Here is a wrinkle for a tea maker. Measure out less when you use MORSE'S than you were doing when you used other teas. The point is that MORSE'S goes further, makes more cups to the pound. Good tea too, is MORSE'S the best you can get in any part of the world.

Judge Webster held court at the Town Hall on Monday morning when a batch of cases under the Children's Protection Act were dealt with. Mr. H. Stairs, agent of the Children's Society of Kings county, acting in the interest of the child.

We have had the opportunity of privately viewing Mr. Graham's colored scenic photographs and have no hesitancy in saying that they are the finest work of its kind we have ever seen. We advise our readers to be on hand to see them to-morrow even if you do not care to buy. We think you will.

Citizens are awaiting with interest the installation of the new lights which are to be provided for the business section of the town. These lights should be furnished with globes similar to those in front of the post office, and if placed alternately on either side of the street should present a fine appearance and effectively light Main street in a manner creditable to our town.

A very successful young peoples' social was held last Friday evening at St. Andrews church. There was a large number present including the Presbyterian students at the Acadia institutions. The social took the form of a Halloween party and the school room of the church was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Various games were played, bounteous refreshments served, and all had a most enjoyable time.

A very pleasant reception was given at the Acadia Memorial Gymnasium on Thursday evening of last week by the Student Christian Movement of Acadia to the students and faculties of the three institutions. The Mount Allison football team were also guests. The gymnasium was gayly decorated for the occasion with bunting and banners and the large number present had a most enjoyable evening.

A new business undertaking in Wolfville is the Sterling Realty and Insurance Service, an announcement of which appears in another place in this paper. This service provides for the best information regarding all insurance propositions and real estate transactions, and is seeking patronage from the people of this vicinity. They aim to bring those who wish to sell and those who wish to buy property together in such a manner as to be mutually beneficial.

The announcement of F. W. Bartheaux in this issue should be interesting to most of our readers. In future Mr. Bartheaux is undertaking to give our people an opportunity to save money when buying groceries if they are willing to pay cash and carry their purchases home with them. Often this class of customers are compelled to help to bear the loss occasioned by bad bills and to pay for the delivery of goods to those who require free delivery. Mr. Bartheaux's experiment will be watched with interest and he should be given a fair chance to prove his theory correct.

I'D TELL THE WORLD

Your business principles may be right—your goods the best—your service to your customers faultless—but the public has got to know. Keep your talking always before the public—get in the glare of favorable publicity. The merit of your proposition must be made known. An oil indication in your yard is of no benefit until you advertise it. Success comes by focusing the diverging rays of public opinion on what you have to offer.

KIDS MAKE FISTS FLY

Good fist fights wherein the villain is knocked cold by the hero are to be seen in many photoplays, but Wesley Barry in his latest screen play, Gus Edwards' "School Days", which comes to the Opera House Nov. 13-14, furnishes a thriller when he encounters an expensively dressed little boy of wealthy parents who calls him a rube.

The fight happened when Wesley, upon arriving at the palatial residence of a Long Island family, tries to become chummy with his new found friends. On the lawn he saw across a low hedge a little girl and boy about his own age quietly playing under the care of a maid and a man-servant. In one bound Wesley cleared the hedge intent on making new acquaintances.

"Bet I can lick you," he calmly informed the other boy.

In big city amusement the well dressed lad looked Wesley over. "How's crops, Rube?" And then the fight was on. The butler finally pulled the boys apart and deposited Wesley unceremoniously on the other side of the hedge. For the freckled-faced youngster had mauled the wealthy boy into a pulp.

Indignantly Wesley hurried in to his new guardians.

"Who's them kids next door?" he asked.

"That's little Dorothy Lee, her servants and her cousin," he was informed.

Her servants! That was new thought for Wesley.

"I can have anything I want, can I?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Then get me twice as many servants—but no cousins!"
