

the United Nations should administer all international economic assistance. I, myself, believe that that would be a mistake in present circumstances. But I do think that the United Nations could be used to an extent to which it is not being used at present to co-ordinate plans and to act as a clearing house, and I think also, that this would be a good way of finding out what is being done by all the countries - on both sides of the iron curtain if you like - which are engaged in this work, and that it would give us some indication of whether there are, or are not, any ulterior or undesirable political purposes behind the activities themselves."
