JUNE.—The foregoing writer says "This fact should never be lost sight of by the cultivator of the soil, that capital well and judiciously applied upon the farm, if not in the first year, is certain, nevertheless, in the next and follow ag years, to ensure an ample return. But do what we will in the use of all the skill, capital and industry we possess, "there are times," as my father used to say, "when the seasons will make fools of us all"; this, however, must not deter us in our best endeavours to overcome difficulties, for there is nothing in this world more truly grateful than the soil for generous and kind treatment." I have profited greatly from this advice.
