Mrs. Irens at Archaeless Mr. C. H. Clerke and Mr. Howard Murchie were most cordially welcomed, home on Saturday after a long visit to the Pacific coast where they visited all

Bi. Croft Mall. One hundred said sweaty peopes of varied ages, sine and talent, participated in the Pardon, and under the entire direction of Miss. Hadon, presented a most charming entertainment of beauty and art. The first number on the programme was a some. "And a little child shall lead them," from a palating by Julien. In this, Mrs. Fredric T. Fots, Mrs. Hamen Grismmer, Miss Mabel Murchie, and little Miss Lois Grismer, Miss Mabel Murchie, and little Miss Lois Grismer, Miss Mabel Mischie, and little Miss Lois Grismer, and an ene gized at it it seemed as it it were chialled in Parian it was so statu esque and dream like. The next number was the Revels of the Naiads, with Mr. Leo Lamonde as "Neptune." In this acene the idea of enchanting airens or mermaids was carried out most beautifully, in the designing of the costumes which were see green with bodiess of silver scales and long graceful fas, which moved in perfect unison as they slowly and gracefully formed into all kinds of intricate figures in the mermaid dance. Miss Beasie McVey was the favored sea symph receiving the attention of "Neptune."

And then came the children in a "Midsummer Night Dream" with Miss Beasie Foster as 'Queen Mab." The curtain rose on a novel scene, and as if in a dream the stage was suddenly faled with myrkeds of bright hunch lutterfles, fairies, frogs, rose buds, grass hoppers and the tiniest of cupids The audience greeted the children with thunders of appiause. A dance by Beasie Foster, Kathleen McAllister, Emms Boardman, Sophia Livingston, capitivated all. The little cupids were Paul Lord, Fred and Kenneth Young and were the delight of all es pecially in their stately bows to the bouquet of sweet little rose buds. In the Spanish Fandango, Miss Hudson as the Queen and Mr. Hasen Grimmer as eavaller with his tenes senofts in beautiful rich costumes of black and yellow. This dance was most pleasing to the audience. The gryp-green enemanded by miss Hudson was both lovely and pathetic. This has been seen here before, but never given w Colonel W. B. King is slowly recovering from his illness.

Ose of the sad events of the week was the sudden death of Mrs. Sagefield Maxwell, at her home on Thursday evening. Mrs. Maxwell had been it for many weeks, but had seemingly recovered, but on Thursday evening at six o'clock, when passing from one room to another she suddenly fell to the floor and in a moment had passed away, heart disease being the cause. She leaves a husband and two sons. Messrs. Fredric and Charles Maxwell, and two daughters, Mrs. J. Walker Moore, and Miss Cora Maxwell, who most devotedly and tenderly cared for her mother during her long illness. The inneral eermonies took place from her residence on Sunday afternoon and was coaducted by Rev. Fredric Robertson of Trinity church. The floral tributes from sympathising friends were extremely rare and beautiful.
