CANADA'S PLANS FOR A NAVY Continued From Page 1. nent, for the expression of which room ust be found. Ways of Assisting. "A simple contribution of money or material may be to one Dominion the most acceptable form in which to assist in imperial defence. Another, while ready to provide local naval forces, and to place them at the disposal of the crown in the event of war, may wish to lay the foundations upon which future navy of its own could be raised. A third may think that the best manner in which it can assist in promoting the interests of the empire is in undertaking certain local services, not directly of a naval character, but which may relieve the imperial government from expenses which would otherwise fall on the British exchequer.

"The main duty of the forthcoming conference as regards naval defence will be, therefore, to determine the form in which the various Dominion governments can best participate in the naval force in close connection with the royal navy.
