Peace in Sight on 10th Anniversary

To-day marks the end of the first decade since Europe was plunged into that holocaust which will be known down through history as The Great War. The assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife on June 28th, 1914, in Sarajevo was the spark which fired the train, but the explosives to which it led had been accumulated and made ready against "the day" when it was supposed they could be used with overwhelming effect.

"The war, like most great wars," says the Times, "had a material and a moral aspect. Materially the struggle was for the hegemony of Europe; but behind this material object it was a conflict between German Kultur and historic civilization, between the idolatry of force and the faith in moral right from which this civilization springs. Two irreconcilable ideals came face to face. They were two incompatible 'world-views,' as the German Emperor described them—the British view of free, orderly, and peaceful development which he belied and denounced, and the German view of 'militarist' domination and reaction based upon the sword, which he applauded and exalted. Armed conflict between them sooner or later may or may not, have been inevitable. Germany seized upon this crime to precipitate it, in the confidence that she could simply satisfy her immediate ambitions and lay the sure foundations for ambitions yet more grandiose, by a brief spell of 'fresh and joyous war.'"

For years the opposing powers remained at death grips, and man's ingenuity was turned to its full account in devising newer and more devilish instruments for man's destruction. Such was the effect of the weapons used that the methods formerly adopted in warfare had to be abandoned. Exposure on the surface of the ground meant annihilation, and the contestants were forced to burrow their way through the earth or match their skill and courage in the air above.

Matters reached such a pass eventually that it appeared as if the result would be a stalemate, but at last right, backed by a superior morale, were down the endurance of the enemy, and the day at last came when their formidable line of defence wavered, bent, and crumpled up.

Resentful as the Allied forces had reason to feel against the enemy at the wanton destruction of precious lives and property which had not been caused by no fault of theirs, there was no demand for revenge when the enemy were cowed and broken, but the armistice which they begged was granted and scrupulously respected by the victors.

Then followed the Peace of Versailles, and in the fulfillment of their obligations under the treaty, the enemy showed the same disregard for the sacredness of a promise as they had displayed when they invaded Belgium, and in the manner in which they had violated the recognized rules of warfare.

For more than five years the Powers have been occupied in seeking a means of applying the terms of the Treaty and restoring a permanent peace in Europe. Until this morning there was little to indicate that a settlement would ever be reached, and at times it even appeared as if hostilities might be resumed.

The Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia in referring recently to the European situation accurately described it in the following emphatic manner:

"Look at Europe at this moment and what do you see? Is it not worthy of notice that the places where order and adjustment have been most complete are precisely those regions which were recently described as Balkanized Europe? We have solved the most difficult of our intricate problems growing out of the extinction of a great empire and vast changes in the boundaries of two others, but the Western nations which criticised us most severely, Britain and France—so far their great problems of adjustment with Germany remain to be liquidated."

On the anniversary of the outbreak of hostilities the adjustment of the problems referred to appear to have been reached and the basis of the settlement is the work, not of statesmen, but of a number of business men. When the final assent of the various representatives attending the Conference has been given, it will be a momentous occasion and will doubtless be marked by worldwide jubilation.

The Strike Ends

It is gratifying to learn that the strike at Corner Brook has been ended by the action of the greater number of the men themselves. Influenced by a number of extremists, it appears that for the moment they permitted their feelings to overcome their better judgment, but the latter eventually prevailed and work has been resumed.

We feel confident that their behaviour will not pass unrecognized, and that no time will be lost in making a full investigation in order to alleviate the discomforts which may exist, and remove any other grievances which may be shown.

The attitude adopted by certain of the leaders, whoever they are, cannot pass unnoticed. We can ill afford to have our resources jeopardized by a few wild men, and effective measures should be taken to show them that lawlessness will not be tolerated in this country.

Fishing Crews

Doing Well

Capt. Bishop, of Westville, advised Messrs. Bowring Bros. by wire on Saturday that the schooner, Benhur, Capt. Jabez Winsor, had arrived from the Straits with 400 qtls. also schrs. Kansas and D. M. Owens, owned by Noah Bishop. The latter two hailed for 450 and 600 quintals respectively. Kenneth and Isaac Barbour's schooner, Britannia and Elmore had also arrived with 400 and 500 quintals respectively. A wire from James W. D. Daley, St. Joseph's, Salmonier, was received, stating that his vessel had arrived from the Banks with 300 quintals. Prospects were reported good, and the vessel was being got in readiness to return again. Word from Flat Islands says that the schooners Doris J. and Lloyd Elsworth fishing on the Labrador, and owned by Sampson Bros. have done very well. On July 11th, Capt. Harrison reported the schooners for 600 and 300 quintals respectively.

Susu Arrives

S.S. Susu, Capt. Jacob Kean, arrived from the Fogo mail service yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. The ship brought a small freight and the following passengers in saloon: Misses Lane, A. E. Gibbons, Harvey, Templeman, Mrs. S. Wicks, Messrs. Peery, Colish, S. Greenland, J. Bowering, W. Winsor, Joyce, Davison and Rev. Brown. The fishery north is very discouraging. All the traps have been taken in. With the appearance of squid, hook and liners have done fairly well at Joe Batt's Arm, Fogo and the Westward. The average catch is from two to five quintals per day. The weather is fine. An inshore wind is badly needed by the fishermen. The Susu sails again at 2 p.m. to-morrow.

The Trains

The incoming express left Port Blanford 8.30 a.m., and is due at 4 o'clock. Sunday's west bound express arrived Bishop Falls 5.05 a.m. The local Carbonar train arrived at 1.50 p.m. The Trepanney train went out at 11.30 a.m.

His Lordship Bishop White at Bay of Islands

We have received the following message giving an account of His Lordship Bishop White's visit to Curling and Corner Brooks. Special to Evening Telegram.

CURLING, Aug. 4. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, accompanied by his chaplain, arrived here Friday and was heartily welcomed. Much bunting was displayed and a magnificent arch beautifully decorated, had been erected at the entrance to the church grounds. Confirmation was administered to approximately one hundred in St. Mary's Church the same evening. On Sunday the Bishop celebrated at 8 o'clock, preached at eleven o'clock and a special service was held at Corner Brook in the afternoon. The largest building available was crowded; his Lordship addressed the large congregation, met many of his former parishioners who extended hearty greetings. Chaplain Tulk preached at St. Mary's in the evening. The party proceeds out the bay to-morrow by the steamer George to administer Confirmation at John's Beach and Lark Harbor.

A. L. BARRETT.

Strike at Corner Brook Ended

A message received by the Prime Minister from Magistrate Scott states that the strike of workmen at Corner Brook has ended and work was resumed this morning. He adds that several hundred men had in the meantime returned to their homes and the loss to both men and company as a result of the strike will be considerable. It is stated that a vote taken on Saturday was participated in by about one third of the men and a two third majority of them decided on returning to work.

Progress With Industrial Exhibition

Matters in connection with the industrial exhibition which is being held during November month are going ahead with a swing. Both the Princes and Curling Rinks have been engaged for exhibition purposes. There are 47 applicants for space and the management is unable to consider further applications until a survey of the rinks is held to ascertain if any space remains.

Died at McAdam, N.B.

Word was received to-day announcing the passing yesterday at McAdam, New Brunswick, of Mrs. Leslie, wife of J. C. Leslie, formerly telegraph operator at Bay d'Espoir. Mr. George Hennebury of the Telegram staff is one of four surviving brothers, the others being Messrs. Joseph and Thomas of Quidi Vidi and Ewen, telegraph operator (retired) at Glovertown, N.B.

Frolicking Porpoises

Yesterday afternoon the hundreds of visitors at Topsail were very much interested by an immense school of porpoises which thrashed the water of the Bay into foam as they played around just off the pier. They remained for over an hour and then apparently deciding that they had done their share towards amusing the crowd, departed in a cloud of spray for parts unknown.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Aug. 4th.—Up betimes, the weather grown cold, and in, so far, the worst day of the summer. My wife in high good humour, being that last night she did tell me how she had rheumatism in her arm, and this a sure sign of rays, which I did call the silliest superstition. But Lord, how strange women are, that being in pain, they will gloss over it since it do prove them right in an opinion. News this day of the Humber strike, it like to be Monday, which is the best possible news, being much money lost to the men by so many days of striking. The Cabal will, I think enquire fully into the causes of such grievances as the men may have with a view to improving conditions. Comes Pevey and would have me fish for salmon with him to-morrow, which I have not done this 2 years, and he not at all. Methinks I shall go, being like to be a funny business since Pevey is—but a beginner at the game.

August 3rd (Lord's Day)—Pevey calling for me betimes. We by motor coach to the Salmonier line, and so to Pleasant Falls, where the prettiest surroundings and the worst path that ever I did see. The walking, bog to the knees, and poor Pevey falls many times, and twice loses his long boots in the mud so I get him out with the greatest difficulty. Anon coming to the Falls, to have lunch and their to the water. (We do not call the water, but for a novice he is not doing badly in describing the catch. —Ed.) I, coming to his assistance, find he still grips his rod, and so we pull the fish ashore and is the finest I ever saw. Pevey, indeed, so pleased with himself that he brags all the way home, and needs must I push him into the bog to bring him to. So home, mighty tired, and to bed.

Magistrates Court

A 21-year-old labourer charged with being drunk and disorderly was fined $1.00 and costs.

Constable H. Trickett had a city agent summoned before Court this morning charged with two breaches of the Street Traffic Regulations. The first charge was for not stopping his car in answer to signal made by the street traffic officer, and second for running the car on the wrong side of the road. Upon being convicted on both counts he was fined $5.00 with the option of 14 days. The defendant in this case made the plea that he had only recently taken out a drivers licence and was not familiar with the road.

A motorist summoned by Constable Morgan for driving without lights after sunset was let go with paying of costs.

Husband Too Lazy to Work

An unfortunate woman with two children in arms, arrived from Victoria Village by train Saturday night, and complained to the police that she was destitute and needed a place for shelter. The only means whereby the officer could assist was to take her, with the children, to the lockup for safe-keeping. To-day the police are endeavouring to do something in the matter, but it is quite possible she will be returned to her home. Her husband, it is said, is very much alive at Victoria Village, but too lazy to work.

Passed Away Suddenly

We regret to learn that death came suddenly this morning to Mr. John Sage, the highly esteemed cabman, who has for many years been a familiar figure on Water Street. He is survived by his wife, to whom general sympathy, in which the Telegram joins, will be extended. Mr. Sage had reached his 65th year.

Needs Attention

Residents of the Southside living in the vicinity of the Trestle Bridge complain of an obnoxious odour which comes from the river alongside. This morning the trouble was investigated by the neighbors, and lying in the water close to the river bank was found the dead form of a dog. The beast has apparently been lying in the water for some period, and it is now up to the proper authorities to have it removed.
