Miss A. Clark, of the Richmond Sunday school, gave a short, interesting report of her visit to the Hind Sunday school. The other delegates failed to report. The new officers elected were: President, James Bennie; Secretary, Mrs. M. McKenzie; Treasurer, Mrs. M. Rankin.

Warren Martin, who is always welcome, here, gave some valuable suggestions to infant class workers and then addressed the children on the lesson of the lost sheep, closing with an earnest prayer for the work and workers. The superintendents of the various schools were then called upon various schools were then called upon to give helpful hints. Geo. conversion of the scholars.

Rev. R. Redmond, of Charing Cross, gave some valuable suggestions on the true method of questioning and of receiving answers, illustrating by our Saviour's own method. The afternoon session then closed with prayer.

The Dover Presbyterian choir led song service at the opening of the evening session, and the chair was occupied by James Bennie.

DUTIES OF PARENTS. The first address was given by Rev. I Redmond on "Parental Duty and Respons He said there are duties that parents owe to God, to themselves and to one another. Responsibility implies a trust which must be answered for. No greater duties are given to men than those given to parents and with those duties comes a corresponding honor and responsibility. Every child must be either a blessing or a curse to himself, his parents and the community. Which he will be depends upon the parents. Most parents think they have fulfilled their duty when they have fall, clothed, educated and provided homes for their children but they have scarcely touched the fringe of their duty and responsibility. Children demand from their parents health of body and mind and preparation for the child should bility" to which all gave earnest atter mand from their parents heaten or body and mind and preparation for the child should be made a hundred years before its birth. If children are well born it is half the battle of the Christian life. How many suffer from inherited thirst for strong drink. A strong appeal was make to parents to take up the study of God's word in the home and to bring the children into loving touch with

The address supplied a long-felt want and The address supplied a long to the audience.

The closing address was given by Rev. J. J. Ross, and was deeply impressed upon his hearers by his own it was a long to the control of the long to the l earnest, inspiring manner. It was entitled, "Moral Metamorphosis," and was based upon Romans XII; 1 and 2,

"Be ye not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds." These words, he said, were addressed to Christians, those called to be saints. The world here means the age between the first and second advent of Christ. Christians should not be conformed to this age or the spirit of this age, which is selfishness. They should not be conformed to the pursuits of this world which are resition possession, please. which are position, possession, pleasure. Many Christians are striving for position in social circles, for for position in social circles, for pleasure, being lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. We should seek a higher, a divine spirit.

They should not be confounded to the domination of the age, which according to Bible teaching is the power of Satan, As surely as there is a personal God, a personal Son, a personal Spirit, so surely is there a personal devil. But the time will come when this domination will be at an end, for God declared on Calvary that the this domination will be at an end, for God declared on Calvary that the world would be free from the power of the evil one. To be transformed is to be changed from a lower condition to a higher one, and is accomplished by the renewing of our minds and the presenting of our bodies a living sacrifice to God. We do not value these bodies as we should God has redeemed our bodies as well as our souls, Feet, hands, heart, eyes, brain, all belong to Jesus. If we walk with Jesus we will love what He loves and will become like Him. The neares we keep to the cross the more we grow like Him.

The thanks of the convention were tendered to Revs. Ross and Redmond for their kindly aid.

Of all foolish excuses the most foolish are those offered for failure to accept God's free gift of life, large and eternal, in his Son Jesus.

A Well Dressed Pauper. In all large cities there is a way of getting rid of undesirable persons by neans of giving them a "pauper's ass" to some city to which they want

It seems that a lawyer who is quite well known about town and who, like many other persons, is not averse to traveling on a free ticket had made several requests to a certain official for a pass to New York. He had been re fused a number of times, but with a persistence worthy of a better cause he entinued to bore his official friend. Finally he was supplied with the mag-ic pasteboard, and without looking at it he went to the railroad station and paid for his seat in the parlor car. When the conductor came along, the lawyer, who, by the way, is a man of rather imposing appearance, was read-ing a paper and with the nonchalance supposed to be second nature to those who never pay their carfare held out his pass, never even glancing at the conductor. That official took the pass, read it carefully, looked at the holder of it and then examined the pass again with considerable care. The lawyer, noticing that the conductor seemed to be giving the pass more than ordinary attention, stared at the official with a manner that indicated that he might at least be a director and asked with considerable warmth, "Anything the matter with that pass?

The conductor looked at his questioner in a quizzical way and then said, "No; the pass is all right, but you are certainly the best dressed pauper I ever saw."

How Moody Got Out of It. Many were the interesting experiences belonging to the first Northfield conference called by D. L. Moody. One especially shows Mr. Moody himself in his varying phases. It was the conversation hour at noon, and about 100 nen were sitting under the tent on Round Top

Mr. Moody, leaning sturdily against the tent pole, led the meeting. Suddenly there came from him the plump question, "Brethren, how many of you have so grown in grace that you can bear to have your faults told?"

Many hands went up. Quick as a flash, but neither sharply nor insultingly, Mr. Moody turned to a young minister and said:

"Brother, you have spoken 13 times in 12 days here and perhaps shut out 12 other good men from speaking." It was true. The young man had been presuming and officious. He had held up his hand, but he could not bear to be chidden, and now he stoutly defended himself, only making matters worse. Then another minister broke forth and berated Mr. Moody for his bluntness. The latter blushed, but listened until the reproof was done. Then he suggestively covered his face and spoke through his fingers, "Brethren, I admit the fault my friend charges me with; but, brethren, I did not hold up my hand!"-Youth's Companion.

To Cure Insomnia. An English physician of distinction tions for cure of insomnia: In cases where the patient sleeps for an hour or two, then wakens with a start and cannot go to sleep again the physician recommends that a hot water compress be laid on the abdomen. When one cannot go to sleep on retiring and is unable to dismiss thoughts that have occupied the day, it is advised that the patient keep his feet in water as hot as he can bear comfertably for ten minutes before going to bed. He should then put on a pair of thin cotton hose wrung out of cold water and over those a pair of woolen ones. A more powerful remedy is a mustard sitz bath, with the proportion of a teacupful of mustard to a gallon of hot water. He should remain seated in the bath from 10 to 20 minutes. In many cases a reclining bath in tepid water is useful as a sedative.

The Cunniest Story? Sir Wilfrid Laurier once said that he considered the following the funniest story in the world. Do you agree with

A gentleman was once being taken over an idiot asylum. He asked an attendant how they knew when an idiot was considered to be sufficiently restored to sanity to be discharged.

"Oh," said the attendant, "it is easily managed. We take them into a yard where there are several troughs. turn on the taps and then give the idiots buckets to bail out the water and empty the troughs. Many of them go on bailing away while the tap keeps running, but them that isn't idiots stops the tap."

Subsequent Reflection. "Oh, what a beautiful water lily!" No sooper had the maiden attered these words than Archie Sixcap resolutely waded out after it. He sank in mud up to his waist at

But he didn't get the lily. It was still yards away from him and in deeper mud.

In the Business. "Children," said Aunt Mary, "you have a new little brother. He came this morning while you were asleep."
"Did be?" exclaimed the eldest.
"Then I know who brought him." "Who was it?" asked Aunt Mary.

In the early part of his career he settled in Lexington, Va., where he found the society most congenial, though the clients seen what recalcitrant to the young lawyer. He joined a debating society at length, but for several meetings he remained silent listener. One evening, after a lengthy debate the subject was being put to a when Clay was beard to observe softly to a friend that the matter in question was by no means exhausted. He was at once asked to speak and after some hesitation rose to his feet. Finding himself thus unexpectedly confronted by an audience, he was covered with confusion and began, as he had frequently done in imaginary appeals to the court, "Gentlemen of the jury."

A titter that ran through the audience only served to heighten his embarrassment, and the obnoxious phrase fell from his lips again. Then he gathered himself together and launched in to a peroration so brilliantly lucid and sloped that it carried the house by storm and laid the cornerstone to his future greatness, his first case coming to him as a result of this speech which some consider the finest he ever made.-Collier's Weekly.

Odd Ideas of Providence. The temperance lecturer, John B. Gough, had occasion in one of his addresses to refer to the indiscriminate and arbitrary yet consoling doctrine of Providence. He said: "Some people have strange ideas on this matter. Once when a ship was in danger a lady went to the captain in great distress. We must trust in Providence, madam, said he. 'Goodness gracious, is it as bad as that?' she cried.

"A washerwoman had her little shan ty burned down. She stood before the wreck and, lifting her eyes to heaven and shaking her fist, exclaimed, 'You see if I don't work on Sundays to pay

"In the firth of Forth a vessel struck on a rock, and a tug was drawing nigh to the rescue. A boy, much alarmed, was clinging to his mother. She said, Ye must pit yer trust in Providence, I will, mither, as soon as get into that ither boat.'

"In New York a Dutchman with companion went into Delmonico's to get lunch. They were charged $6. One of the men began to swear, as he thought the charges excessive. 'Don't you swear,' said the other. 'Providence has punished that man Delmonico very bad already.' 'How is that? How has he punished him? 'Why, I've got my pockets full of his forks and spoons.'

Etiquette In 1624. Here is a curious extract from the court regulations of the Hofburg for the year 1624 on the etiquette to be observed by officers when invited to the royal table. The regulation begins by stating that officers usually behave un der such circumstances "with gre liteness and good breeding, like true and worthy cavallers," but that the emperor thinks it necessary to issue the following directions for the use inexperienced cadets: "1. Officers should come to the palace handsomely dressed and not enter the room in a half drunken state.

"2. When they are at table, they should not rock about on their chairs nor sit back and stretch out their legs. "3. They should not drink after each mouthful, as by so doing they will very soon get drunk, nor drink more than half a glass at a time, and before drinking they should wipe their lips and moustachios.

"4. They should not put their hand in the dishes nor throw bones under the table.

"5. They should not lick their fingers nor drink so brutally as to fall off their chairs."

A celebrated but very vain and over bearing French painter in Paris had pet dog; that was taken ill, and he had the audacity to send for one of the leading physicians in the capital, on the assumption that a veterinary surgeon was not good enough for the valuable dog of so great a personage as himself.

The physician who had been honored with the summons was at first petrified at the impertinence of the notion, but soon recovered his equanimity and returned the following message to the knight of the brush:

"Would M. M- be good enough to step over to my house, as I have a couple of new window shutters that want painting?"

Mount Marcy.

Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in the Adirondacks, is very uneasy, with volcanic tendency. This mountain is one of the curiosities of the Adirondack section, and it is said to be the first mountain in the world to have received the cooling breezes after the chaos period, and to this fact is attributed the continued salubrity of the air and general healthfulness of the Adlrondack mountains.

"Gee whiz! That blamed watch stopped again! What an awful har that jeweler is!" "What's the matter?"

The little that I ate did not agree with me; bowels constipated, and life was a misery to me. I wrote to Dr. Pierce, giving the symptoms, and asked for advice. You advised me to try the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' so I began the use of it, and after taking four bottles I felt so well that I went to work, but soon got worse, so I again began the use of it, and used it shout eight weeks longer, when I was permanently cured. YANKEES TO SWAP LAND. husetts and Rhode Island Talking Massachusetts and Rhode laised Talking of a Trade.

'A Providence correspondent writes to the New York Times as follows: Within a few weeks the States of Shode Island and Massachusetts will be engaged in exchanging territory with each other, and the mea who make maps will have a task of some magnitude upon their hands. The outline of this State is not exactly symmetrical now, and, unless all signs metrical now, and, unless all signs fall, it will look, after the exchanging process is over, as though somebody had bitten pieces out of the border line in various places.

It is a good many years now since these two Values of States approach in these two Yankee States engaged in the genuine Yankee occupation of swapping land. Something like twenty-five years ago the town of Paw-tucket wanted a piece of the town of Seekonk, which was just over the Blackstone River, in the Bay State. About the same time the State of Massachusetts got its eye on what is now the City of Fall River, and which was then a part of Rhode Island.

It is the City of Pawtucket which is responsible for the present movement to exchange land in this way: Some time ago James Potter, a machine manufacturer of that city, became interested in the Howard & Bulleuch terested in the Howard & Bulleugh apany of Manchester, England. This is one of the tablishments of its kind in the United Kingdom, and the idea of locating a branch in America struck the membe of the concern as a good one. Mr. Potter was put in charge of the mat-

When he came to look around for suitable location for an American branch of the works, his mind naturally reverted to the advantages of New England. He viewed various sites, and finally selected a large tract of land on the edge of the City of Paw-tucket. The land spread out into the town of Attleborough, Mass., and, town of Attleborough, Mass., and, after the factories were constructed, the disadvantages of having part of the works in one State and part in another became evident. So, after a great deal of talk, Pawticket has decided to North Tiverton. deal of talk, Pawticket has decided to urge the exchange of North Tiverten, which Fall River wants, for Attleborough. It seems probable that some kind of amicable arrangement can be arrived at, and then the bills will pass the Legislature and the Great and General Court, and the people who sell geographies can issue new editions and make another honest dollar out of the towns and cities and States which furnish free text books.
