

At The Foot of The Cross

Our Lady as she stood beneath the Cross in anguish keen. Ah, who so cold but what that picture stirs!

Dante Moulder Of Italy

Ravenna, once the capital of Byzantine exarchs and the mistress of the sea, had been for centuries shorn of her glory.

Unheading of their whispering the Florentine, went his way. What meant earth to him any more?

The music of the spheres had entranced him with solemn symphonies. Before his eyes had flashed the splendors of that fabled Mystic Rose whose petals were the Saints, fadless blooms ever stirred to life and beauty by the love of the First Moved and the breath of God.

And Beatrice, the child and the woman, spotless as the lilies that lifted their silver chalices by Arno stream, Beatrice, symbol and reflection of the Love of God, had guided him to the throne of the Triune Majesty.

Four years only did Ravenna hold the exile. On the feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross, September 14, 1321, he passed away.

"Ungrateful Florence!" Byron exclaims: Dante sleeps afar Like Scipio buried by the uprading shore;

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is the healthy action of these organs.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Purges kidney and liver troubles, relieves the back, and builds up the whole system.

They factions, in their worse than civil war

Proscribed the bard whose name for evermore

Thy children's children would us vain adore

With the remorse of ages.

"Happier Ravenna," he continues,

On thy hoary shore

Fortress of falling empire, honored sleeps

The immortal exile.

But Florence, the city Dante loved and of which he is the greatest son, has long made up for its unmotherly neglect.

To Ravenna the whole world now makes pilgrimage to pause before the tomb of the poet who wrote the Bible of Italy, created with one mighty fiat a masterpiece, a literature and a language, celebrated with a new Song of Songs, and a sweetest epithalamium, the mystic bridal of poesy and theology.

Had the Florentine seer lived under the Old Law, Jehovah would have lifted him to princely fellowship with Isaiah and Ezekiel.

If John the Beloved had not chronicled the terrors of Judgment Day and the battle of Michael's hosts against the dragon of the Apocalypse, Dante Alighieri, within her walls.

As he walked her streets or lingered near the mournful marshes, where Roman navies once rode in stately squadrons, the citizens knew that the eagle-eyed stranger was thinking neither of Roman empresses like Galla Placidia, nor Gothic kings like Theodoric, nor Lombard princes like Aistolph who once ruled the destinies of the former queen of the Adriatic.

The followers of Ravenna's lord, Guido da Polenta, the exile's friend, as well as the solemn burghers that thronged the porticoes of San Vitale, and the women that gossiped near the old Roman wharves, nodded to each other and whispered to their raven-haired children as they saw him glide by like a ghost from his own "Purgatory": "Look! There passes the man who has gone down living into hell! He has seen purgatory's fires, where departed souls are cleansed of their sins! He has been admitted by Blessed Peter into the circles of the Elect and beheld the Face of God!"

As Aeschylus fought the "long-haired Mede" with the Minutemen of Greece at Marathon, so Dante fought for his beloved Florence in the cavalry of her sturdy Guelph democracy, when she defeated the Tuscan Ghibellines at Campaldino (June 2, 1289).

Born in Florence in 1265, he was then only in his twenty-fifth year. He was only fifty-six years old when the Brethren of the Poor Man of Assisi laid him to rest in his Franciscan tertiary's habit in the city of exile.

But what a varied life! What external agitation, what interior struggle! What heights of spiritual exaltation! What glooms of despondency, of humbled patriotism, or thwarted civic ideals! In defeat, he hears the songs of seraphs and beholds the face of Beatrice, his Guardian Angel,

5 Children Had Dysentery.

Mrs. D. Mitchell, 19 Kingsley Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "It is with great pleasure that I recommend Dr. Fowler's Ext-Of Wild Strawberry for Dysentery. It is really wonderful how quickly it acts. My five children had dysentery last summer, and we tried everything we could think of until a friend advised us to use 'Dr. Fowler's.' A few doses soon gave them relief. Now we always keep a bottle of it in the house."

before the throne of God. Victorious he catches the echoes of the prison-house over whose portals is fire-carven the sentence of everlasting doom.

"Abandon all hope, ye who enter here." With pride and sorrow he could write his own epitaph over his tomb in Ravenna: "I have among another world and the rights of kings; the dread waters of the Phleggeon, the scoured lakes and fens, My nobler self, brief sojourner on earth, has passed to better worlds, and returned to its Author amid the stars. Yet here I, Dante, am locked in this grave, an exile from my native land, Florence, a heartless mother, gave me birth. Brief, comprehensive, pathetic epitaph!

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS.

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said, just to humor her. 'Well, in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so.' (Signed) FRANK E. JONES, Montreal.

"Dinah, did you wash the fish before you baked it?" "Law ma'am, what's de use ob washing 'er fish what's lived all his life in water?"

W. H. O. Wilkinson Streetford says: "It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatic Pills. Price 35 cents a box.

Smith—I see them fellows took a drop.

Jones—Took a drop? I should say they took the whole bottle.

HEART WAS SO BAD COULDN'T DO HOUSEWORK.

When the heart becomes weak and the nerves unstrung, it is impossible for a woman to look after her household or social duties. The least little exertion or excitement leaves her in an exhausted condition and not fit to do anything. Women would be wise, if on the first sign of any weakness of the heart and nerves, they would take a course of

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Daniel Besanson, Loganville, N.S., writes: "As I was troubled with a weak heart for nearly two years I am writing to tell you what your great remedy, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, has done for me. My heart was so bad at night I could not sleep. I would take soothing spells, and was so weak I could not do my household work. I tried two doctors, but got no results. A friend advised me to try your pills. I used six boxes and am completely relieved. I think they are the best remedy for heart trouble there is.
