

TO EXPLORE LOST PLACES OF LOST TRIBE

London Artist Will Offer His Masterpiece To the City

HOME BANK OFFICERS HERE ON SECRET TRIP

Belief That Vice-President Gough and M. J. Haney Conferred With Bishop Fallon.

SURPRISE VISIT
Even Manager of Local Home Bank Branch Was Not Advised of Chief's Presence.

The visit of R. P. Gough, vice-president of the Home Bank, and M. J. Haney, former president of the defunct institution, here last night is wrapped in mystery profound.

Mr. Gough and his companions arrived in London early yesterday evening and stayed overnight at the Tecumseh House. Why they were here or what their mission was is unknown even to O. M. Chappell, local manager of the Home Bank.

Mr. Chappell saw Mr. Haney on the street last night, but the latter either failed to recognize or deliberately avoided him.

The vice-president kept as silent as the proverbial oyster when questioned last night as to the reason for his visit. The belief is, however, that he came for the purpose of discussing bank affairs with Right Rev. Bishop Fallon.

Bishop Silent.
But what developed is a mystery. Asked this morning if he would elucidate regarding Mr. Gough's conference, the bishop said: "I have nothing to say; I'm going to work."

"Will you have a statement to make this afternoon?" he was asked. "I don't want to see anybody," was the non-committal response.

Catholic institutions of the city are known to have been large depositors with the Home Bank. In fact, the amounts involved are said to run into hundreds of thousands. Apparently it was in connection with these large holdings that Mr. Gough and his men came to London.

They left on the first train for Toronto they could conveniently take after remaining until a late hour last night. They registered at the Tecumseh House at 9 o'clock yesterday evening, and departed on the 9 o'clock train this morning.

A Busy Man.
Guy Ferguson, manager of the Tecumseh House, stated he would have welcomed the chances of depositors having their money redeemed. Mr. Ferguson had large deposits in the Home Bank and was naturally anxious to see Mr. Gough.

But the latter locked himself up in his room. When he came out, he didn't have time to see anybody, except the person or persons with whom he intended doing business.

According to Mr. Chappell no new developments in connection with the bank have occurred in the past 24 hours. He was surprised that Mr. Gough and Mr. Haney kept him in ignorance of their visit and could advance no explanation for the deep secrecy attached to their activities while here.

FINED TWICE IN WEEK, DECIDES TO SELL COW
Mrs. Frank Walzak Pays $5 For Letting Animal Run Free.

Mrs. Frank Walzak is going to sell her cow.

For the second time inside of a week she has appeared to answer a charge of allowing the animal to run at large, and once again was fined $5 and costs.

According to the officer who laid the information, he discovered the cow grazing in a cornfield, having trodden down a bed of tomatoes on property adjoining that where it had been pastured.

"What can I do?" asked the woman, "when the cow breaks the rope every time?"

"Well," replied the court, "I will fine you every time that cow is at large, and increase the amount each offence. I think you had better sell the animal."

"All right, I sell cow," declared the woman, as she paid her fine.

FRENCH TAKE POSSESSION OF THREE GERMAN MINES
Associated Press Despatch.
Dusseldorf, Aug. 21.—Three more coal mines in the Gelsenkirchen district have been seized by the French. It was announced at occupational headquarters here today and 35,000,000 marks have been confiscated in this city.

Her Reudert, editor of the Communist organ Freiheit, who fled after making an inflammatory speech against the French on May 1, has been arrested.

R. P. GOUGH, Vice-president of the Home Bank, who was in London for a few hours Monday evening.

HE ADMITS THEFT OF MONEY STOLEN FROM PAWNSHOP

Stewart Gush Says He Robbed Thomas Fox of Cash and Valuable Coins.

GETS WEEK'S REMAND

Stewart Gush, who appeared a week ago on a charge of intoxication, and was remanded to jail for a week to sober up, pleaded guilty this morning to a charge of theft preferred by Isaac T. Fox, local pawnbroker.

Although it was stated that Fox had just nearly $1,000 on or about Aug. 3, the information laid charged that Gush, while in the employ of Mr. Fox, had stolen from the safe at the store the sum of $190.52 in gold coins and $65 in cash.

Gush elected summary trial, and after his had entered a plea of guilty the crown asked that a week's remand be granted in order that certain things in connection with the case might be cleared up.

Sentence on the charge of intoxication was deferred.

Gush, according to Inspector of Detectives Nickle, was suspected a week ago, when he was first arrested, and for that reason the remand was granted unhesitatingly.

BOY SCOUT INJURED BY TRUCK IN TORONTO
Marshal Milbanks, Badly Battered, Lies Unconscious in Hospital.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Aug. 21.—The 12-year-old boy who has been lying in an unconscious state in St. Michael's hospital, where he was removed yesterday, following an accident at a downtown corner, when he was run over by a truck, was this afternoon identified by Marshal Milbanks as being 23 Pembroke street, Toronto.

With a severely athletic body painfully battered, his towseled head white with bandages, and his left leg in splints, this 12-year-old Boy Scout lies unconscious in St. Michael's Hospital.

For nearly 24 hours the lad has been in this condition, neither sinking nor rallying, and kept alive only by an exceptionally strong and steady heart. The exact extent of his injuries is unknown, and his identity is a mystery.

Shortly after noon yesterday he became confused in the downtown traffic, jumped to avoid an automobile, and was run over by a five-ton truck. Rushed to the hospital he was quickly stripped of his well-decorated Scout uniform, bandaged, and his many badges of efficiency on his tunic include swimming, marksmanship and paddling—an outdoor boy. His kitbag contained a goodly supply of lunch, which suggests he may have been going camping somewhere, but the troop identification badges are missing from his tunic.

SAY VANCOUVER BANDITS GAMBLERS GONE BROKE
Canadian Press Despatch.
Vancouver, Aug. 21.—Two masked bandits who held up an alleged gambling club here Sunday morning and were subsequently arrested, were two victims of the gaming tables who had lost their money. They got only about $1,500, not $10,000 to $15,000, as first reported. This is the report turned out by Mayor Tisdale by Chief Anderson.

MAY OBSTRUCT OFFICERS.
Canadian Press Despatch.
Sudbury, Ont., Aug. 21.—"I am satisfied that there is no penalty under the Ontario temperance act for obstructing officers with search warrants on a private residence," said Magistrate Brodie in police court today, rejecting a charge against Mrs. Rose Donnelly.

EXPERTS EXPLORE ON LONDON FARMS FOR INDIAN RELICS

W. J. Wintenberg of Ottawa Seeks For Graves of Early Race.

WANTS INFORMATION

W. J. Wintenberg, prominent archaeologist and officer of the staff of the Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa, is in the city to commence explorations of the land extending four miles west of the farms of Ray Lawson and George McComb in the hopes of unearthing information regarding the prehistoric tribe of Indians who inhabited this region 400 years ago.

Mr. Wintenberg, who is probably one of the best authorities on Indian life in Canada, has been sent to London by the Dominion Government to seek historical information regarding the original inhabitants of this section of the country. It is not to collect relics to be placed on exhibition in museums that Mr. Wintenberg has come, but to investigate the customs, mode of living, method of burial and the general appearance of the ancient tribe of Indians who long ago roamed this district.

Mr. Wintenberg has made previous excavations in this district, but has not as yet carried on a systematic search for cemeteries of the Neutral Indians. The site near Mr. Lawson's farm is supposed to be rich in Indian lore, but owing to several explorations there previously the otherwise wealthy land has been somewhat spoiled.

In the course of the search for buried Indian skeletons, pottery and relics a systematic survey of the cultural deposits will be kept. Drawings will be made from time to time, and in this way Mr. Wintenberg hopes at the end of several months to have unearthed valuable information which will settle definitely whether or not the Neutral Indians lived in this district.

Other Tribes.
Although the majority of Indians who inhabited this district were of the Algonquian or Algonquin stock, Mr. Wintenberg expects to find a site of the Attawandian or Neutral tribe near London. An Algonquin site was unearthed near Lobo some years ago, but from reports and previous excavations, the farm of Mr. Lawson's holds the cemeteries of the Attawandian tribe.

Valuable information on prehistoric Canadian art is also expected to be found. The Indian designs on pottery and pipes will furnish a new style for Canadian manufacturers to follow.

Although pottery appears to have been unknown in certain regions," said Mr. Wintenberg, "it flourished remarkably in this district, where specialization in form and decoration occurred, but the pottery was, as a rule, rather crude and undeveloped. These Indians were expert in the manufacture of tobacco pipes of great variety. The simple designs can be used to create a new style of decorating. China, Japan, Egypt and Holland have their separate styles of art, and our own prehistoric Canadian art is thought by artists to be more beautiful than that of other countries.

Publish Book.
An illustrated book has been published by prominent ethnologists in Canada, and it is hoped that Canadian manufacturers will commence, with the help of the designs shown in this book to produce articles bearing the designs of the various Canadian tribes. "Although some of the designs on pottery made by the Neutral tribe are very elaborate, the most are simple, but they give a striking shadow effect," said Mr. Wintenberg.

It is Mr. Wintenberg's theory that the ancient tribe of Neutral Indians who inhabited this district were cannibals. "I have always thought the Indians ate their enemies, and I think on some occasions ate their relatives," said Mr. Wintenberg. He pointed out that of several skeletons

Turn to Page 5, Column 2.

EXPECT CONFUSION IN ANTI-BET DECISIONS
Acting Crown Attorney Receives Instructions From Attorney-General Nickle.

Acting Crown Attorney Gillanders stated this morning that he had received instructions from Attorney-General Nickle regarding the prosecutions under the anti-betting information law.

Mr. Gillanders, while not wishing to express an opinion on the statement made by Mr. Nickle, stated the only thing that could be done was for the cases to be tried and sentence deferred until such time as the appeal against the Toronto judge's verdict was disposed of.

Another local lawyer stated that it was not a nice spectacle to see the crown inviting contradictory judgments between magistrates, and that it would tend to a confusion not justice in this matter.

BRITISH SHIP GROUNDS.
Associated Press Despatch.
Baltimore, Md., Aug. 21.—The British steamer Betwa, which sailed from this port yesterday with a cargo of coal for Leghorn, went ashore on the middle ground between Cape Henry and Cape Charles in a dense fog this morning.

IN SERIOUS SHAPE.
This is Walter C. Sturgeon of 450 Dufferin avenue, who was knocked off his bicycle by a street car at the corner of William and Dundas streets on Saturday and seriously hurt. Reports from Victoria Hospital this morning, where he is lying, state that he is much better, and that he is on the road to recovery.

HEROIC LONDON DOCTOR.
By a heroic and successful attempt to save the life of Howard Bailey at Grand Bond on Monday morning, Dr. John Schram of London, who is shown above, has earned the warm approval of the residents, who will recommend him for one of the Carnegie medals for heroism. He is well-known in London, and is an expert swimmer.

SUGGESTS MAKING COMMUNITY HALL OF FAIR BUILDING
Rev. W. R. McIntosh Offers Proposal on New Manufacturers' Building.

MEETS APPROVAL
The question of what to do with the new Manufacturers' Building at Western Fair during the winter, was answered today in the form of a suggestion made by Rev. W. R. McIntosh, and approved of by A. M. Hunt, secretary of Western Fair Board.

Mr. McIntosh would use the building almost exclusively as a community hall, following the lines of U. A. Buchner's recommendation of a general entertainment and meeting place for all citizens should exist in the city.

Dr. John Schram of London, who is shown above, has earned the warm approval of the residents, who will recommend him for one of the Carnegie medals for heroism. He is well-known in London, and is an expert swimmer.

Mr. Wintenberg, who is probably one of the best authorities on Indian life in Canada, has been sent to London by the Dominion Government to seek historical information regarding the original inhabitants of this section of the country. It is not to collect relics to be placed on exhibition in museums that Mr. Wintenberg has come, but to investigate the customs, mode of living, method of burial and the general appearance of the ancient tribe of Indians who long ago roamed this district.

Mr. Wintenberg has made previous excavations in this district, but has not as yet carried on a systematic search for cemeteries of the Neutral Indians. The site near Mr. Lawson's farm is supposed to be rich in Indian lore, but owing to several explorations there previously the otherwise wealthy land has been somewhat spoiled.

In the course of the search for buried Indian skeletons, pottery and relics a systematic survey of the cultural deposits will be kept. Drawings will be made from time to time, and in this way Mr. Wintenberg hopes at the end of several months to have unearthed valuable information which will settle definitely whether or not the Neutral Indians lived in this district.

Other Tribes.
Although the majority of Indians who inhabited this district were of the Algonquian or Algonquin stock, Mr. Wintenberg expects to find a site of the Attawandian or Neutral tribe near London. An Algonquin site was unearthed near Lobo some years ago, but from reports and previous excavations, the farm of Mr. Lawson's holds the cemeteries of the Attawandian tribe.

Valuable information on prehistoric Canadian art is also expected to be found. The Indian designs on pottery and pipes will furnish a new style for Canadian manufacturers to follow.

Although pottery appears to have been unknown in certain regions," said Mr. Wintenberg, "it flourished remarkably in this district, where specialization in form and decoration occurred, but the pottery was, as a rule, rather crude and undeveloped. These Indians were expert in the manufacture of tobacco pipes of great variety. The simple designs can be used to create a new style of decorating. China, Japan, Egypt and Holland have their separate styles of art, and our own prehistoric Canadian art is thought by artists to be more beautiful than that of other countries.

Publish Book.
An illustrated book has been published by prominent ethnologists in Canada, and it is hoped that Canadian manufacturers will commence, with the help of the designs shown in this book to produce articles bearing the designs of the various Canadian tribes. "Although some of the designs on pottery made by the Neutral tribe are very elaborate, the most are simple, but they give a striking shadow effect," said Mr. Wintenberg.

It is Mr. Wintenberg's theory that the ancient tribe of Neutral Indians who inhabited this district were cannibals. "I have always thought the Indians ate their enemies, and I think on some occasions ate their relatives," said Mr. Wintenberg. He pointed out that of several skeletons

Turn to Page 5, Column 2.

EXPECT CONFUSION IN ANTI-BET DECISIONS
Acting Crown Attorney Receives Instructions From Attorney-General Nickle.

Acting Crown Attorney Gillanders stated this morning that he had received instructions from Attorney-General Nickle regarding the prosecutions under the anti-betting information law.

Mr. Gillanders, while not wishing to express an opinion on the statement made by Mr. Nickle, stated the only thing that could be done was for the cases to be tried and sentence deferred until such time as the appeal against the Toronto judge's verdict was disposed of.

Another local lawyer stated that it was not a nice spectacle to see the crown inviting contradictory judgments between magistrates, and that it would tend to a confusion not justice in this matter.

BRITISH SHIP GROUNDS.
Associated Press Despatch.
Baltimore, Md., Aug. 21.—The British steamer Betwa, which sailed from this port yesterday with a cargo of coal for Leghorn, went ashore on the middle ground between Cape Henry and Cape Charles in a dense fog this morning.

IN SERIOUS SHAPE.
This is Walter C. Sturgeon of 450 Dufferin avenue, who was knocked off his bicycle by a street car at the corner of William and Dundas streets on Saturday and seriously hurt. Reports from Victoria Hospital this morning, where he is lying, state that he is much better, and that he is on the road to recovery.

HEROIC LONDON DOCTOR.
By a heroic and successful attempt to save the life of Howard Bailey at Grand Bond on Monday morning, Dr. John Schram of London, who is shown above, has earned the warm approval of the residents, who will recommend him for one of the Carnegie medals for heroism. He is well-known in London, and is an expert swimmer.

Mr. Wintenberg, who is probably one of the best authorities on Indian life in Canada, has been sent to London by the Dominion Government to seek historical information regarding the original inhabitants of this section of the country. It is not to collect relics to be placed on exhibition in museums that Mr. Wintenberg has come, but to investigate the customs, mode of living, method of burial and the general appearance of the ancient tribe of Indians who long ago roamed this district.

Mr. Wintenberg has made previous excavations in this district, but has not as yet carried on a systematic search for cemeteries of the Neutral Indians. The site near Mr. Lawson's farm is supposed to be rich in Indian lore, but owing to several explorations there previously the otherwise wealthy land has been somewhat spoiled.

In the course of the search for buried Indian skeletons, pottery and relics a systematic survey of the cultural deposits will be kept. Drawings will be made from time to time, and in this way Mr. Wintenberg hopes at the end of several months to have unearthed valuable information which will settle definitely whether or not the Neutral Indians lived in this district.

SOCIETY TO STOP BRANDING CATTLE TO BE EXPORTED

Canadian S. P. C. A. To Combat Infliction of White Hot Electrical Branders.

UTMOST CRUELTY

Special to The Advertiser.
Montreal, Que., Aug. 21.—"This is absolutely the most horrible thing that has ever been brought to our notice," said J. R. Innis, secretary of the Canadian S. P. C. A., yesterday, discussing the regulations of the British Government that, on Sept. 1, all Canadian store cattle for export must be branded with white-hot electric branders.

"Further, you can say that not one of these animals will be branded in such an unnecessary cruel manner if we can prevent it."

"I understand that there will be three thousand Canadian store cattle here on Sept. 1 awaiting shipment, and that there will be men sent out from England with electric machines to brand them. I intend to be at the place when this is started, with a couple of other inspectors, and as soon as this work is started we intend to intervene and arrest the operators. That is all we can do, because we can only arrest the men actually committing the cruel act, but we shall arrest them and stop the work, and then it will be for the courts to decide this matter. I am confident that public opinion will support us in stopping this infliction of such unnecessary agony on these poor beasts."

"It is proposed to apply a white hot C Brand on each animal's rump back of the hip bone for three seconds, which will be long enough to burn the mark completely through the skin to the flesh. The only thing comparable is to stick your finger into a person's eye for ten seconds, or hold the end of a burning cigar for an equal time to his hand. That is what it will mean for the cattle, and we intend to stop it. If they must brand cattle, why not do it on their hoofs, where it would not inflict such suffering?"

HAD CORRECT NUMBER BUT WRONG MOTORIST
Unknown Automobilist "Puts One Over" on City Police Officer.

How one local motorist put one over on a member of the police force came to light in court this morning, when a charge of parking without lights was brought against Hugh G. Weld.

On hearing the charge Mr. Weld pleaded not guilty, stating that his car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

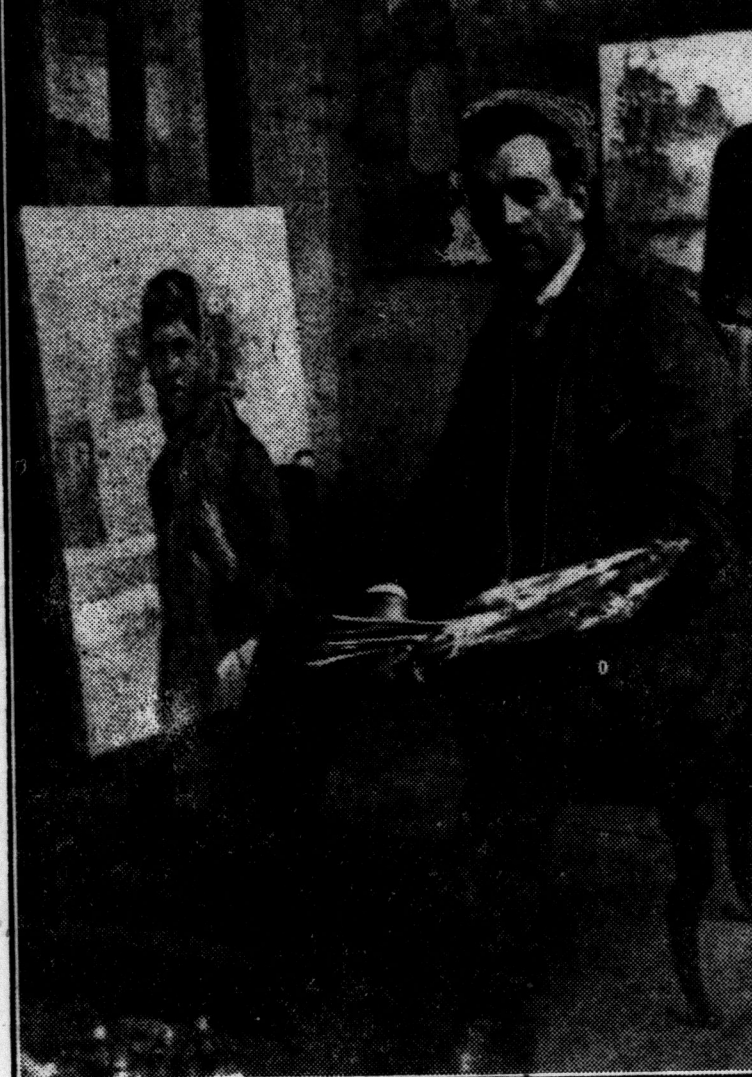

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

The officer, called to the stand, stated that Sunday night he had been walking along Hamilton road, near Sackville street, when he saw a car standing in the center of the road with no lights showing. It was about 4:10 a.m. He went to the car and found the driver asleep over the wheel. Waking him up he told him he had been driving drunk. The car was not the one in question.

EDWARD GLEN AT HIS WORK. In this picture, The Advertiser photographer shows Edward R. Glen, the London artist, stepping in the shoes of Paul Peel, at work in his studio at 718 Colborne street. Still young, Mr. Glen is one of the new generation of artists who have attracted the attention of picture judges in Europe. He is showing a few of his pictures at the Western Fair this year.

Wonder Painting of War Created by London Artist
"The Good Samaritan," Picture Worthy of National Gallery, in Studio of Edward Glen, Who Offers It To City.

In a little studio at the back of a house on Colborne street is an oil painting the enough in the quality of its workmanship, say the experts, to make it a fit representative of Canadian art in any gallery in Europe and fine enough in its spiritual quality to shake the voice of the reactionist and shame the fervor of the most jingo politician.

Conceived and painted by a Canadian and a Londoner, Edward R. Glen, the picture, which is on a canvas six feet by five, and which stands on the mantel of the little studio at the back of Mr. Glen's home at 718 Colborne street, shows one of the few memories of the war that is worth keeping bright in our memories. The friendship of the man, the picture, the spirit of the act and perhaps with his last breath offers a silent prayer of thanks to a God who had made such an act possible.

Through the whole work the artist has never lost sight of the reality of the scene, nor of the spiritual values of the position of the two central figures. The German is limp and his face chilled with the approaching Turn to Page 2, Column 4.

The face drawn with pain and horror with a night of lying on the wet ground, looks with hardly believing awe at his steel-helmeted Samaritan, whose strongly-muscled hands support his tired head and of fetid drink out of a field flask. The Tommy with a face of stone, carved in the lines of the man who has looked on every horror that can be played to human eyes, nevertheless responds to primal call of humanity, and kneeling in the filth that followed in the wake of a big advance, offers his flask of rum or water to aid this foreign soldier, who, though unable to talk to him, shows so plainly that he understands the spirit of the act and perhaps with his last breath offers a silent prayer of thanks to a God who had made such an act possible.

Through the whole work the artist has never lost sight of the reality of the scene, nor of the spiritual values of the position of the two central figures. The German is limp and his face chilled with the approaching Turn to Page 2, Column 4.

The face drawn with pain and horror with a night of lying on the wet ground, looks with hardly believing awe at his steel-helmeted Samaritan, whose strongly-muscled hands support his tired head and of fetid drink out of a field flask. The Tommy with a face of stone, carved in the lines of the man who has looked on every horror that can be played to human eyes, nevertheless responds to primal call of humanity, and kneeling in the filth that followed in the wake of a big advance, offers his flask of rum or water to aid this foreign soldier, who, though unable to talk to him, shows so plainly that he understands the spirit of the act and perhaps with his last breath offers a silent prayer of thanks to a God who had made such an act possible.

Through the whole work the artist has never lost sight of the reality of the scene, nor of the spiritual values of the position of the two central figures. The German is limp and his face chilled with the approaching Turn to Page 2, Column 4.

The face drawn with pain and horror with a night of lying on the wet ground, looks with hardly believing awe at his steel-helmeted Samaritan, whose strongly-muscled hands support his tired head and of fetid drink out of a field flask. The Tommy with a face of stone, carved in the lines of the man who has looked on every horror that can be played to human eyes, nevertheless responds to primal call of humanity, and kneeling in the filth that followed in the wake of a big advance, offers his flask of rum or water to aid this foreign soldier, who, though unable to talk to him, shows so plainly that he understands the spirit of the act and perhaps with his last breath offers a silent prayer of thanks to a God who had made such an act possible.

Through the whole work the artist has never lost sight of the reality of the scene, nor of the spiritual values of the position of the two central figures. The German is limp and his face chilled with the approaching Turn to Page 2, Column 4.

The face drawn with pain and horror with a night of lying on the wet ground, looks with hardly believing awe at his steel-helmeted Samaritan, whose strongly-muscled hands support his tired head and of fetid drink out of a field flask. The Tommy with a face of stone, carved in the lines of the man who has looked on every horror that can be played to human eyes, nevertheless responds to primal call of humanity, and kneeling in the filth that followed in the wake of a big advance, offers his flask of rum or water to aid this foreign soldier, who, though unable to talk to him, shows so plainly that he understands the spirit of the act and perhaps with his last breath offers a silent prayer of thanks to a God who had made such an act possible.

Through the whole work the artist has never lost sight of the reality of the scene, nor of the spiritual values of the position of the two central figures. The German is limp and his face chilled with the approaching Turn to Page 2, Column 4.

The face drawn with pain and horror with a night of lying on the wet ground, looks with hardly believing awe at his steel-helmeted Samaritan, whose strongly-muscled hands support his tired head and of fetid drink out of a field flask. The Tommy with a face of stone, carved in the lines of the man who has looked on every horror that can be played to human eyes, nevertheless responds to primal call of humanity, and kneeling in the filth that followed in the wake of a big advance, offers his flask of rum or water to aid this foreign soldier, who, though unable to talk to him, shows so plainly that he understands the spirit of the act and perhaps with his last breath offers a silent prayer of thanks to a God who had made such an act possible.

Through the whole work the artist has never lost sight of the reality of the scene, nor of the spiritual values of the position of the two central figures. The German is limp and his face chilled with the approaching Turn to Page 2, Column 4.

OTTAWA PLANS FOR IMMIGRANTS OF NORTH EUROPE

Arrangements Being Made To Receive 200,000 Settlers in 1924.

GREATEST INFLUX

Plans for taking care of 200,000 immigrants from Northern Europe, representing three times the number accepted in this country in any one year of the past, are being made by the immigration department at Ottawa for 1924.

If the number anticipated arrive next year will see the greatest influx of European settlers ever recorded in Canadian history. John Farrell, director of the local department of immigration, expects to take care of at least 5,000 in this district after the winter of 1924.

Temporarily the activities of the local department are at a standstill so far as arranging for