A meeting of baseball managers will be called for next week to consider the proposition to form a district baseball league. The promoters have given up hope of getting Loudon and Guelph in line this season, and the proposition now is for Hamilton, Brantford, Woodstock and Toronto clubs to hook up. The meeting will likely be held in Brantford.

A meeting of those who are favorable to arranging an inter-city league, Hamilton and Brantford, will be held here to-morrow night. It is not likely, however, that this will materialize, as Brantford would not be a drawing card here. Brantford in a four-city league would do better. In case the proposition to form a four-city league does not go through, the fans here will have to fall back on a city league or an intercity league with Toronto.

A lot of interest is being shown in Yussif Mahmout, the great Turkish wrestler, who will wrestle here on Sat-urday night. The sale of seats opens at 6 o'clock this evening at Billy Car-roll's cigar store.

Heartily sick of the capricious and exasperating performances of the climate, which have kept us hanging for six weeks between hope and despair, we have finally abandoned the idea of natural ice, and our enthusiasm has concentrated upon the ice rink at Crossmyloof, where on a grand board and under unalterable conditions, a great international tournament has been going forward. It has been a wretched season from the country curlers' point of view, and all our hopes of meeting the Canadian on open ice and under conditions really characteristic of Scottish curling, have come to nought, but Crossmyloof has given us a worthy second line of defence. Stanley Cup is Badly Battered.

Buffalo, March 18 .- Yussif Mahmout, he Turk wrestler, made good his boast he would give Jim McDonough "some pointers" to take back to Cham pion Frank Gotch, for last night, at the Lafayette. Theatre, he won his handicap match with the Winnipeg man, and had nearly half an hour to spare. Mahmout undertook to throw his opponent three times within the hour, catch-as-catch can style, and he took the three falls in 18.41, 12.09, 3.40.

The first bout was the most stub bornly contested one, for in it McDon-ough apparently exhausted his apparently strength. When the men stripped for the fray, the foreigner proved to be burly chap of 200 pounds, very stockily built, and evidently out for business from the word go, He started leisurely with McDonough, moving cautiously fore they grappled, heads together.

From that moment on McDonough was called on to act on the defensive, and he did some pretty fine work for a time. The Turk continued a slow, even the state of the total contract which the week like a flow to a some probability of the state of the total contract which the week like a flow to a some probability of the state of the total contract which the week like a flow to a some probability of the state of time. The Turk continued a story, pace, which changed like a flash to a quick dash when he saw an opening, and the majority of his advances were trong bady locks and leg holds. Then the Turk broke, for his legs. McDonough was Mac broke loose write being turned, and and made his feet. Then the Turk broke for his legs. McDonough was scized in a relentless grip, but aroused a storm of applause by himself locking the Turk's bare foot in his arms and maintaining his balance. Twice again he made his feet, closely pursued by the foreigner, and for fifteen minutes he had his man fairly at bay. Then McDonough made a wicked lead for the leg himself, but was met more than half way, toppled over to the canvas and the brown body of Mahmout pressed the white form of his opponent to the canvas for a flat fall.

This took a trifle over eighteen minuter, and there were cheers for McDonough when he came out for the second bout.

"He's very strong," he grunted as he

Mahmout will wrestle a handicap with Yankee Rogers in Toronto tonight and on Friday he meets the French Anappion in Greco-Roman style. On Saturday night he will appear in Hamilton, meeting Fred Ulrick, the Buffalo giant, and Charlie Conkle, undertaking to score four falls in one hour.

New York, March 18.—Because of the splendid showing of Moran in the Moran-Murphy bout of the Fairmont Athletic Club on Tuesday night, there seemed to be a general desire to-day to see him mix it up with Nelson. Moran never put up a better fight in his life than with the Harlem boxer. The fact that Murphy had about five pounds the better of the weights cut no figure with Moran, who weighed a trifle more than 128. Although Murphy is fully as clever in ring science as Nelson, he could not ward off Moran's fast and never-ceasing attack, with the result that he received the worst beating of his career. If Attell would agree to meet Moran at 126 pounds ringside, or 125 pounds at 6 o'clock, it is thought that the Englishman would be stronger than the American, and would possibly win decisively, just as Driscoll did. But Attell, according to his friends, will take no such chences.

Again the Turk went at his man in a most business-like way. Once McDonough fought back of the Turk in a scrimmage, but stayed there but a few seconds. Again the Turk got him to the floor with body holds. Then he put his legs in action in a manner familiar to those who had watched Yousouf and Nouroulah, his giant countrymen, work, and wrestling with his feet in the air, locked around his man, kept McDonough spun out of harm's way, amidst a storm of applause.

"Stick to him, Mac!" cried the crowd.

But the solid brown avalanche moved on irresistibly and once more McDonough, locked to the mat in a series of savage holds, was pressed flat.

In the concluding bout McDonough showed a burst of speed that for a moment surprised the Turk and set the spectators wild with enthusiasm. Dashing madly at his man, he whirled and tossed with him, but the great strength of the foreigner won the day, and McDonough foreing himself into a hopeless position was smacked down for the final fall in just 3.40.
