Their Hereditary Foes

The eyes of the belligerents in the Great War will for the next few months be directed to the Balkans to watch what Roumania, Bulgaria and Greece intend to do in the premises. Outside of the efforts of the Entente Allies to bring them and of the Teutons to keep them out, there are two factors which will govern their course. The first is the adjustment of territory among themselves. After the Balkan war with Turkey, Serbia, Bulgaria and Greece quarreled among themselves about the spoils, and Roumania took a hand in making demands for herself although she was not a member of the Balkan League which had waged war against Turkey, and Bulgaria had to surrender territory to her as well as part of the spoils to Serbia and Greece. This is a sore which has not yet healed and it is on this Germany and Austria are working, and this is the main difficulty which the Entente Allies have to overcome. Roumania has already taken a stand in stopping munition supplies passing from the Huns to the Turks through her territory, and Greece has already by popular vote returned the Liberals to power by a strong majority to Parliament, and Venizelos has resumed the leadership of the Liberal party. The meeting of Parliament has been deferred until the later part of August, when Venizelos will declare the policy of his party and will doubtless obtain the Government. His previous declarations have been in favour of intervention. The other factor which is material is the harvest. The staple industry of these countries is agriculture and horticulture. Roumania is the only country among them which has a large export outside of these, and this consists of petroleum. Roumanian exports are chiefly wheat, barley, maize, petroleum, rock-salt, spirits, hides, wool and cattle. Greece exports currants, figs, olive-oil, wine, cognac, tobacco, hides, etc. Bulgaria exports wheat, live stock, skins, cheese, eggs, timber and tobacco. It is very important to them to gather in their harvests before they call their men to the colors. This was the course pursued in the war against Turkey, and it is most unlikely that any other course would be pursued at this time, should they decide to throw in their lot with the Entente Allies. The dominating influence with them is their hereditary hostility to the Turks. For about five centuries they sustained the horrors and cruelties of the Turks, and their anticipation is so recent even within their present confines, and the call of their Christian brethren in Turkey is so incessant that they will never rest satisfied until the Turk is turned bag and baggage out of Europe. The intensity of this feeling naturally draws them to the Entente, while at the same time it repels them from having anything to do with the Huns who are bolstering up their hereditary enemies.

Amusements.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The high class entertainment which was given at the above popular house of amusement yesterday was hugely enjoyed by most enthusiastic audiences. The three reel feature fully justified all the good things which had been said of it, as it is without any exception the best photo-play of its description ever to have been shown here. The acting of Marc Macdermott and Miriam Nesbitt being beyond reproach. The comedy in which the great John Drew's brother is the comedian made a big hit. It was very funny. Arthur Priestman Cameron sang another new song which was enjoyed immensely. The above with the accompaniment of excellent music and realistic effects most aptly handled by Elsie Tappin and John Cronan, respectively, concluded a most excellent programme with the addition of a good western story, "An Indian's Honour."

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was a good audience at the popular little theatre last night and they were delighted with the show. The splendid three reel film, "The Spy" charmed all; it is certainly one of the best pictures ever shown in St. John's. To-night the two little singers will be heard in new patriotic songs: "The Klitte Leads." Don't miss hearing this, one of the best songs yet. A splendid selection of pictures and song.

GREAT ATTRACTION AT THE NICKEL THEATRE.

It was not surprising that the Nickel Theatre should be crowded yesterday. The fact that the picture of the presentation of the colors at Stobs Camp was shown was sufficient to draw large audiences. Greater interest was centred in this film than any other ever shown at the Nickel. Every one will want to see the boys and many will see the picture as often as they can. The boys look well, was the general opinion. They have become splendid types of soldiers. If you were unable to be present yesterday, go to-day. "The Million Dollar Mystery" is good and so are the other subjects. Do not miss to-day's show.

ANOTHER BIG SALT SHIPMENT ARRIVES.

The s.s. Kellerby reached port this morning from Cadiz bringing four thousand tons of salt consigned to Job Bros. & Co. The passage occupied fourteen days, delay being occasioned by fog. The Kellerby was six days longer than the Naoscope coming from Cadiz. The arrival of this large salt shipment will remove the famine that existed.

86.75 A QTL.—One of the first batches of dry codfish, this season's cure was put off by Mr. George Cook, of the North Battery, who on Tuesday last disposed of sixty-five quintals, which realized $8.75 per cwt. Messrs. Burt and Reid, of the Battery, who have good voyages ashore now, also have shipments of "made" fish ready for market.

Wedding Bells.

GODDEN—SHAMBLER.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the C. of E. Cathedral yesterday morning when Mr. Walter Godden, of the Nova Scotia Steel Co., Sydney, and Miss Ethel Shambler, daughter of Mr. John Bright Shambler, were made man and wife. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. J. Brinton. The bride was tastefully attired and carried a beautiful bouquet. She was given away by her father, and was attended by Miss Emma Godden, sister of the groom, and her sister, Miss Vera Shambler, the groom being supported by Mr. H. Miller, of Knowlton's. After the ceremony the bridal party with the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties lunched at Woods' West End Restaurant, after which Mr. and Mrs. Godden drove to Waterford Bridge and entrained for Seal Cove, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents. The Telegram joins in the felicitations extended and wishes Mr. and Mrs. Godden many years of wedded happiness. The happy couple will reside at Sydney, C.B.

Obituary.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Michael Walsh (Peak House) Salmonier Road, which sad event occurred on last Sunday, 17th inst., after a tedious illness. Mrs. Walsh leaves a sorrowing husband and infant to mourn her early demise. Sportsmen visiting Pinesent's Falls will miss forever the cheerful word and hospitality of the hostess of Peak House. Interment took place on Tuesday, at Salmonier.—R. I. P.

Says Turks Kill German Officers.

British Dardanelles Correspondent Tells of Revenge for Savage Disciplinary Methods.
London, July 9.—The growing discouragement of the Turks, both in the field in the Gallipoli Peninsula and in Constantinople itself, is pictured by the Daily Chronicle correspondent at Mitylene, who sends the following despatch to his paper:

"The recent fighting on the Gallipoli Peninsula has resulted in the capture of a large number of prisoners. I have seen many of them and, though they are not badly clothed and appear to have been fairly well fed, they are all of one mind as to their good fortune in being rescued, as one termed it, from the inferno which their positions on the peninsula have been for some considerable time.

"It is always essential to discount to some extent the statements of Turkish prisoners, as they generally think it necessary to make declarations by which they hope to find favor with their captors; but, allowing for that, there can be no doubt as to the general reliability of what they say. They all agree regarding the flagging spirit of the Turkish Army. They state that the feeling between the Germans and Turks is becoming increasingly bad, and they tell many tales of Germans being shot in the back in return for the frequent emptying of officers' revolvers into wavering or hesitating ranks.

"Men who come from Constantinople give a curious picture of that once busy city. The Galata quays, formerly so densely crowded, are now almost entirely deserted, while the Golden Horn, protected by a boom, is a mass of ships which dare not move. Only at night does an occasional transport or supply ship venture out. The British submarines' work and the Russian blockade have had an extraordinary effect. The city is struck, as it were, with paralysis. There is undoubtedly in the capital a large element favorable to and ready to take part in a revolution to overthrow the military party and its German overlord, while in the province anti-conscription riots have taken place.

"Meanwhile, on the peninsula, trench warfare continues with unabated vigor. The weather is extremely hot, so conditions are trying. The spirit of the Allied forces, however, cannot be too highly praised. Our men are digging and fighting their way toward that important goal, Tree Peak, and the numerous slopes which the Turks have made into an underground fort, something akin to the labyrinth in France. Kithias has for some weeks ceased to be a village at all. In all this destructive war never, perhaps, has a village been so completely battered to bits. The Turks in the neighborhood of the site of the piped-out village tried new strategy. Four lines of their trenches faced on the ground sloping northward, the position held by our troops. In a dashing night attack the Allied forces carried the first two lines. Suddenly, just at dawn, the sides of the captured trenches, skillfully mined, crumbled away, exposing the defenders in front. Our men found themselves in the dim light being raked by machine gun fire from two lines of the enemy's trenches before them. In an instant they were up and at them, and after ten minutes' desperate hand-to-hand fighting the second line trenches remained in our possession."
