TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 17.

No Moral Advance in Germany.

Grave beyond anything in its previous history are the developments now unfolding in Germany. The political pot is boiling over. The situation is entirely out of the hands and beyond the control of the Kaiser. That is the sent for the crown prince is evidence of this. Only an emergency beyond the wisdom or the conceit of the "All Highest" would have induced him to call the "All Lowest" into council. And what may be thought of the situation when the "All-Lowest" proceeds to dominate it? The federal returns and brings the hawk-feeders with him!

As long as Bethmann-Hollweg retained his position he was a sort of pivot around which many clashing interests revolved. There is no real devotion to principles in the Kaiser's Germany. The fatherland has excited much devotion, but the inspiring motives of German action and the binding force in German politics previous to the war was community of interests. While these were spread with approximate fairness all went well. Just the moment it became apparent that Prussia was getting more of the profits and less of the losses, it was inevitable that the minor partners in the German enterprise would protest. The power of protest in Germany does not appear to be what it once was, but desperation may well teach men new virtues, and the villainy of Prussia is beginning to look to Bavaria, Saxony and also to Austria in something of the color it presents to neutrals and enemies.

Bethmann-Hollweg was the author at the opening of the war of the querulous plaint to the British Ambassador, "Surely you would not go to war for a scrap of paper?" There was no moral principle behind his diplomacy, any more than there was in the imperial policy he represented. In human affairs moral principle always wins out in the long run. It is the distinguishing human quality. Having got rid of moral principle and abandoned all scruples which the development of the race had imposed on those of distinctly higher evolution, it would have suited the unscrupulous element proved victorious in a large number of people outside Germany, as well as in it, describe this as a canting attitude. They also, like the ex-chancellor, are unable to perceive the values involved in a scrap of paper. It is true that there are some who believe in following what looks like the moral path simply because "honesty is the best policy." This is the true canting attitude, and those who are thus moved will never make sacrifices nor sustain losses for their alleged principles. Unless it is a best material policy, honesty does not commend itself to them.

The whole world felt the uplift when the United States was able to see that whether a better material policy or not, no great civilized nation could stand apart from the conflict whatever the cost or the losses, and let the humane ideals of liberty, justice, and protection for the weak, perish in Europe.

We do not believe that Germany has yet awakened to any moral consciousness. The appeal of the "best policy" may have weight in some minds, but the changes that have been made indicate no alteration of heart in the Hohenzollern leadership. The most powerful argument in the Kaiser's mind has been presented recently by the Russians. The British also submitted some solid contentions at Vimy Ridge and Mesines. Sane Germans are wondering if honesty, is the best policy, but the Kaiser has not got beyond the canting stage, and he has only hardened his heart, and called for another miracle either east or west. The British have one in preparation, but the Kaiser will not yield till the cry of the first born slain goes thru the land.

OTHER PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

The Toronto World invites correspondence on subjects of current interest. Letters must be short and to the point—not more than 200 words at the outside. The editor reserves the right to cut any letters that do not conform to these requirements. Names will not be published if the writers make them conform to these requirements. Every letter must be signed with writer's name and address, to ensure authenticity.

Europeans First.

Editor World: As a believer in conscription let me make a suggestion: There are in Canada over 300,000 eligible men who should be called up first, irrespective of anyone else. These are the men born outside of Canada—Englishmen, Irishmen, Scotchmen, Italians, Belgians, Russians, Greeks, Serbians, Portuguese, Americans and others. Any man from 21 to 45, physically fit, coming from any of the above countries now in Canada, some of whose homes are being devastated by the Hun, should be sent first. Married or single, all should be called upon. Many of these men came here in order to escape military service in their respective countries, or have done so by being residents of Canada at the outbreak of war. There are also men born in the enemy's country here. These men should be called up first under this heading. The above plan, I submit, will do away with a lot of opposition to the conscription bill. It is not that the first and second draft under the proposed act will be sufficient. If that is the case, then many of these men who came to Canada in order to escape conscription will have succeeded in accomplishing their aim. By conscripting the men in above class first, no objection can be raised by the native-born Canadian.

SOLDIERS' COMFORTS.

Contributions to Toronto Women's Patriotic League Thankfully Received.

The comforts department of the Toronto Women's Patriotic League, 30 King street west, reports the week's shipment of supplies and comforts to the Canadian War Contingents' Association, Canadian Field Coy's Commissariat and Queen Mary's Needlework Guild as follows: 1,093 pairs sock, 98 service shirts, 22 suits gause underwear, 12 suits pyjamas. Also wash cloths, towels, pillow cases and yarn. In money, $72.50.

Warm thanks were expressed for the large number of bound volumes donated for distribution and sent to Camp Borden, Whitley, the Military Orthopaedic Hospital, and to the chaplains' canteen at the front. The conscription cases, and the furniture wagon presented by the Women's Patriotic League, Oakville, for one of the double amputation cases, and the furniture wagon presented by the North Toronto Red Cross Auxiliary have been much appreciated.

GIRL HAS DISAPPEARED.

Left Home That It Would Be Useless For Anyone to Search.

Leaving a note to the effect that it would be useless for anyone to look for her, 16-year-old Jessie Grey, 22 Millicent street, disappeared from her home four days ago. She is not since been seen. The mother is a widow, and she and her daughter have always lived amicably together. Miss Grey left her place of employment, the Canadian Bag Co., 100 Paton road, on July 12. She told the foreman that she was ill, and he advised her to go home. She has been missing for about three weeks. At the time of her disappearance she was wearing a wine-colored cord suit made in a Russian blouse style, a large white hat, and with grey eyes and wears glasses, and is about 5 feet 4 inches in height. The police are searching for her.

RIFFLED THREE CHURCHES.

Sixteen-year-old Boy Confesses That He Robbed Churches.

Consequent on numerous complaints, Norman Williams, a 16-year-old boy, was taken into custody in the basement of St. Cyril's Church, Sunday night, and appeared in the police court yesterday on a charge of breaking into and stealing various sums of money from three churches and one private dwelling, namely, the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, $27.75; St. Cyril's, $1.53; Bloor Street Presbyterian, $1.00, and the home of R. Fairbank, 247 Bloor street, $4.25.

Williams confessed to entering three churches. He was committed to the Ontario Reformatory for six months and then indefinitely.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Making Duties Pleasures

A San Francisco woman builds her own houses and lets other people live in them. No, I don't mean she gets an architect and a builder and a contractor and some carpenters and bricklayers and lets them do his building. She does it herself—every nail and board and shingle, every hammer and saw and chisel that touches that house is hers, and here she sits. She climbs up on the roof and shingles and she gets down on her hands and knees and puts in a flooring, she makes her own plans and has the time of her life every minute that she's at work.

"Why not?" asks this young matron who is nimble and graceful as a kitten, bright-eyed with a roguish smile, and who has as nice a pair of well-shaped, capable hands as you ever saw or ever dreamed of seeing.

"If I didn't do this," she says, "I'd be washing dishes, hemming dish towels, making blue roses on green sofa pillows, or changing my dress three or four times a day, and having some woman who's half-garlic in the salad for lunch rub my head, marcel my hair or do something.

"Come on up here on the top of my ladder and see my nice little clean shingles all in a row, just as neat as wax. They're going to save the rain off from somebody's head. Look at my nice, clean, curly shavings! Ever pin 'em on for curls when you were going to be 'played' today? Take a whiff of 'em. Don't they smell woody and outdoorsy and new and nice?"

"Look at my floor down there! That's just the temporary one I'm going to be oak, really. Wait till you see the fireplace. Isn't it funny some people think they're lucky when they don't have any fireplaces at all?"

"Queer, my being a carpenter and builder, architect and contractor? I don't see anything queer about it. Don't men wash dishes, make tailored suits, run sewing machines, shell peas and cook? Why can't I step into a man's trade if I want to? Answer me that!"

"I hate dish washing. It's so messy, and then you never get anywhere with it. No matter how many pieces you wash on Monday or how well you do them, you've got them all to do over on Tuesday. You can never look at them and say, 'There I got on that. No, thank you, no dish washing for me.'

"For Duty, Yes.

"Take a nail, now. There it is, all new and shiny in the box. 'Come out, Mr. Nail, there's work for you to do. Tap, tap, tap, hammer, hammer, hammer in you and in you stay, right as a rivet. I'd like to see any kind that blows you out of that board.' I'm for the hammer and nails every time; let somebody else be for hot water and dish rag."

The houses that this San Francisco woman builds are not only interesting, as the architects say, and pretty, but they are practical and good all the way thru. Long may she flourish in her own trade—yes, and every woman, too. There's no fun in the world like doing a piece of work and doing it well, and doing it your own way. Now, like to wash dishes myself once in a very great while. You take a nice, big, shiny dishpan full of plenty of hot water, and you have all the soap you want, dozens of dish towels and pretty dishes. Rub them out and make them shine. What fun! But every day, three times a day—I wash dishes, no matter what the weather, and a thousand times, yes.

If it were my business to wash dishes, I wouldn't grumble about it. I'd wash 'em, and I'd be tickled to death to think I had a plain duty to do and the good sense to do it as well as it could possibly be done.

WHY CHARM IS GREATER THAN BEAUTY

BY LUCREZIA BORI

LUCREZIA BORI

"Charm cannot be cultivated. It is born with a person, just as lovely eyes or a perfectly shaped nose are born with a person. It is the animated, laughing countenance of a Latin beauty.

Always be Natural.

There is also a great deal of charm about naturalness and comfort in dress. The woman who is able to sit down and assume an easy, graceful position and to remain so until it is really necessary for her to move, is a far more pleasant companion than one who fidgets and moves about as if she would rather be in a position to move than to be in a position to sit down.

Then there are others who rob their speech of its natural charm by affectations. They dress up their conversation with phrases that have sounded well when spoken by others. Your own words are the most natural and the most charming person must be adaptable. She must "fit in" well upon all occasions. This is not to mean, however, that she must affect poses. For instance, if she visits people of quiet, intellectual tastes there is no need of words that come most naturally to you.

The charming person must be adaptable. She must "fit in" well upon all occasions. This is not to mean, however, that she must affect poses. For instance, if she visits people of quiet, intellectual tastes there is no need of words that come most naturally to you.

Never "Ape" Another.

Charm is a quality that every woman should possess, and it is really herself attractive to others, the ability to draw people to her.

Taking it for granted that charm is possessed by all persons, to a larger or smaller degree, you will find that it is hidden by tricks of manner and artificialities that are disagreeable to the sincere well-bred woman. I feel that I have discovered that the cause of this lies in the fact that most women are unoriginal—they are "copy cats."

If there is a popular leader in a certain social set who is renowned for her charming manner every other woman in the community will "ape" her. Herein lies the mistake, for there is nothing more charming than to be yourself. What is charm in one person may be the opposite in another. You may be attracted by the sweet friendly smile of one woman while the strained, fixed company grin of another repels you. The habit of pinning a smile to their faces whenever they speak or listen to strangers, which many women have acquired, is one that kills natural charm.

Can be added, if you like, and it improves the flavor and appearance.

For children there's no more wholesome supper than apples and tapioca pudding.

Peel the apples separately, then carefully remove all skin, core, etc., and whip up with the tapioca cooked as above.

Or cook the tapioca in the double saucepan for only one hour, and then peel and core the apples, put them in the pie dish, fill up with tapioca, and bake for three-quarters of an hour.

In this case it may be necessary to add a little more water to prevent the tapioca from getting too dry.

ADULTERATED BORAX.

In the afternoon police court yesterday, John Childs, 14 East Queen street, was fined $44.25 for selling adulterated borax. Inland Revenue Inspector H. J. Dager produced a certificate of analysis showing the powder to be adulterated with 24.27 per cent. of carbonate of soda.

Childs contended that the inspector did not ask for "pure" borax powder, but simply borax powder. His defence did not help him any.

WARM WELCOME FOR OVERSEAS MEN

Hundred and Thirty Arrived at North Toronto Depot Yesterday.

An enthusiastic welcome was accorded the party of 130 returned soldiers who arrived back in Toronto yesterday morning, hundreds of relatives and friends, and the brass band of the Queen's Own Rifles, taking part in the reception ceremonies. Seventy of the returning party of war veterans were Toronto men. Motor cars and three special street cars were used to take the soldiers from the station to Spadina Military Hospital.

The official welcome to the war heroes was tendered in the Spadina Hospital Auditorium, addresses of greeting being given by Controller Cameron, Aid. Ryding, Aid. Beamish, Aid. MacGregor, Rev. Major Dixon, Rev. Dr. Turnbull and Sergt. William Turley.

Of the 130 men who returned yesterday 49 were recommended for hospital treatment, the remainder for light duties at Camp Borden, and the rest discharged.

Prominent among the heroes in yesterday's contingent was Sergt. Rowley of New York, who was awarded the Military Medal for gallantry displayed when he went out into "No Man's Land" with several other soldier companions to look for the bodies of Lieut. H. Devlin and Lieut. H. Howard. These two Toronto officers had gone out in a trench raid party the previous night, but had never returned.
