Griffith, Rev. William Elliot, D.D., b. 1813, in Philadelphia; served in the civil war in 1863; graduated at Rutgers College in 1869; went to Japan in 1870 to organize schools there on the American plan. He was superintendent of education in the province of Echigo in 1871, and professor of physics in the Imperial University of Tokio in 1872-74. On returning to the United States he studied theology at New Brunswick, N.J., and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City; was pastor of a Reformed Church in Schenectady, N.Y., from 1877 till 1880, when he became pastor of the Shawmut Congregational Church in Boston, Mass. 1. "Mr. Griffith has given us a panoramic view of Japanese history, bringing into prominence many of the most important periods. He accompanies this with a stimulating commentary, which is enlivened by the fact that it is the language of one who, living among the people, has attempted to unravel the causes of recent events in the light of the past. . . . The whole book bears evidence of being the work of an intelligent and thoughtful observer, who was determined to be impartial; and it is undoubtedly the most important contribution that has appeared with regard to Japan."—Nation, xxiii, 316.
