

state of things" (Pollock on Torts, 2nd ed., p. 94), and, in our opinion, the amending Act has not remedied the matter.

Mr. Holmsted has taken the Act section by section, and, in addition to a running commentary on the various clauses, has diligently collected and summarized all the cases which are very much scattered through the reports in England, Scotland, and in some of the States where there is similar legislation. To the Act he has added and noted Lord Campbell's Act, which, in cases of fatal injury, is intimately connected with the Workmen's Act. The result is a very valuable work on an intricate subject, alike really useful to the profession, and to that large class, the employers of labour.

LAW SOCIETY OF UPPER CANADA.

The following gentlemen have just been appointed lecturers of the Law School: A. H. Marsh, Q. C. (re-appointed), E. Douglas Armour, Q. C. (re-appointed), John King, Q. C., and J. McG. Young, B. A., Barrister-at-Law.
