

THE WARFARE OF SCIENCE WITH THEOLOGY

"It is written unmistakably from the side of scientific investigation. . . . It is the most capable and convincing book that has been written on this subject."—London Expository Times.

"Dr. White's book should stand beside the 'History of Doctrine' in every theological seminary."—The Outlook, New York.

"Few books published in this impatient age can be so truly said to represent the study and reflection of a lifetime. It bears on every page the stamp of maturity."—The Independent, New York.

"Dr. White's . . . book should be carefully studied by all tutors in theological colleges lest perchance their students make the same mistakes as did their forefathers."—Nature, London.

"An immense expanse of material, ancient, mediæval, and modern, lay before him. He has threaded the maze with clear-sighted wisdom, chosen the most apt illustrations, and exhibited the course of the campaigns with equal terseness and lucidity. His style is plain and unvarnished. The grand manner of Gibbons he seeks not to imitate. On the other hand, he avoids the loose and slipshod. Direct, concise, unflinchingly interesting, well attested by authorities, Dr. White's volumes provide a most valuable garner of information."—The Literary Guide.

"Of President White's monumental work on the Warfare of Science with Theology we have only words of praise. . . . He has treated almost every phase of this great struggle; he has everywhere written in a spirit of perfect fairness. With all this President White is a master of English prose; his style is stately and lucid, rising, at times, to noble eloquence. It is nowhere dull or obscure or undignified. His work is one of the great works in our century; it should find a place on every scholar's desk, in every library, in the mind of every thinking man."—President Jordan in The Dial.

"The book had undoubtedly considerable influence in deterring the Republicans from nominating President White for Governor in 1891, because of the fear that excerpts from it would have an injurious effect upon the canvass. Now President White speaks for himself and declares his belief that 'in the field left to them—their proper field—the clergy will more and more, as they cease to struggle against scientific methods and conclusions, do work even nobler and more beautiful than anything they have hitherto done.'"—Rochester (N.Y.) Post Express.

"The story of the struggle of searchers after truth with the organized forces of ignorance, bigotry, and superstition is the most inspiring chapter in the whole history of mankind. That story has never been better told than by the ex-President of Cornell University in these two volumes. . . . A wonderful story it is that he tells."—London Daily Chronicle.
