What Modern Artillery Costs

This is a war of artillery. Shells and shrapnel are being used on a scale far in excess of the calculations of the most far-seeing military experts of Europe. That is why Kitchener and French are asking for more shells, and still more shells; for a great proportion of the $120 a minute which this war is costing is being blown away by our big guns.

To fire a single shot from our biggest guns costs $5,000, and some idea of the expenditure of naval firing can be gathered from the fact that one famous battleship could use up roughly $100,000 worth of ammunition per minute if she worked all her guns at full blast, which she would do if necessary. And to this huge outlay must be added the cost of the gun, remembering that the largest weapon has a very short life, and is soon worn out. The most expensive gun we use is 12-in., though our big guns run up heavy ammunition bills. For instance, $375 vanishes in flame and smoke every time a 13.5 weapon is fired.

The guns which expend $5,000 worth of ammunition every time they are fired are really wonderful pieces of artillery. They can heave a ton weight of explosive shell over a distance of thirty miles with the certainty of hitting any spot they aim at. The power and velocity of the shot is such that on leaving the gun it has force enough to go straight through 57 1/2 inches of wrought iron.

The 12-in. gun can eat up well over $500 worth of ammunition per minute. For a 9.2 in. it is approximately under $150; for a 7.5 in. under $100, and for a 6-in. about $60.

Miller's Worm Powders are not surpassed by any other preparation as a vermifuge or worm destroyer. Indeed, there are few preparations that have the merit that it has to recommend it. Mothers, aware of its excellence, seek its aid at the first indication of the presence of worms in their children, knowing that it is a perfectly trustworthy medicine that will give immediate and lasting relief.

Old Friends

"When I was in France," said Sir Adam Beck, "I called at General Alderson's headquarters on the battlefield, but the General was out. I took a snoop around to see if my horse, Sir James, was in the stable. An orderly told me that Sir James was the General's favorite horse, and that he rode him very much. I met General Alderson on his return and he had the horse brought up to within 15 or 20 feet of us. Before I gave Sir James to the General I called him 'Billy' for a stable name. When the horse came up I said quietly: 'Hello, Billy!' The next minute he walked right over to me and placed his nose in the palm of my hand. He rubbed my hand all over and nodded his head up and down."

Military Camp at the Exhibition

Every branch of war activity to be seen in Europe to-day will be vividly portrayed at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. Aeroplanes will land at the military camp after taking observations in mid-air; miniature battleships will be blown up in the lake; there will be bridge and shelter trench building, armored cars, hospital autos, field ambulances with stretcher-bearer sections, field dressing stations, field bakeries and cookeries, ammunition columns, bomb throwers, signal corps, observation masts, etc. The camp will be occupied by several hundred officers and men now training for overseas service at Niagara and other camps for the infantry, cavalry and artillery units.

When Asthma Comes do not despair. Turn at once to the help effective—Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. This wonderful remedy will give you the aid you need so sorely. Choking ceases, breathing becomes natural and without effort. Others, thousands of them, have suffered as you suffer but have wisely turned to this family remedy and ceased to suffer. Get a package this very day.

Tough on the Substitute

There had been a homicide in the town and a man had been sentenced to be hanged. The police department, et al., swung the hangman's noose over the first limb of the old sycamore just outside the town and were just about ready to swing the murderer up when the fire bell began to ring.

This interrupted the hanging because the squad had to hurry away to put out the fire. They tied their victim to the tree and went away and left him.

While they were gone a "bum" came along and saw the man tied to a tree. He asked the heir apparent to a wooden covering why he was tied to the tree.

"Well, you see," the slaver said, "I belong to a moving picture company and I'm now posing for a picture. It's rather tiresome, and I'll give you $5 if you'll stay here an hour in my place."

The stranger accepted, and the exchange of clothes and ropes was made. Pretty soon the firemen came back to finish the job. They slipped the black cap over the stranger's head and fixed the noose around his neck. "All heave," they cried, and swung him upward, but the rope broke and he came crashing to earth.

The stranger rolled over, sat up and looked surprised as the hood was taken from his head.

"Say," he said, "you fellows are going to hang somebody some day with that kind of monkey business."

It is so powerful that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. It is perfectly safe to use and cannot grip.

Joys of Country Life

A city man recently visited his country cousin. The man from the city, wishing to explain the joys of metropolitan life, said "We certainly have been having fun the last few days. Thursday we autoed to the country club, and golfed until dark, then trooped back to town and danced until morning." The country cousin was not to be stumped in the least, so began telling some of the pleasures of the simple life: "We have pretty good times here, too. One day we buggered out to Uncle Ned's and went onto the back lot, where we baseballled all afternoon. In the evening we sneaked up into the attic and pokered until morning." A sturdy old farmer who was listening, not to be outdone, took up the conversation at this point and said: "I was having some fun about this time myself. I muled to the corn field and gee-hawed until sundown. Then supered until dark, and piped until 9 o'clock, after which I bed-stepped until the clock fived, after which I breakfasted until it was time to go muling again."

FEMININE CHATTER.

Uses For Stale Bread Which Are Somewhat Novel.

Bread that is not very stale can be used to advantage in bread tarts. Cut the bread a quarter of an inch thick and stamp it into circles with a biscuit cutter. Moisten these circles with milk, but do not use enough milk to make them lose their shape. Then spread over them some sort of jam or preserve and place two circles together like a sandwich. Put them in a frying pan with a little butter, and saute them on both sides to a delicate color. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve very hot.

A fruit charlotte is another excellent dessert in which to utilize stale bread. Cut the bread into slices about a quarter of an inch thick, then into strips two inches wide. Butter a mold, clip the slices of bread with melted butter and arrange them around the bottom and sides of the mold, slightly overlapping. Fill the center with apple sauce seasoned with butter and sugar and put a teaspoonful of apricot jam in the center of this. Cover the top of the mold with strips of the bread and bake in a hot oven for thirty minutes. The bread should be amber in color when done. Serve with a hard sauce. Any stewed fruit may be used in making this dessert.

A Cheese Pudding—Alternate layers of slightly stale bread and grated cheese, moistened with a custard made of one pint of milk, two beaten eggs and half a teaspoonful of salt constitute an excellent luncheon dish. Arrange the bread and cheese in a baking dish, pour the liquid over them, dot the top layer of bread with small pieces of butter and bake for about twenty minutes. A quarter of a teaspoonful of saleratus—that is, bicarbonate of soda, which may be bought at any chemist's—is said to be a valuable addition to cheese pudding, as it aids in digesting the cheese by making easier the solution of the casein.

The canape is a luncheon dish made chiefly of leftover bread.

Cut bread into slices half an inch thick, stamp into circles with a biscuit cutter or trim into triangles or strips. Saute these in a little butter, sprinkle them with grated cheese, a little salt and a dash of cayenne. Spread them on a tin plate, and about fifteen minutes before serving set them in the oven to soften the cheese. Potted meat and sardines often are used to make the canape.

Bread pudding sounds exceedingly commonplace, but here is a recipe for a glorified bread pudding that is a veritable confection and is not very difficult to make.

Two cupfuls of milk, yolks of two eggs, one cupful of broken bread, white of one egg, one tablespoonful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of vanilla and one saltspoonful of salt. Soak the bread in the milk until softened; then beat it until smooth and add the other ingredients except the white of egg.

Turn into a pidding dish, place in a pan of hot water, bake in a slow oven for fifteen to twenty minutes. Cover the top with a layer of jam and spread over that the whipped white of an egg. Dust with powdered sugar and set it in the oven for a moment to brown. Serve the pudding either hot or cold with cream.

"Trifles light as air," the new hats of the summer girl might be designated. Very pretty and becoming, they are trimmed gayly with fruits and roses and other flowers. The ones shown

Cleaning White Clothes.

For cleaning white clothes of any kind, especially white wool, use the common black magnesite. Lay garment on table and rub magnesite into it thoroughly; roll up and lay away for a few days. Then shake out and brush with clean brush. It will look like new and save many a dry cleaner's bill.

Now that the season of white clothes is here it is quite necessary to know how to clean these garments at home.

To Remove Discolorations.

What neat housekeeper is not annoyed when she sees on the spotless woodwork of her door or windows those long, dark scratches which reveal that some one has tried to light a match by drawing it across the paint? Here is a remedy for the marks which quite defy soap and water. Cut a sour orange or lemon in half, apply the cut half to the marks, rubbing for a moment quite hard; then wash off with a clean rag, dipping first in water to moisten it, and then in whiting. Rub well with this rag, dry thoroughly, and nine times out of ten times the ugly marks will be conquered.

All finger marks on painted walls, etc., should be rubbed off with a little damp whiting in the same way and never washed with soapsuds, which destroys the paint.

Don'ts For the Sickroom.

Don't cry in the room—ever. Don't every few minutes ask the patient how she feels.

Don't let her know her sickness is an added expense, perhaps heavy. Don't walk on tiptoe if not necessary. Be considerate, pleasant, offhand, but don't fuss.

Don't forget to see she has bits of interesting news from the outside world each day.

Don't let everybody crowd into the room at once or stand in the doorway with long faces.

Debar depressing relatives who "mean well," but are lacking in tact. Use force if necessary.

Avoid all friction from any source. Never under the most trying circumstances allow the patient to feel for one moment that she is a hindrance.
