent from the will that it was the intention of the testator that no provision should be made for such child." Another section provides that "Posthumous children are considered as living at the death of their parents."

If the section first above recited is applicable to the case of these posthumous children, then at their birth each became entitled to one-third of this estate, leaving but one-third to pass under the will to the widow and sister. And whatever vested in them, passed under the statute when they died to the mother. The question then is whether, being posthumous children, they took at the death of their father, or whether there is no good reason why it should not embrace them as well as those born in the lifetime of the father. A sufficient reason for not specifically mentioning posthumous children in the statute of wills, appears in the other section recited above which is general in its application, and therefore dispenses with any necessity for the repetition of its provisions in other parts of the statutes.

It follows that Mrs. Firman is entitled to two-thirds of the fund in the right of her children and to one-half the remainder under the will.

Decree must be entered accordingly, with costs of both courts.

THE POPE AND THE LENTEN PREACHERS.

Special Correspondence of the Pilot. On Tuesday, Feb. 6th, the Holy Father granted audience to the preachers appointed to deliver the Lenten sermons, and addressed them in the following discourse:

"It is not without a providential disposition that, in the Church of Jesus Christ, there has been instituted the Lenten penance, which removes man from terrestrial ties and preoccupations, recalls him to the spirit of Christian mortification, raises him to heavenly things and renders him worthy of participating largely in the saving fruits of the Redemption. And, on account of that, the Church, with good reason, repeats in the words of the Apostle, that there is the propitious time, and these are the days of salvation in a more especial manner."

"The pastors of souls and the sacred orators profit in a special manner by this solicitude for the Lenten season, and should, by their words, by their example, by their zeal, cause this time of Lent to be abundantly propitious and salutary for the Romans. The Romans should surpass all others of the faithful in the accomplishment of religious duties and in the works of a truly Christian life. We know well that our people of Rome are especially to-day the aim of the Lenten season, and we know also, that in order to corrupt them, the means of seduction and error are multiplied. We know that numerous and serious obstacles which render more thorny and difficult the exercise of the sacred ministry and your labors less fruitful. But, far from diminishing the fervor of your zeal, they should, on the contrary, increase it still more, for from being weakened, your energy should become strengthened."

"And since the words and the works of the sacred ministers, as the teaching of faith and also of exercises, have likewise more virtue when they are inspired and vivified by the spirit of Jesus Christ, this should be your constant solicitude, to show that the spirit of Jesus Christ lives in the perfect prototype of the pastors of souls. Show it, your duty by the fervor of your piety, by the purity of your morals, by the severe discipline of your life, by the exercise of sacerdotal duty, by sacrifice, disinterestedness, charity, all virtues of which Jesus Christ has left us such luminous examples. The intelligence and the heart being filled with this spirit, employ yourselves with a new ardor in cultivating this mystic and chosen vineyard."

"You, dearly beloved parish priests, pour forth now more than ever all the resources of your pastoral zeal, your patient, charitable, and enlightened zeal. Have above all, primarily at heart, the religious instruction of the young and the teaching of the catechism, for they are inspired and vivified by the spirit of Jesus Christ, it is in our days, because of the indolence or the wickedness of many parents which has reached such a point that, not only do they leave their children in the most complete ignorance of every religious and moral principle, but that they also let them grow up in malice the most shameful and precocious, even permitting them with impunity, from the tender age, to utter the most horrible blasphemies which are terrible to hear. Hold equally dear the prosperity and development of the Catholic associations which are instituted in the most of your parishes. "Banish from these associations human respect, that great enemy of good, so that all the members composing them may make free and open profession of their faith in the midst of the world this most noble profession by virtuous and holy work."

"But to the salutary action of the parish priests, your sacred oratory should also be united. Thanks to the virtue and efficacy of the divine word, you will move the people, you will excite to penitence, and by the light of eternal truths you will lead them to God. Defute valiantly the errors which are spread abroad to-day with full hands in hatred of religion, and which propagated with unworthy artifices, cause an immense ruin to souls. Make the Church known and loved; inflame the faithful with love for its holy and spotless law, and let them appreciate in a proper way the inestimable benefits which it contains and with which they should be enriched.

"Your efforts thus united, O parish priests and sacred orators, and working together, you will gather abundant fruits from your labors, and will have deserved well of religion and of the Roman people. May the Lord assist you, bestow upon you the abundant help of His grace, and may Our Apostolic Benediction be the doing of it, which We give to you all with paternal affection."
