Brigadier Taylor Will Help Solve Problem of Providing Suitable Clothes For Children to Wear to School

Editor of the Times:
Sir—My attention has been called to your editorial of the 27th inst., dealing with the question of children being compelled to remain away from school on account of not having shoes or other clothing.

It is certainly a great pity that any child should be obliged to stay away from school for this reason, or that this should be made an excuse by those who may not want to attend school, and I should like to say that until some better arrangement may be made the Salvation Army will be glad to help in this matter by investigating any such cases that may be reported to our headquarters, (Merchants' Bank Building), by any teacher or other responsible person.

Where it is found that children are obliged to stay at home on this account, we will undertake to supply, as far as possible, shoes, or whatever may be necessary. I might say that our workers have found considerable need in this direction and during Christmas week alone, one hundred and seventeen (117) pairs of new boots were supplied, besides other articles of clothing.

Yours sincerely,
L. E. TAYLOR,
Brigadier.

FIRST LADIES' NIGHT

New Temple Club Hats at a Very Pleasant Function

The splendid home of the Massey Fraternity has seldom been the scene of a more delightful function than that of last evening when the members of the New Temple Club held their first annual ladies' night. The various rooms were thrown open to receive the ladies, and the evening was spent in that in which dancing was held, although some of the older folk enjoyed a game at cards in the library or other room, while the pool tables in the main club rooms were also an attraction for some, including a number of the ladies. The latter were permitted even to peep into the magnificent, furnished Blue Lodge Room, and to see the place where the Mystic Shrine winter over the sands of the desert.

It was a very delightful evening. There was a programme of sixteen dances and Gaudin's orchestra furnished night refreshments were served at tables in the club room downstairs. The catering was done by Sharpe. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. W. F. B. Peterson, chairman and Charles Peterson, secretary. The reception committee consisted of George Amland, Ernest Law, Captain G. A. Kennedy, and James McKee. Floor committee, John Henderson and Elmer Burchill. George E. Day is president of the New Temple Club.

The chaperons were Mrs. G. H. V. Belyea, Mrs. A. E. Rowan, Mrs. G. N. Kennedy, Mrs. C. E. Harding, Mrs. H. Smith, Mrs. H. H. Blissett, Mrs. Charles Robinson, Miss Jennie McKee, Mrs. G. E. Day and Mrs. W. F. B. Peterson.

Some fifty or more couples were in attendance last evening and to one looking down from the side balcony the scene on the dance floor was a very pretty one. It is safe to say future ladies' nights of the New Temple Club will be anticipated with very keen pleasure.

ROBERT BROOKE FORTHOLD HIS DEATH IN SONNET

Rupert Brooke, one of the most promising of the young English poets, was killed during the naval operations in the Dardanelles a few days ago. He was a lieutenant in the naval reserve. His last voyage home was held in London, and appeared about the time the news of his death reached London. The sonnet, a eulogy of his death and is a pathetically beautiful bit of verse. It is as follows—

If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever England. There shall be
In that rich earth a richer dust concealed;
A dust whom England bore, shaped, made aware,
Gave once her flowers to love, her ways to roam,
A body of England's, breathing English air,
Washed by the rivers, blest by sun and home—
And think this heart, all evil washed away,
A pulse in the eternal mind, no less,
Gives somewhere back the thoughts you England gave,
Her sights and sounds, dreams happy as her day,
And laughter learnt of friends; and gentleness,
In hearts of peace, under an English heaven.
