

EMILY MONTAGUE. 231

where else. I extremely dread our party's being dissolyed, and wish the winter to last for ever, for I am afraid the spring will divide us.

Adieu! and believe me,

Yours,

ED. RIVERS.

To Miss RIVERS, Clarges Street.

Silleri, Jan. 9.

I BEGIN not to dislike the winter here; now I am used to the cold, I don't feel it so much: as there is no business done here in the winter, 'tis the season of general dissipation; amusement is the study
