

"I Leave You to Your Fate," Says Bishop of Cork to the Sinn Feiners

When the Cork Rebel Leaders in Their Barracks Refused to Lay Down Their Arms—Thrilling Heroism of a Sixteen Year Irish Girl in Rescuing Wounded Soldiers in Face of Rain of Shot.

LONDON, May 4.—The following description of the revolt in Dublin was given by an eye-witness, who reached England from Dublin last week.

"The first incident of the outbreak was a sudden firing of musketry in St. Stephen's Green, about midday, Monday, which startled the populace. The streets speedily filled with people, rushing out to see what happened.

"Soon more shots were heard, on Sackville Street, soldiers and members of the Royal Irish Constabulary were being fired at from windows of houses. Much glass was being broken by the shots.

"At 12.30 o'clock the Sinn Fein flag was run up on the post office, rebels inside the building took possession of it, and allowed their comrades to march in. There was no military or civil guard to overcome them. Most of the employees of the post office were turned out of the building, girls as well as men, at the point of the bayonet. In some cases muzzles of revolvers were held at their heads.

"Two mounted constables were shot dead. Sackville Street became possession of a public houses near Postobello Barracks, and constantly fired from it. This stronghold, afterwards was captured by the military with the aid of a machine gun.

"Throughout Monday afternoon and night, firing was heard in different parts of the city. In the outskirts, however, there was no trouble whatever.

"Simultaneously with the seizure of the Post Office, the rebels also rushed several other public buildings, including the college of Surgeons, the College of Science, and the railway stations at Westland Row and Broadstone Streets.

"An attempt was made on Dublin Castle, but the guards defeated the mob after considerable fighting.

"Early Tuesday morning troops began to arrive and a concerted movement was begun to eject the rebels from the positions they had taken.

"The plan of the authorities was obviously to surround them, and with this aim, troops were hurried to strategic points.

"The situation was taken more strongly in hand by the military early on Wednesday.

"Although there were still some parts of the city in possession of the rebels when I left Dublin at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, there was no fear of a further outbreak.

"When the news of the Dublin rising trickled through here on Monday, said a leader of the Sinn Feiners in Cork "we all retired to our armored barracks, loaded our rifles, polished bayonets, set in stores of provisions and prepared for anything.

"The Bishop of Cork and the Lord Mayor came to the barracks at midnight, and demanded admission, which was granted, after considerable parley. They implored us to lay down our arms, and not to resort to physical force. We refused absolutely.

"Sorrowfully and with bowed heads, the Bishop said:
"Then I leave you to your fate.
"We told him we did not fear our fate, whereupon he departed."
"The Northern Whig newspaper of Belfast, gives an interesting account of the inception of the movement. It says the Sinn Feiner's arrangements for Easter manoeuvres throughout Ireland, were suddenly cancelled Saturday but no reason was given for the cancellation. The newspaper adds that it was believed the authorities were about to put a stop to the activities of the volunteers.
Although this issue of the Belfast newspapers was printed before the Dublin rebellion became known it seems to shed much light on matters which led to the disturbances. The article shows that the Sinn Feiners for several days previously had been suspicious of the government plans against them, and the climax appears to have been reached Saturday when the government police raided the residence of a man named O'Neil.

TOO SOON!

It is much too soon to put away your rubbers for another year. We will have wet, slushy streets for some weeks yet. It is unwise to wear broken rubbers at this season, first because of the ever present danger of wet feet, and second, because mud will soon work its way through your rubbers and ruin your boots. If your rubbers are broken or likely to break soon, it would be well for you to buy today a pair of BEAR BRAND Rubber Shoes. You will know them, because the "BEAR" is stamped on the shank, and because the lining is purple. Distinctive in every way. Bear Brand Shoes are health preservers and money savers.

No Opinion.
Crown Attorney (to prospective juror)—Have you formed any opinion of this case?
Mr. Henpeck—No, sir; I don't think my wife's been reading anything about it yet.
SHE NOTICED IT.
"Look here, said the husband "You mustn't complain that way. Remember, at least, that I have to foot all the bills."
"Yes, you foot them," retorted his wife. "You kick at every single one of them."
Profane Willie—"Mamma, when I die I don't want to go to heaven."
Willie's Mama—"Why not, Willie?"
Profane Willie—"There, won't be a damned soul there."
