Passed Body.

From the officers of the S. S. Pompano we learn that on Tuesday when the ship was about seven hundred miles to the westward of Race, they saw from the deck the body of a man lying motionless. Our informants told us that the man was dressed like a sailor. They do not think he is a victim of the flu, but that he was a member of a crew of some ill-fated vessel that with disaster.

AME FROM BOTWOOD.—The S. S. Botwood, Capt. Couch, came to port at Botwood to-day, where she had discharging coal. The steamer was getting ready for the Hudson route.

ECOCOTINE is an intensely strong adhesive for joining new or factitious surfaces in wood, leather, iron, lph, paper, pasteboard, cloth, glass, ivory, bone, etc., etc. It is unequalled for office use. Being immensely stronger than gums or pastes, a much smaller quantity is required. It replaces glue and cements in the manufacture of all fancy articles.

General uses of ECOCOTINE are too numerous to mention. It goes a very long way. It requires no heating or other preparation. It keeps for years, and is always liquid and ready. It sticks to all materials.

IX.—GENERAL DEMANDS.

The collective ownership of railroads, telegraphs, telephones, steamship lines and all other means of social transportation and communication and the extension of the public domain to include mines, quarries, oil wells, forests and water power.

The present Pope has said that if only the principles of Christian Justice and Christian Charity had been observed and enforced on the relations between Capital and Labour, abuses never could have arisen. What a condemnation that is of our present day business life.

The former part of the above demands is simply an enlargement of the State control that exists at the present time. That there would have been more satisfaction and better service if the wireless were under State control was amply shown in the Titanic disaster. No one would think for a minute of giving the Postal Service to a private company to manage, and with State ownership of transportation facility a large sum in subsidies would be saved to the service. That a sixty per cent reduction was made in the cost of local telegrams when our Government started their system is typical of the condition that exists in an industry when separated from the "rapacious man" of a dividend seeker. In railroading there are many high-salaried officials who could be done without under collective ownership as their chief efficiency consists in a shrewdness in "getting over" their rivals, and it has been said that if the railways of the United States were managed as a unit instead of by competing companies, such management would effect an economy of Two hundred million dollars a year.

And the evidence of many European countries which have the railways under State control amply justifies the policy by lower rates, and more comfort and consideration of passengers.

The telegraph business is similar. The Western Union was capitalized at One hundred million dollars. It is estimated that the cost of laying the lines actually used was not more than twenty millions; eighty million dollars therefore, have been wasted by the existing system, which encourages private companies to construct lines with the result of compelling other companies to buy them up. Professor Ely says that it cost England nearly as much to make the telegraph part of the Post Office as it did all the other countries of Europe put together, because in these the telegraph has been from the beginning a tain months can be taken—we say that only within certain times can birds be shot—and other limitations have been placed upon man for the good of all. "We would be indignant if we saw a stout fellow thrust him up to a table where some hungry children were being fed and reach his arm over their heads and take their bread from them. But the world is not the least indignant at a man who has stoutness of thought and swiftness of capacity who uses his intellect to take the bread out of the mouths of all the other men in the town who are of the same trade with him; or uses his power to gather some branch of the commerce of the country into one great cobweb, of which he is himself to be the central spider, making every thread vibrate with the points of his claws."

See the injustice of it all; and the awful results of the up to date business maxim: "Buy in the cheapest market and sell in the dearest."

And as I said before, if we limit man's freedom to kill birds and seals, surely, what Christian would not say "yes" to a law that would limit man's inhumanity to man.

Obituary.

The Angel of Death visited the home of Mr. J. Tobin. Mr. Tobin, who had not been well all the winter. The deceased was a devoted member of her church, being one of the first members of the Altar Society. She was a good friend to the poor. She is the last of one of the good old families of the town and passed away fortified by the last rites of her church. She was laid to rest on Wednesday morning after a solemn High Mass chanted by the Rev. Fr. McCarthy for the repose of her soul. Deceased leaves five children to mourn her loss: Thomas in St. John's, Patrick in Halifax, Mary Jane in England, Maggie in Boston, and John in the Old Home, to whom we extend our sympathy.

ANOTHER SPLENDID CURE BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

R. Moulaison, whom two doctors treated, finds relief and permanent cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Surette Island, Yarmouth Co., N.S., May 17. (Special).—Mr. Renie Moulaison, a well known resident here, is telling his neighbours of his cure from a severe attack of Kidney Disease which kept him in a state of pain and suspense for two months and defied the efforts of two doctors who were treating him.

"My trouble started with a cold," Mr. Moulaison says. "My muscles would cramp and I had backache and dizzy spells. My head ached, and I had a tired, nervous feeling while specks of light flashed in front of my eyes."

"I suffered in this way for over two months and was treated by two doctors, but they didn't seem to be able to do much for me. Then I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and they helped me almost at once. Six boxes cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the kidneys. Cured Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. That makes pure blood and good health.
