

BUSH'S FLUID FOOD BOVININE.

The Vital Principles of Beef Concentrated. A Highly Condensed Raw Food Extract.

In Typhoid Fever the pathological conditions present in the large and small intestine about the ileo-cæcal valve from the inflammation and suppuration of the agminated and solitary glands demand a food containing no excrementitious matter, while the depressing effects of the disease upon the vital powers through the nervous system make a highly nutritious and stimulating food absolutely necessary.

These indications for a food are met in Bovinine, which contains all the albuminoids of Beef and Mutton in a very concentrated form, unchanged by heat or chemicals, as well as its stimulating meat salts.

In all cases where rectal alimentations is necessary, no more eligible food preparation can be found than Bovinine. Reports of several cases are at hand showing increase of strength and weight in patients nourished for weeks upon Bovinine exclusively, administered in this manner.

In disturbances of the intestinal tract accompanied by gastric irritation; in cancer of the stomach or rectum; in supplying the waste of albuminuria; in the marasmus of infancy or old age; in scrofulous conditions; in phthisis, and in so-called dyspeptic conditions, Bovinine will be found of signal service, securing better nutrition and assimilation, and alleviating the conditions present. Bovinine is a raw food and is neither partially nor wholly pre-digested, so that when given in cases of enfeebled digestive powers, it does not still further increase the inability of the gastric forces to perform their work, but restores them by its physiological stimulation to their normal effectiveness.

Bovinine is constantly prescribed by the following well-known physicians, among hundred of others, to whom we are permitted to refer:—

SAVED HIS PATIENT.

"I have been prescribing BOVININE for some time, and am highly satisfied with its results. In one case, Typhoid Fever, where every nourishment was rejected, this I am confident, saved my patient."
