

ered with dust, the tower began to show signs of a speedy decay, and all but a small portion of the house fell into disuse. But far away, in a happy, blithesome home, lived and died the last of a grand old race, winning the love of many a heart beside the sea at Foula.

THE END.