CRESCENTS TAKE A FALL OUT OF THE SAINTS.

Won From St. Bon's Last Night--Score, 4-2--Poor Lighting of Rink Again Cause of Many Complaints.

Table with columns for 'The Teams', 'Goals', '1st Half', '2nd Half', 'Penalties', and 'The Game'. Lists players like C. Thomas, G. Herder, A. Joy, etc.

Visits were exchanged without scoring, until Godden seized an opportunity and notched up the equalizer in 24 minutes. Shortall was then sent to the boards for 2 minutes for fouling Hutchings, which was the only penalty for the evening.

Notes on the Game. Individually St. Bon's played well but their combination was poor. There was some excuse, however, as the ice was very heavy.

The Crescents are not up to past years. Last night their old time dash was sadly lacking.

The players are again complaining of the poor light. Surely with such large attendances, the rink can afford to spend a little more money and satisfy the needs of the players.

SEA TOOK BIG TOLL OF LIVES DURING 1913; HEAVY PROPERTY LOSS

'Volturno' Disaster, With Loss of 135 Lives, The Most Sensational of The Year--Liabilities of Underwriters for Shipwrecks Totalled $32,042,550.

Some illuminating figures have been compiled which give a startling idea of the toll of the sea. Since the beginning of January, 1913, the liabilities of underwriters up to and including the end of November amounted to $32,042,550 or $1,000,000 in advance for the same period last year.

During the eleven months of last year there were 5,332 accidents of all descriptions to vessels, of 500 responsible for 1,820, stranding for 1,325, weather damage for 895, and fire and explosions for 423. No fewer than 216 ships--6 British and 154 foreign, aggregating 488,910 tons--were totally lost.

The most sensational disaster of the year was the destruction of the liner Volturno by fire in mid-Atlantic with the loss of 136 souls, while more than 500 passengers and crew were rescued by a fleet of eleven rescue ships.

ON VERY GOOD TERMS WITH EACH OTHER.

Germany Says She Doesn't Feel in Scrapping Mood Towards Great Britain Just Now, Thank You.--Thought Winston Churchill's Proposition Absolutely Impracticable.

Berlin, Feb. 4.--Anglo-German relations are "very good," according to the German Foreign Minister, Gottlieb von Jagow. This utterance in the Imperial Parliament is the strongest official characterization of relations between the two countries for many years.

Herr von Jagow declared that tension was steadily decreasing, and mutual residences were now marked by reciprocal trust. Admiral von Tirpitz, Minister of Marine, declared that he had nothing to add to his statement of last year that England's proposed 16 to 20 ratio was acceptable.

Both expressed the opinion that Winston Churchill's official suggestion of a year's naval building holiday was impracticable.

WILSON PERMITS THE EXPORTATION OF ARMS TO MEXICO.

Citizens of the United States May Now Supply Either of the Contending Parties With Munitions of War.--This Action Strongly Condemned in England.

Washington, Feb. 4.--President Wilson has removed all restrictions against the exportation of munitions of war into Mexico, placing the contending elements on a basis of equality with respect to the purchase of arms and supplies. The executive order emphasized that it was the desire of the United States to be in the same position of neutrality towards contending factions in Mexico, as were the other Powers.

Mexico City, Feb. 4.--Conferring with President Huerta, the Minister of Foreign Affairs said that foreigners had nothing to fear; that if the United States lifted the embargo on arms it would not greatly help the rebels; but that what Mexico had most to fear was that the States would extend financial aid to the rebels.

London, Feb. 4.--Commenting on the President's proclamation removing the embargo on the exportation of arms to Mexico, the Telegraph declares the measure unparalleled in modern history, and equivalent to a recognition of the rebels as belligerents, creating the precedent that the President hoped to avoid. The flight of Americans from Mexico would, perhaps, be wise, says the Telegraph, for a man who fought his way to power over the corpse of his predecessor is not to be trifled with.

LINE A MILE LONG AT THE GAS YARDS.

Trying to Get Coke as Substitute For Coal Which is Now a Luxury to Londoners.

London, Jan. 31.--The labor unrest shows no sign of settlement, and it is likely to become more acute this week, when it is feared 200,000 men will be involved. At the present time 15,000 coal porters and 30,000 men in the building trades are out. The men in the building trades were locked out Saturday because they refused to sign an agreement to work with non-union men.

With coal costing two and three shillings a hundredweight the poor of London are feeling the pinch of the cold weather, as the price is really prohibitive. Despite the vigilance of the police, quantities of coal have been thrown from carts by strikers, and hundreds of boys, acting as accomplices, collected the coal from the roadways.

The coal yards presented an unusual appearance Saturday. Besides students there were gold-braided uniformed porters from the various hotels and men belonging to the Irish Guards, the Grenadiers and the Army Service Corps requisitioning coal for their barracks, while clerks and messengers toiled at the unaccustomed job of coal-heaving.

The yards of the gas companies were thronged by thousands of men, women and children who clamored for coke, as an announcement had been posted that there was no advance in the price of coke. There was a line of people nearly a mile long at these yards awaiting their turn to buy coke. Luckily the supply was most adequate.

PATHETIC DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN ONTARIO LUMBERWOODS.

Man Overcome With Fatal Attack of Appendicitis When Hunting Alone--Attending Doctor Takes Poison By Mistake.

Thessalon, Ont., Jan. 30.--J. J. Huston, of Genelle street, who had been a resident of Thessalon nearly twenty years, died after two or three days of suffering. Mr. Huston, who is a prospector of long experience, having covered hundreds of square miles of Northern Ontario territory in recent years, went out hunting towards the end of last week, and left a camp, where he had men engaged taking out pulpwood, on Friday morning, intending to visit some animal traps. Saturday morning he was found lying in the snow about a mile from one of the Thessalon Lumber Co.'s camps (Farrell's camp). His face and limbs were badly frozen, and he was carried to the camp while Dr. Spence was sent for. When the doctor arrived he found that an attack of appendicitis had been the cause of Mr. Huston's collapse.

The doctor had just left Mr. Huston's house and gone to his own residence and office, when it appears that he took what he supposed to be a stimulant but by mistake was poison. Realizing what he had done, he called to Mrs. Spence for milk, but in a few minutes he was dead.

Dr. Sproule, of Massey, who had been called by Dr. Spence to consult and assist at the operation, arrived at 5.30 p.m., shortly after the sudden death of Dr. Spence. He concluded that Mr. Hudson was too far gone for an operation, and later in the evening the latter passed away.
