

the school, he was mistaken. Under the Ross government French schools had sprung up and had been encouraged in order that the Ross school might get the French votes, and the speaker would tell Mr. Rowell to be clear on the point. Was he for the French language, the English language or both? Is he going to make us all French?

Mr. Rowell said that Mr. Rowell's select eighteen had passed a resolution. Mr. Rowell said that he was one of the group of Mr. Rowell's select eighteen in ten years ago and that he had been a supporter of the bar policy, and that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy. He said that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy, and that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy.

Mr. Rowell said that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy, and that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy. He said that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy, and that he was now a supporter of the hotel policy.

ALL THE BODIES MUST BE BURIED WITHOUT DELAY

Forty or More Still Unidentified Remain at Quebec Morgue.

(By Special Wire to The Courier)

QUEBEC, June 19.—It was stated today by Coroner Jolicoeur that forty or more unidentified bodies were still remaining at Lepine's morgue, and that they must be buried without delay, since their condition was becoming such as to demand prompt interment. It is likely that they will be buried within a day or two.

A triple funeral was held yesterday afternoon when the bodies of Miss Swindhurst, of England, Mr. F. W. Howes of Birmingham and the body of the unknown woman recently found at Grand Machins, forty miles below Rimouski, were interred. The body of the latter woman reached Quebec yesterday morning and gave a terrible insight into what might be expected if the hull of the Empress is ever emptied of its dead cargo of dead. The body was badly decomposed, while the whole face had been eaten away by fish, so that only it was impossible to attempt identification, but its condition was such that no attempt at embalming could be thought of, and it had to be hastily buried in a casket and buried without delay.

The three bodies were taken to St. Matthews Church, where the funeral service was read by Rev. Dean Williams and interment took place in the lot secured by the Canadian Pacific at Mount Hermon Cemetery.

MILITANT ATTEMPT

LONDON, June 19.—An attempt to burn a church at Beckenham, a southern suburb of London, was made by an "arson squad" of militant suffragettes in the course of last night. The flames, however, were quickly extinguished and the damage done was very small.

HAS MR. ROWELL AGREED TO THE BILINGUALISTS?

French-Canadian Ultimatum Rejected by Whitney, Accepted by Rowell.

(By Special Wire to The Courier)

TORONTO, June 19.—Something akin to an explosion is expected when the details are learned of the French-Canadian ultimatum to the Ontario Government on the matter of bilingual schools. This ultimatum, it is understood, has been laid before the Government, and Mr. Rowell within the last few days, and the demand is far reaching and imperative. The vital clause is that in bilingual schools where French only is taught, that French be the sole language of "instruction and communication."

The storm is likely to center about the fact that proof is claimed that this circular, signed by leading French-Canadian authorities throughout Ontario, inspired the speech of N. W. Rowell at Cornwall on Saturday last, and that whereas the Whitney Government in the words of Hon. Mr. Lamas and Pinc has been sworn to stand by the present regulations, Mr. Rowell has agreed to support the French-Canadians.

House Cleaning. "There is going to be a thorough housecleaning over this," said a prominent man. Rowell is plainly counting on gaining the French-Canadian ridges by his adoption of their appeal.

To show that the Opposition leaders was not being misjudged he quoted from the address of a French speaker at the Cornwall meetings (delivered in French and not reported), wherein he had called upon the assembly to support the Liberal party for they would gain their "educational rights." Immediately following came Mr. Rowell's speech containing the statement that if French-Canadian parents desired their children to study French in the schools he could see objection from no citizen of the province.

Sir James Firm. The letter sent to the government contains two other clauses to which violent exception is taken, and which Sir James Whitney in repeated declarations has refused to countenance. It demands that in all two-room schools the attendance be divided and that French be taught in one room and English in another. The same idea is applied to one-room schools where the class would be divided and French be used for one group and English for the other. Thus in a single room a double system of teaching would be instituted.

The placing of these demands before both Government and Opposition has been done in the utmost secrecy and the fact that the outcome was to be considered an ultimatum in the present election was emphasized.

Land a Pitcher. Fred Nicholls, a big right hand pitcher with Jackson last year, has been secured by Brantford.

The Telephone. Whenever mother telephones. She talks about a lot of things. So father only sits and groans. Whenever anybody rings. "The season's earlier this year." "I haven't got my new straw hat." "I can't, because my child is here." "What did her husband say to that?"

And father only says "Hello!" And takes the phone up in his hand. Is that you, Hawkins? This is Snow. I wired Chicago. Understand? I think our man intends to fight. But we can best him if we try. You'd better do so, then, to-night. See you to-morrow. Well, good-bye.

And sister says, "Oh, is that you?" And then she fixes up her hair. "S if anybody could see through." "Oh, I don't know. Oh, I don't care." "I think I can if you insist." "And wasn't yesterday a dream?" "There's seven on the waiting list." "I do love strawberry ice cream." —St. Nicholas.

SCOTS GET NO EARLY DRAMS

New Ten o'clock Law in Force Over the Land—Little Objections Observed in Big Cities.

EDINBURGH, June 19.—The ten o'clock opening of public-houses under the Temperance (Scotland) Act, instead of at the old hour of eight, came into force recently all over Scotland in a very quiet way. Workmen in Edinburgh went to their work as usual as if no such change had taken place. There were no clamorous queues at 10 a.m. at the doors of the public houses in any of the districts of the city. Indeed, reports from all parts of the city which might be supposed would be most affected, show that no great resentment seems to have been manifested at the change, though, of course a theory cannot be based on the experience of a single day. Naturally enough the licensed holders look upon the curtailment of two business hours a day with no favor, especially as some of them regarded the selling of the "morning dram" as a profitable part of their trade.

Some of them estimate the loss they would likely suffer from the effect of the new regulation at as much as ten to twelve pounds a week. No Sale by Grocers. Licensed grocers are, of course, allowed to open as before at 8 o'clock for the sale of provisions only. Large numbers of people finding the doors of the public house closed made their way to the grocers' shops in the hope of persuading the shopmen to supply them with beer or whiskey in jug or bottle. Some were apparently astonished at being refused, and had failed to grasp the change in the law which had taken place. The police report that so far as they know the new regulation has been loyally observed, and that no infringements came under the notice of the staff on duty to see that the law was carried out. Licensed restaurants which have their bar closed at 10 o'clock, are also allowed to open at eight o'clock for the sale of food only, and while bars were closed until 10 a.m. the other portions of the restaurant premises were made use of by the public.

Expect Losses. The publicans in Market Street, which is in close proximity to the fruit market, think they will be severely hit by the latter opening provisions of the Act. One publican estimated that his loss would be from £8 to £10 a week to begin with. He said that by the time his shop was opened working men had reached their workshops, and the people living from distant parts by early trains; other predict that there may be an increase of absenteeism; while it is hinted that working men affected may ask for a change in their breakfast hour, so that it should extend over 10 a.m. On this point an interesting interview is given with an employer whose men take breakfast before they go to work at 7.45 a.m. and have their first break at the dinner hour. The results he describes are important to be noted by those who may be inclined to agitate for a change in another direction. An interview was also given by Sir Thomas Clouston, superintendent of the Morningside Asylum, on the deleterious effect of morning drinking.

The Royal Mile. Though there are as many as between thirty and forty licensed premises in the stretch from Holyrood Palace to the Castle, known as the Royal Mile, there was little evidence yesterday morning that an act of Parliament had decreed that the morning drink could not be procured till ten o'clock. There were loiterers within view of a number of public houses shortly before that hour, but they were not numerous. The proprietor of one of the largest public houses in the district stated that his forenoon drawing revealed a distinct drop, but his view was that in such a locality, if the money was not spent in the morning, it would be spent in the evening. His strongest objection to the new enactment was in regard to the position of excursionists during the summer months. "Thousaas" came to the city," he said, "especially on Saturdays, and if the weather was not propitious when they arrived sometimes after a tiresome journey from the North of England the shelter of a public house, where refreshment was obtainable, was almost necessary." Licensed grocers in the High Street and Cannongate, who were interviewed, stated that quite a number of people took the precaution of getting in drink supplies on the previous evening.

Glasgow and District. Both extreme supporters of measures of social reforms and extreme opponents must find much matter for disappointment in the lack of excitement, or even interest displayed in the inauguration of the new arrangements. There was no indication yesterday in Glasgow and neighborhood of popular feeling with regard to the truncation of the drinking day, and practically nothing to indicate that changes might be made in working

West's Crops Look B At This Time Than for Many Years

J. Bruce Walker Reports After an Extensive Trip Through the Prairie Provinces of the West.

WINNIPEG, June 19.—"I have just returned from an extensive tour of the Western Prairie Provinces, reaching into districts far removed from travel," said J. Bruce Walker, commissioner of immigration, to-day. "I went through Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta, and find that with more than copious rains during the latter part of last week there is every reason to believe the crop prospects today are better than they were at this season last year, or even for many years. "Wheat is looking unusually well, roots are strong and healthy and the plant growing up with amazing rapidity. "The general impression of the crop situation in the West is very gratifying," concludes Mr. Walker.

engaged at the market had gone. The loss of the latter trade that is the greatest penalty. It is principally a morning trade in this vicinity. Men come in from the outlying districts to the morning sales in the Waverley Market at an early hour, and before returning, as a rule, they had a snack and some refreshment. This opportunity is now denied to them.

Railway Bars. As the railway station bars open at six o'clock and supply alcoholic refreshments to those in possession of a railway ticket, say, to Musselburgh, it is conceivable that in the event of the stifling of very pronounced demand before 10 o'clock the railway bars would be the first to feel the effect. Inquiries yesterday, however, failed to elicit any appreciable difference from the ordinary business conducted prior to the passing of the Act, nor was there any evidence that consumers in the habit of drinking before ten in the morning had been diverted into this channel or had used the railway ticket as a pretext to secure refreshment.

Both extreme supporters of measures of social reforms and extreme opponents must find much matter for disappointment in the lack of excitement, or even interest displayed in the inauguration of the new arrangements. There was no indication yesterday in Glasgow and neighborhood of popular feeling with regard to the truncation of the drinking day, and practically nothing to indicate that changes might be made in working
