

She concludes with this reminder:

The people who can vote, old Canadians, new Canadians and angry or hurt Canadians, don't have as much riding on the out[come] of the Referendum as I do. You must vote on my future, not on your pasts. Since I can't vote Yes to save Canada, maybe you can.

Your children's future, as well as that of our country, is in your hands as you mark your ballot.

Thank you.