WHEN IS A MAN DRUNK?

Tests of the Police Doctors of the London Courts.

Mr. Plowden, the celebrated London magistrate, is always listened to with interest, and his latest opinion is attracting more than usual attention. In dismissing a taxi-cab driver who was charged with being drunk, he said he was not much influenced by the tests made by doctors at police stations.

Not long ago he was called upon to try a man charged with being drunk, where the doctor's test had been to make the man stand with his feet together, clasp his hands behind his head, and close his eyes. The doctor pointed out that the man, being drunk, could not do this, but he supported, but the magistrate doubted even his own power of maintaining his equilibrium under such a complicated test, and dismissed the case.

A favorite test of sobriety with police doctors is to make the accused person repeat some word or words. Their inability to do so correctly being considered proof of drunkenness; but here, again, a test which, if taken as final, could be made to prove the most sober person drunk, for there are words which few people can pronounce correctly with ease.

This, no doubt, was the view taken by the magistrate in dismissing a chauffeur who had come under the eye of the police, and failed to pronounce "sure main" after six attempts.

Not so fortunate, however, was the man who was tested with the lines: "When Britain first at Heaven's command Arose from out the azure main." He failed to "sure main," as well he might; but that was only a part of his ordeal—a preliminary trot, one might say. What sealed his doom—three shillings or five days—was the difficulty he experienced in touching his nose with his forefinger when he was standing with his feet together and eyes closed.

A far simpler and, it must be admitted, more conclusive proof of insobriety is the inability to fasten one's clothes. If a man cannot button his coat, presume, of course, that the necessary buttons and buttonholes are there—why, then, he must be drunk. So thought the Worcestershire magistrates who fined a man for drunkenness after he had unsuccessfully tried to button up his waistcoat.

In some parts of Ireland they have queer ideas as to whether a man is drunk or not. Some time ago a policeman was conveying a man whom he considered quite helpless to the police station, when an Irishwoman stopped him and asked him what he was doing. "I am taking this man to the station," said the constable; "he is drunk." "Drunk?" exclaimed the Irishwoman, in amazement. "Why, you must be dreaming. I saw one of his fingers move!"

Stood Up Apparently Dead.

The porters at Abbeville station, France, recently noticed the curious attitude of a man who had been standing for a considerable time motionless before the board on which the delays of the train service are recorded. It was observed that his eyes were tightly closed. As he still remained without movement, an official touched him on the shoulder. The man, it is said, immediately fell into his arms, his body absolutely rigid. A doctor who was called diagnosed the case as one of catalepsy. It seems that for a considerable time the man had been standing in the middle of the busy station in an unconscious condition.

Ancient Science.

It is generally supposed that those who combated the opinion that the earth was a sphere when Columbus proposed his great voyage were only giving expression to opinions that had always been entertained. But the fact is that long before the Christian era the Greek and Egyptian philosophers contained the idea that the earth was round and knew vastly more about eclipses, the motions of the moon and other astronomical matters than many do even today. The idea of Columbus had been anticipated by more than sixteen centuries.

Couldn't Resist.

Willie and Tommy were each given a bit of auntie's wedding cake, nicely wrapped in white tissue paper, by their romantic mother. The cake was to be placed under a pillow for the wee boys to "dream on." After the prayers and the "good nights" had been duly said the mother retired to the sitting room. Shortly afterward she heard the announcement in a clear, boyish treble: "Mother, Willie's eaten his dream!"—London Telegraph.

Very Much Settled.

An elderly woman, on being examined before the magistrate of Buxary as to her place of legal settlement, was asked under what pillow for the wee boys to "dream on" she had supposed that her deceased husband's settlement was at St. Andrews. The old lady looked earnestly at the judge and said: "He was born there, he was married there, and they buried him there; and if that isn't settling him there, I'd like to know what is!"

She Was So Timid.

A military man laughed at a timid little woman because she was alarmed at the noise of a cannon when a salute was fired. He subsequently married that timid little woman, and six months afterward he took off his boots in the hall when he came in late at night.

The Silent Father.

"I'll bet that man is the father of six or seven children." "Why?" "If he had less than three he'd be bragging about them."

The Natural Part.

"She seems to be a natural flirt," he said. "Natural!" the woman impatiently replied. "There's nothing natural about her but her framework."

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Slatery and family wish to extend to their many friends hearty thanks for the kindness shown them in their recent bereavement.

UGH! NOT CALOMEL, OIL OR SALTS, BUT DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Give your stomach, liver 30 feet of bowels a thorough cleansing without gripe or nausea. Ends headache, biliousness, indigestion and constipation.

This wonderful fruit laxative acts as a liver and bowel cleanser—tonic—not as an irritant. Its action is natural and gentle—no gripping. It is delicious—no dreading. It is positive and prompt—no waiting. If your stomach is sour and filled with vile gases, your head aches, or you are bilious, nervous, dizzy, half sick, your tongue coated, your thirty feet of bowels clogged with waste not properly carried off—don't wait. Surely take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs to-night, and in the morning all constipated waste sour bile, gases and poisons will move on and out of the system—gently but thoroughly—no gripping—no nausea—no weakness. In the old days people let these matters run until they needed a large dose of physic, then they took something like castor oil, salts or cathartics that meant abuse to the bowels. These are the days of gentle and natural—the days of Syrup of Figs. This way you are not drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics can not cause injury. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other so-called Fig Syrup is an imitation often meant to deceive you. Refuse such trash contempt.
