Sir Arthur Currie,

Principal

McGill University.

Sir,

Some time ago I wrote to a friend (Miss R. Kinnick) of McGill Faculty of Music, informing her I expected to be out of employment soon, and asking could she in some way bring my case before you.

Miss Kinnick very kindly wrote Dr Ferris, enclosing my letter and copies of Testimonials, who I understand brought the case before you.

The company I was employed by has now ceased operations for an indefinite period, which, you will understand, Sir, places me at a great disadvantage, being a married man.

I take the liberty of writing you Sir, to enquire if you would use your well known influence in my behalf in any direction you may know of.
