

C245024

5.

respected spokesman - if, indeed, any government at all could be formed without a general election.

10. A general election on this issue at this time would certainly weaken Canada's war effort and might also result in a condition bordering on chaos in the next Parliament - and that at the most critical time for Canada in the history of the world.
11. Canada must remain united and strong if our country is to take its place and use its influence to ensure a stable peace settlement.

Whatever differences there may have been about the present war, there is no doubt about Canada's position, if there should be another war - robot bombs and rockets a foretaste of the future.

Need of strong government to speak for Canada in world councils if there is to be any future for the next generation.

(Quote Cardinal Villeneuve on extending our horizon beyond this continent.)