Victoria Cross for Unknown American Soldier.

Decoration "For Valour" Goes to Unidentified U. S. Private--Ambassador Harvey Lays Highest American War Honor on British Soldier's Tomb--"No Tampering With Ulster", says Sir James Craig--Bluenose Will be Fishing Cup Challenger.

UNKNOWN WARRIOR V.C.

LONDON, Oct. 17. The British Government decided today to award the Victoria Cross, the highest British honor, to the American unknown warrior.

AN ARMISTICE DAY TRIBUTE.

LONDON, Oct. 17. King George today sent a message of warm appreciation to President Harding on the tribute of the United States to Great Britain's unknown warrior. The message contained the announcement of the decision of the King to confer the Victoria Cross on the United States unknown soldier on Armistice Day.

SLOW PROGRESS.

LONDON, Oct. 17. The Irish Conference had another two hours' session today. Complete silence is maintained as to the nature of the discussion, which is believed to have concerned the Ulster question. The date of the next meeting will be fixed later. There was great activity at Sinn Féin headquarters during the adjournment of the conference, but assurance was given that no unforeseen hitch had occurred. Inquiry at both the Irish Office and Sinn Féin headquarters disclosed that as yet neither side has been able to estimate the prospects of concession by the other. Sinn Féin maintains its full separatist claim, and still makes the unity of Ireland an indispensable condition to membership in the British Commonwealth. Elaborate statistics have been prepared for submission to the conference to prove the injustice of excluding Northeast Ulster. The next step is to be presentation by the Irish delegates of a plan of local autonomy within an Irish state.

CRAIG ULTIMATUM.

BELFAST, Oct. 17. Sir James Craig in answering criticisms of his recent speech by the Irish Bulletin, the Daily Eirean organ, strongly reiterated his speech. He says that when Ulster reluctantly accepted the Government of Ireland Act her people exhausted everything they had to give, consequently nothing was left. "The six counties will hang together," he continues, "and I will never allow any tampering with them. The Irish Bulletin says that the economic life of Northern Ireland is inseparably bound up with Great Britain. No injury will happen our people under an Act which allows them to govern themselves." "My speech was intended to clear the air, peace will come all the sooner by the facts being understood. A good many people still imagine that Ulster is a bargaining factor in the situation. That is untrue. Ulster bargains for nothing except to be left alone to work out her own destiny. This policy I intend to pursue, undaunted by threats or tempting offers of more liberal terms."

When Mr. Jones was saved from the frying pan—

They talk yet of the change that came over Jones. Some said it was psychology. Some said it was a miracle. All said it was a mystery.

When they asked Jones, he said it was liberation from slavery—slavery to the frying pan, and to grease and starch.

Jones used to take his breakfast fried, and followed this with a heavy lunch.

In those days they said at the office: "Old Jones has a secret sorrow and he's sore on the world."

One day Jones started late—no time for the usual breakfast to be cooked.

Jones had a breakfast on Grape-Nuts with good cream. He was delighted with the crispness and rich flavor. Felt satisfied and "fed." Tried it again at lunch. Kept on breakfasting that way—often lunching, too.

Jones began to "perk up," talk up, step up—GET UP. "Let Jones show you how to do this," they began to say at the office.

As to Jones—he said: "That's a great food—GRAPE-NUTS."

There are thousands of Joneses, both kinds—reckless feeders and wise feeders.

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts
—the perfected goodness of whole wheat and malted barley—delicious, nourishing, ready to eat. All grocers.

Ulster can only be won, she can never be coerced."

BLUENOSE AGAIN LEADS.

HALIFAX, Oct. 17. Subject to the approval of the trustees of the Halifax Herald trophy, the Bluenose will be the competitor of the Gloucesterman Elsie in the International Fishermen's races to be sailed off Halifax commencing on Saturday. The Bluenose to-day won the Nova Scotia Fishermen's Race, showing decided superiority in windward work. The Canada threw everything by splitting tacks, standing too far inshore, and losing the wind breeze, finally finishing seventh. The elapsed time of the Bluenose was 4 hours, 20 minutes and 33 seconds over the 40 mile course. The Delaware of Lunenburg finished second in 4 hours, 46 minutes and 55 seconds, with a fourth position of Saturday, takes second money. Other entries finished as follows to-day, Independence, Uda H. Corkum, Alcala, Donald J. Cook, Canada and J. Duffy. Weather conditions to-day were ideal for the race. A fifteen knot northeastern, which freshened at one time to twenty-five knots and was steady at twenty for the greater part of the course, provided a real test of the respective merits of the racing fishermen.

BIG STEEL ORDER.

SYDNEY, Oct. 17. The Dominion Government is ready to order 75,000 tons of steel rails for the Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railways, and the Dominion Steel Corporation is endeavouring to obtain the entire order for their Cape Breton plant, according to a telegram received from Roy Wolvin, President of the Dominion Steel Company, to Mayor Fitzgerald of Sydney, to-night.

THE COMRADESHIP OF ARMS.

LONDON, Oct. 17. Upon a simply inscribed slab in Westminster Abbey, marking the tomb of Great Britain's unknown warrior, Ambassador Harvey today laid the highest decoration in the gift of America reaffirming war comradeship.

PRICE CUTTING.

LONDON, Oct. 17. The Northeast coast steel manufacturers have made a drastic cut of seventy shillings per ton in the price of ship plates, which are now ten guineas per ton, compared with twenty-four pounds, ten shillings, at the beginning of this year. The manufacturers declared that they are not merely sacrificing profits, but are incurring big losses in order to encourage trade. Further evidence of a revival of industry in Great Britain is seen in the resumption of manufacturers by two more iron works in Cleveland District after six months of idleness. More Welsh tinplate mills resumed work to-day, chiefly to fulfill foreign orders.

SERBS ATTACK ALBANIANS.

ROME, Oct. 17. Serbs have again attacked Albanians, according to Giornale D'Italia, capturing the towns of Bunin Glakova and Uraevzerat, along the Drina River.

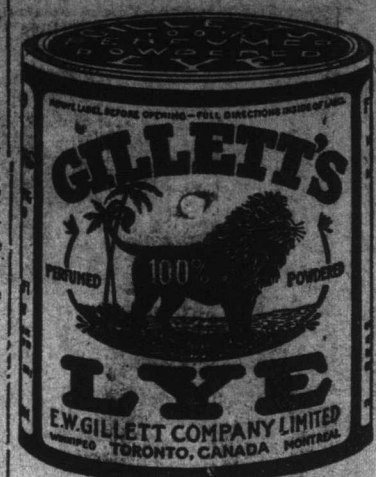

PREPARING FOR THE STRIKE.

MORRISTOWN, N.J., Oct. 17. Wealthy men who operated the millionaires' special during the strike on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railways in 1920, are ready for service if the threatening strike develops.

UKRAINIANS REVOLT.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 17. Ukrainian peasants have revolted against the Russian Soviet Government and one Bolshevik regiment has mutinied, it is reported.

"The Skyline of the World."

AMERICAN FATHER'S INTERESTING LECTURE.

(L. C. M.)

The lecture delivered last night at the College Hall by the Rev. Carl Garland in connection with the Gower Street Church Jubilee was indeed an inspiring message, and one which must have gone home to the hearts of all present. Mr. Garland had much in his favour, and the large audience which greeted him was in itself an inspiration.

The topic of the lecture, as our readers are aware, was that "From Flanders' Fields to the Skyline of the World," which topic at once awakened tender feelings and aroused much keen speculation as to what was meant by the "Skyline of the World."

The chair was occupied by Dr. Robinson, who, on the arrival of His Excellency the Governor, introduced the lecturer of the evening, the latter being attired in the uniform of the American Army, which he wore when in service.

On rising, a hearty ovation was given Mr. Garland, and he at once entered into his subject.

In his opening remarks he referred to his love of country, and to the fluency of his early life amongst his own people, and he very calmly continued until the subject of his lecture was introduced. As he proceeded it was plainly to be seen, that he did not come with a namby-pamby message, but that his lecture was to be full of meaning, and that the principles of Duty and Responsibility were uppermost in every point and peroration.

Flanders' Fields had played an important part in the struggle for right, and the liberties of the world were at stake in the conflict, and the men who laid down their lives and who sleep on Flanders' Fields, had thrown the world a challenge that it "take up the torch and hold it high," and that its light be kept clear and burning, so that there be no uncertain sound, and no mistake as to the future welfare of the sons of men.

A sacred trust had been given, and given at an awful cost, and unless the best be done, Flanders' Fields and those who fell would be in vain. The battle may not yet be won, nor the victory yet gained, because the final result of the war is not yet in sight. It will depend upon the leaders of the present age as to whether the struggles of the yesterday, and the sacrifices of Flanders' Fields make for a world's brotherhood, or permit a greater war than ever before. There was such a thing as a spirit of lawlessness abroad in the land—not alone in foreign lands, but in this land, and the principles which defy law and order, whether they be amongst the people of this country or be found in those who broke the peace of nations, are the same. Lawlessness is lawlessness, and wrong is wrong, and it was to suppress lawlessness, and protect the home and the children and the sanctity of womanhood, and the rights and heritages that had been gained by a thousand years of civilization, that the men of all nationalities joined hands, and said to the German Emperor "Thou Shalt Not!" Some people question why so many nations fought, and why people far distant gave of their sons in the late war, but those nations had a keen sense of right, they knew what Great Britain had done for the world, they knew what the Anglo-Saxon race stood for, and they learned that America had joined hands, and they knew that the principles which had made those two nations the power they were, and are, were worth defending, worth fighting for, and if needs be, worth dying for! Thus, the foreign breeds and foreign nations sent in their men, and amidst the carnage of war, they came forward, and marched on, and were partners in the victory—as far as it is won. This is where the vision of the "Skyline of the World" comes in. What shall this victory mean? The vision of the men who lie in Flanders' Fields say "they will not sleep" if their work and trust are betrayed. What then shall the result be?

The speaker, while expressing a word of warning, as to the possibility of a future war, did not stop there. Nor did he leave his audience in doubt as to his own impression. He was not pessimistic, though he gave a clear and distinct warning, as to the possibility of future war; but his vision was greater than that. By the upholding of right, by the honouring of Law and Order, by the high standards of the Anglo-Saxons people, and by the catching up of the torch, he saw a future, in which the world would be better when peace would reign, and law and order be established. This is the "Skyline of the World," this is the golden age, this is the "better" day. This is all possible if the powers that be are careful, and the rights of the people protected, the principles of justice enforced, and the sacrifices of the thousands that fell be properly borne in mind.

The lecturer spoke with great zeal and passion, and carried conviction in all he said. He, himself, had gone through the war, and had witnessed the agony and the slaughter, he knew whereof he spoke, and the message which he gave last night was one that could only come from a heart that had felt, as well as witnessed the agonies of Flanders' Fields.

It is not possible in a short report to give an idea of the warmth and passion of Mr. Garland's lecture. Summed up, therefore, to say, that he arose to the occasion with great dignity and zeal, and showed himself a true soldier of his adopted country, a worthy son of his respected father, and a loyal son of Terra Nova. He showed himself a world's man, in that he believed the world would yet be better, and was willing to pay the price, even though it be the price of life.

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was moved by the Mayor, and ably seconded by Captain Keen, and heartily accorded by the audience. The chairman thanked Mr. Garland, who stood and listened to the tribute of the audience conveyed to him by the chairman.

It was a touching moment, and seemed to cement the entire lecture into the closing moments of the evening. It was indeed a supreme moment, and was fittingly closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Coal Prices.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—One of the most important items in the cost of living today is coal, and it is evident that the people of Newfoundland are paying much more for this commodity than is necessary, due to the high price charged by the Sydney mines. It is well known that a good grade American soft coal is higher in B.T.U.'s (British Thermal Heat Units) than the Sydney coal.

It is also a fact that this coal can be imported and sold here for about $13.00 per ton and allow an average profit. All that is required is for an enterprising coal merchant to import a cargo, and its value could be soon demonstrated by the sale of the first few half ton lots to householders, and the same satisfaction obtained as it had by the people of Montreal and Toronto, who prefer to use it to the Sydney coal.

The $4.00 per ton difference would mean a saving of $50.00 to $100.00 to the average householder in the city, and is well worth considering. Why should we pay $8.00 to the Sydney mine owners when we can obtain a better grade from the U.S.A. for $2.75 (American price), and what a difference this price would make to the Government institutions?

Yours truly, CONSUMER.

An Appreciation.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—With sincere desire to give credit to whom it belongs, I, for one, beg leave to congratulate the Rev. C. A. Moulton on his able and splendid sermon preached in St. Thomas's Church on Sunday, Oct. 8th, and which was published verbatim in one of our daily papers, and I wish to say in genuine earnestness that such sermons—rich in expression, deep in thought and made in digression of local application—are wanted in all churches; and would I feel, he welcomed by all, any congregations of any creed. One feels after reading Mr. Moulton's sermon, that a note of "conviction" has been sounded on every point that his discourse touches on, and his whole subject has been splendidly and wisely applied to local evils, abuses, and apparent legal neglects. But Mr. Moulton is not only sincere, he is honest (a rare valuable characteristic these days), and in speaking of the Prohibition Law now on the Statute Book he says: "If it is right and practicable, then let us as Christian gentlemen, keep the law; if it is wrong or impracticable, let us repeal it or amend it and at least be self-respecting. As it stands at present, it is one of the greatest menaces existing in our city—it is teaching men to despise and disregard all law. If we may defy this law, why not another? If we can drink, why not rob?—and men are doing that, too. No Government can be admired which will encourage the breaking of a law or which it is the custodian. No end, however plausible, will justify such a means, and the consequences will be upon its own head. A distinguished English statesman of the past generation once said, 'The province of Government is to frame laws which shall make it easy for the people to do good, difficult for the people to do evil.' I leave it to you to decide for yourselves whether succeeding governments either in the framing or the carrying out of the Prohibition Law have been true to the trust imposed upon them by God and their country."

And again in his sermon, the rev. gentleman states this: "It is only the truth to say now that public opinion could not have been behind the Prohibition principle—experience has proved it. No one, officially or unofficially, in power or out of power, would dare, nor could, with impunity, flout the law as has been done. If public opinion were behind it" In a clear and thoughtful way, by a forcible and now self-evident proof Mr. Moulton gets at the whole crux of the matter. It is true, too, as Mr. Moulton might have added, and as we all know, that the whole "Prohibition campaign," the ideals of it, and the winning of the act, was done on a certain misrepresentation, and it is ancient history that the "campaigners" of Prohibition told it from their platforms in the outposts, "that Prohibition was intended to close only the city saloons, but that the outport man could get his liquor at will."

This helped win Prohibition—a poor triumph for its advocates, and a law that owes its solidity to quibbling and "pecksniffian" methods. And the EVILS of Prohibition are to-day many—but this foremost of all. Dope and the making of it has come to stay, for even a going back to the old method of liquor retailing would not be the means of entirely removing the making of moonshine.

Mr. Moulton has sounded a warning note, but he has done more. With the splendid courage of an honest conviction, he has bravely spoken the truth, and his sermon, besides being an epic and a masterpiece, is a study for local thought and improvement. May this commendable and genuine spirit of fearlessness and truth in a good cause, ever mark the future work and sermons of the Rev. Mr. Moulton. His splendid sermon is the greatest "knock" at hypocrisy given for some time, and may he long continue to rap the hypocrites who are spread widecast in church and state, and office. Again hearty congratulations to Mr. Moulton and may he long "go to it."

With thanks for publication, Mr. Editor, I remain, Sincerely yours,

P. J. KINSELLA.

Harbor Grace Notes.

There passed away at her late home, Water Street, on Friday last, Mary French, wife of our respected townsman, Mr. Robert French, sailmaker. Deceased was not of a robust constitution and the death of her only daughter, Lily, a few weeks ago, no doubt, to a large extent helped to shorten the mother's earthly career, as since that time her health has been failing, yet the end was not thought to be so near, and it being so sudden, came as a shock to the family. Besides a husband, there are left to mourn two sons, Alexander, who served with the 5th Royal Highlanders, Montreal, Woodley at home, and one brother, Mr. Wm. Horwood, of St. John's, all of whom have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement. The funeral took place yesterday, Sunday, afternoon, and was very largely attended, the church being practically filled and the service a very beautiful one, Rev. W. H. Browning officiating. Among the number present were the officers, teachers and older scholars of the Methodist Sunday School, which was closed out of respect for Mr. French, their worthy superintendent. All that was mortal of a loving wife and mother was laid to rest in the Methodist cemetery, with the glorious hope of the resurrection to eternal life.

"Forever with the Lord Amen, so let it be! Life from the dead is in that word, 'Thou shalt live.'"

The funeral of the late Mrs. Sarah French took place from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Walters, and was very largely attended, interment was made in the Church of England Cemetery. To the sorrowing relatives and friends our sympathy is extended.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Griffin, etc., who passed away at his home, Lord Hill, on Friday last, after an illness of some months, took place on Sunday afternoon, interment being made in the R. C. Cemetery, a large number following his remains to their last resting place. Deceased, for many years acted as carman here, during which time he made many friends and was greatly liked by all. To his wife, nee Minnie Connors, and other relatives and friends the community offers condolence.

Dr. W. S. Goodwin and assistant Mr. E. Whiteway, who has been away from town for the last six weeks or so, on a business visit to Bonaville, Catalina and other places in that direction, returned home again on Thursday.

The stork arrived to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Webber, of Water Street East, last night, Sunday, and left a baby girl. We tender our congratulations.

Schr. Minnie Maund, Theophilus Hart, master, arrived in port on Friday last from Whoooping Harbor and Englee, via Catalina, where she put in out of the storm on the 11th inst.; she has on board a load of fish, oil, etc., for her owner, Mr. E. Simmons, and same is now being discharged.

Schr. Araminta, went ashore at entrance of harbor, whilst unloading port in heavy gale, Saturday at 1.30; the crew was forced to abandon her, and it was expected that she would be a total loss. Since, weather has moderated, and boats have gone out to the wreck and the work of trying to save the cargo, if possible, is being undertaken this afternoon. She had on board a load of coal for Messrs. R. D. McRae & Sons.

Schr. Vernie May is at present on dock undergoing repairs.

Schr. Gordon W. J. Johnston, master, went on dock on the 14th inst., and came off again the same day.—COR.
