CALEDONIANS DEFEAT HILLHURST AND RETAIN FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP OF CALGARY

Scotchmen Maintain Title Held for Past Eight Years; Penalty in the Last Three Minutes Decided the Game By Odd Goal in Three

AFTER many attempts the second game between Hillhurst and the Callies took place last evening at Hillhurst park. Twice previously they should have played, but on the first occasion the rain intervened, and on the second occasion it will be remembered the game was stopped ten minutes from time with the Callies leading by one goal. Last evening it was a pretty tight race between time and the darkness, and a tie would about describe the matter, but the Callies this time managed to carry off the point though only by the odd goal in three.

The first goal they obtained five minutes after the kick off, and there was no further scoring until five minutes from time when Stan Wakelyn put in an equalizer.

The crowd of about twelve hundred spectators were on their feet with excitement and a tie game was fully expected. But then the Callies rushed away in a last desperate attempt to win, and Nesbitt worked himself into the penalty area when he was brought down heavily by Melville. No one would have grumbled had a penalty kick been given, but the referee allowed the game to proceed. Nesbitt managed to get possession again, and was tackled by Campbell. The Hillhurst man was charged to the ground but what happened then was not noticeable in the Press Box. Referee Sheldon after the game however, said Campbell shoved out his legs to trip Nesbitt up and he gave a penalty. There was a loud shout of protest from the Hillhurst supporters but Williams who took the kick made no mistake.

The game was won and lost with that kick, for there was not sufficient time remaining for a further goal, and the Callies ran off the field cheering and laughing and were almost carried into the dressing rooms by their delighted followers.

The game throughout was a very good one, and though at times some of the players in the excitement of the moment indulged in a little rough work, still the game was fairly clean.

In the first half the Callies had slightly the better of the play, and within five minutes had taken the lead. The ball came across from the left to Nesbitt, who was standing in front of goal, and though covered, he trapped the ball, swung round and shot, the ball traveling at a great pace into the net. It was a good goal, and every member of the team ran up to the successful shot and shook him by the hand. They were surprised but delighted at their early success.

There seemed to be more unanimity between the players on this Callies' side than on that of Hillhurst, and a better understanding. Hillhurst had men in positions they were wholly unused to, and what is more, positions they could not adapt themselves to. For instance, Wilkinson was placed at inside right. Previously he had played at left outside and at left half, and it is in the latter position that he plays best. But at inside right he was not in position, and he always had an inclination to roam towards the other wing. Mortimer had not before played anywhere but at left back, and he is a back, not a half. The Callies had Jimmy Haig away, but Braidwood, who was played as a reserve, played well, and the team was in no ways handicapped.

Callies Strong Defence.

Taking the defence as a whole, Callies had the advantage. The Hillhurst halves played a hard game, but the Callies' trio performed with more effect. The Hillhurst backs were not too safe either, being beaten more than once, and neither of them was good in kicking. On the other hand, Cooper and McLean were in good shape, and scarcely ever got passed.

In the second half things were evened up, and Hillhurst began to play much better, and they swung the ball about in businesslike fashion, and had quite as much of the play as their opponents, and immediately after the restart Johnstone, had he been lively, had a possible chance, but he dallied and was robbed, and again a centre from McEwan was the commencement of a lively time for the Callies' defenders. Wilkinson shot and the ball cannoned off McLean back to the inside right, who put it back to McEwan. The latter returned it into front of goal, but after some close exchanges it was finally worked away. The ball was rushed away to the other end, and Nesbitt shot. Sutton just managing to stop the ball with outstretched hand against the foot of the post, but he could not hold it, and it cannoned right across the goalmouth, Mellville luckily being in position to kick away.

Hillhurst Scores.

With the close approaching matters were getting exciting, and Stewart getting the ball, he raced past Cooper and well in before tapping the ball to Stan Wakelyn, who was in direct line with the goal. The centre forward immediately sent the ball in, and in much the same fashion as Nesbitt with the effort in which he scored, Gilhooley not having a ghost of a chance to save.

Then came the penalty kick with which Williams won the game. For the last five minutes every man on the field was shouting his hardest, and there was a scene of excitement such as only can be seen at a meeting of these two great rival elevens.

Of the two forward lines there was not much to choose. Both played hard and well, and for Hillhurst A. Wakelyn, at centre half, was the choice of the line. Sutton in goal could not be blamed for the defeat, for he had not the slightest chance of saving either of the shots which passed him. In the first half especially he saved his charge well when, from a corner kick, Joe Towill dropped the ball perfectly in front of goal. Sutton fisted away, and when it was returned, up he jumped and afain he knocked it out, this time to Sandy Strang. Sandy is developing as a shot these days, and he put in a beauty, which was rising all the way and going straight for the roof of the net, but Sutton was again ready, and this time he tipped the ball over the bar. It was a fine bit of goalkeeping.

It would be hard to make a selection from the Callies' defenders, for they all played well, and it is as much to their credit as to their forwards that they won.

The teams were:—Callies: Gilhooley; Cooper and McLean; Braidwood, Strang and Petrie; Towill, Nesbitt, Grindley, Williams and Jewell.

Hillhurst Sutton, Melville and Ross; Campbell, A. Wakelyn and Mortimer; McEwan, Wilkinson, S. Wakelyn, Johnston and Stewart.

Referee: H. E. Sheldon.

LEFTY GELVIN HAD NOTHING BUT HIS HANDS ON BALL

Bronchos Pounded His Offerings For Total of Twenty-Four Bases

Four Triples and Six Doubles Were Part of the Punishment

The Bronks Gave Barenkamp Errorless Support; Score 18 to 6

Long, lusty swats to all corners of the lot but in particular to the northwest corner marked last night's game between the Bronchos and Boosters which was won by the Bronks with the rather lopsided score of 18 to 6.

Old Kentuckey Guwn, who was in the Boosters' left garden, was the hardest worked man on the whole team. After each Calgary inning he came in from the field with the sweat dripping from his face. The secret of this unperabundance of prespiration was the way the Bronchos swatted the pill. They accumulated ten extra base hits, four of them baggers and then just for the sake of variety they would lob one into short left and Guyn would have to marathon from the top of the hill to the place where the ball hit only to marathon back again the next minute. Of the extra base hits, nine of the ten went to left field and of the singles four of the eight also went in that direction.

Aside from the hitting and scoring there was not much to the game. In fact when Chesty saw that the game was lost beyond repair he tried to make a farce of it, which did not appeal to the humor of the handful who attended. In the last inning he essayed to do the twirling himself which made matters even worse.

Big Bill Barenkamp was on the mound and as is usual the Bronchos gave him errorless support. At the first Bill made the visitors eat out of his hand but toward the close he eased up and devoted his energies to hitting.

Without reflecting upon Bill's hitting ability, those who were not there may judge of the quality of the pitching which Lefty Gelvin offered when the statement is made that Bill got three safe hits for a total of seven bases. His first offering was a triple which nearly knocked the top boards off the fence at the back of the park and at his next two times at bat he leaned against the ball for two base swats.

Lefty Gelvin had nothing on the ball but his hands and at that didn't appear to have the bread-hooks on very tight. He was touched up for eighteen hits in six innings which netted exactly eighteen runs.

It was a great day for the batting averages of the losals but the hits became so monotonous that both of the fans who saw the contest through did so because there was a football game advertised to start as soon as the baseball game was finished.

HODSON DENIES ANY TROUBLE WITH COACH KNOX

World's Champion Swimmer and Record Breaker Makes Statement

Trouble Was With the Men Who Went to Sweden for Holiday

Merrick Says He is Absolutely Through With Amateur Athletics

Montreal, Aug. 15.—George Hodson, world's champion swimmer and record breaker, arrived here tonight and was given a vociferous welcome as he stepped down the gangplank of the steamer Royal George. Several hundred students of McGill, in which institution, Hodgson is taking a course in applied science together with many members of the Montreal Amateur Athletic association, which the champion represented at Stockholm, were gathered on th wharf to greet him. The McGill yell was much in evidence, while the M. A. A. A. boys, not to be outdone, had appropriate cheers and songs specially prepared for the occasion.

Hodgson will be tendered a formal welcome and reception on Monday evening, when he will be presented with mementoes of his victories in the shape of a diamond locket and a medal by the city and by his club.

Others to arrive on the Royal George were McConnell, Beasley and Gallon, the British Columbia aspirants, who leave for home on the first train, and Mr. Merrick, of the Canadian Olympic committee, who had charge of the men darnwho left for Toronto tonight.

Chairman Merrick discussed the reports of discontent among the athletes.

"There is nothing to any of the complaints," he said. "I have documents which will absolutely disprove any charges made by any member of the team of mismanagement. I am completely satisfied with the work of Coach Knox. The whole trouble was stirred up by a few of the men who went over to Sweden believing it was all just one big holiday. Knox had to bring some of them back from going out on a little celebration of their own one night. They had stated hours for meals, and at those hours the food was of the best. It was a mistake ever taking Howard on the team. We only did it for fear of leaving some people to believe that race prejudice influenced the choice."

Mr. Merrick stated that he is through with athletics. He said matters have reached such a stage that an honorable man cannot afford to have his name drawn into the controversies that invariably arise over these matters.

FIREMEN DEFEATED THE BLUECOAT TEAM

The firemen and policemen met for the first time in the Civic league at the barrack's grounds last evening and the firemen against all expectations carried off the points with a score of two goals to one. Creighton scored for the police in the first half but after the cross-over the firemen got the equalizer through a corker and then Burns got the ball and running through all opposition put in the winner.

The firemen have now won three games and have lost two, and though the Parks Board have a lead of two points, the fire fighters have not given up hopes of carrying off the silverware.

STARK'S ALIBI FOR A PECULIAR PLAY

Standridge Struck at a Wild Pitch and Got Safe

Dropped Third Strike; Rule Made it Possible for Piper to Score

Unusual Play in Wednesday's Game Which Fans Have Been Discussnig

On Wednesday night a play occurred in the game between Calgary and Bassano, which was a brand new one, at least as far as the experience of any of the players on either team was concerned. The play may have been duplicated in the history of the game, but to say the least it was an unusual one. It was a freak play, and well illustrates the possibilities of the game.

There were two out and three men on the bases. Larry Piper happened to be the occupant of the third sack, Pete Standridge had taken two healthy swings at the ball without result. One run was needed to put the Bronks in the lead. Pete swung at the next ball and missed it. The catcher, Tom Stark, apparently lost the ball and it rolled into the diamond. Larry Piper had already started home. He was safe. Pete Standridge darted for first, and got there before Stark had discovered the ball and got it to first. Obie O'Brien went to third and Jimmy Flanagan to second on the play, while Piper came home.

The play was a puzzle to score. Finally the scorers charged it as an error to the catcher.

Should Have Been "Wild Pitch."

A new light was thrown on the subject yesterday, when Tom Stark explained how it happened. He claimed that it should be scored as a wild pitch, and this is his alibi: "The ball Hayes threw hit the ground about a foot ahead of the plate. Standridge hit at it on the bounce, and the ball hit me in the forearm. It never was near my glove. I guess the pain of the blow made me lose the ball."

Julie Street verifed this statement. Julie was sitting in the players' bench at the time. He said all the players saw it that way, but as the scorers were located exactly back of the plate it was impossible for them to see it. He added: "Pete was anxious to bring in the run, was all set to hit. It may sound funny, but Pete struck out at a wild pitch. The ball struck Stark in the arm and rolled out into the diamond. As Stark didn't get the ball, and therefore couldn't hold it, Pete ran to first on the dropped third strike rule. It sure was a funny play."

Probably every baseball fan has seen a similar play attempted, but in the experience of the writer, at least, it was the first time it was successfully carried out.
