THE MARKETS.

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Wednesday, Dec. 31. There was considerable business tran-Bacted on the market here today. Forty-two loads of hay were offered at $7.50 to $9 per ton, the bulk of the of-ferings selling at $8.50; sales were very

There were offered about 15 loads of Three loads of wheat sold at $1 15 per cwt. There was about a dozen small loads of dressed turkeys offered, which were lower in price, at 12c to 13c per pound.

The markets during the past six days have been fairly well attended. The amount of business done was slightly be-low that of former years during the holi-day season. This may be attributed to day season. This may be attributed to a certain extent to the scarcity of poultry, which forms one of the principal offerings at this season of the year. Sales were as a rule brisk, and prices firm. Grain—The supply of oats has been fairly large; sales were made at 90c to 94c, the ruling figure being 91c. Wheat is seiling at $1 is and $1.16, corn at $1.10 per cwt, and beans at $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel. Butter and Eggs—There is a fair inquiry in this line and the supply is moderate. In this line, and the supply is moderate, at 18c per pound for butter in crocks and 19c for pound rolls. Eggs are in good demand, at 21c to 22c per dozen by the basket; smaller lots sell at 23c to 25c per

Potatoes are in good demand and the supply is liberal, considering the season of the year; prices range from 95c to $1 oer bag by the load.

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 31.—The second fatal shooting accident within two weeks in Chatham Township occurred Monday afternoon. Joseph Jenkins, employed on the farm of Samuel Shaw, of Turnerville, was the victim. He was accidently shot by George Crowder, one of his companions in the hunting expedition. The unfortunate young man was fatally injured, and on being conveyed to his home was told by Dr. Wylie, of Dresden, who had been called, that he could live only a few hours. He completely exonerated Crowder before he passed away. No inquest was thought necessary.

Of the half-dozen comic operas or musical comedies which have visited and the prices of all kinds of cattle held an upward tendency. London this season, all must yield the paim to "The Emerald Isle," which was presented to a delighted audience at the Grand Opera House last night. After the flood or meretriciousness and tawdriness which masquerades as comic opera in these degenerate days, it is a genuine treat to witness a production which approaches more nearly to the standard set by Gilbert and Sullivan in their first and perennial successes. In the present offering the inimitable Gilbertian word jingles, and Dec. 30.-There was not a the equally inimitable quiet Gilbertian humor is lacking, but the Sullivan music has lost none of its charm. It is music which will wear well, which enough for all their requirements for the winding up of the season's business. A little steadiness was given to the market, however, by a good feeling in the export will be more pleasing to the hearer with each subsequent rendition, and which deserves to rank with the melotrade. There were not more than a couple of loads of choice export steers in the dies of "Pinafore." "Mikado," "The Pirates" and the other favorites which marked the golden age of English comic opera. It is with a pang of sadwere being bought up for export purposes.

This was the feature of the morning market, and for a couple of hours there was quite a bit of business doing in this ness one realizes that the hand which penned the score of "The Emerald Isle" is now stilled forever, and that the ear which was ever attuned to the sweetest harmony is now listening enraptured to that "Lost Chord" which of mixed butchers and exporters sold at from $3.60 to $5; picked lots, $5 to $5.15. Good loads of butchers sold at $3.50 to it so vainly sought on earth. $4.25. There was nothing doing in feeders and stockers.

Sheep and lambs were pretty well sold Not all of the score is Sullivan's, for at his death the unfinished opera was taken in hand by Mr. Edward German, who has done his work of completion with a skillful hand. Sir Arthur Sulivan's marked predilection for concerted numbers for two, three, four and five voices was as plainly apparent in this, his last work, as in his earlier successes. The book, which is by Capt. Basil Hood, is not marked by extraordinary merit, but it is at least free from the banalities which mar too many works of this class. The story centers around a peripatetic prestidigitator, hypnotist, actor and general fakir, whose basic principle of life is well expressed in his fervent declaration to the girl of his heart that, "There's nothing I wouldn't do you for." There is a pompous lieutenant-governor of Ireland, who seeks to Anglicize the peasantry; his august spouse, who stands on her dignity so constantly that she gets sore feet; their charming daughter, in love with a handsome rebel, and their private chaplain, Dr. Fiddle, D.D. Add to these ingredients the inevitable lady's maid, a blind fiddler, a Devonshire regiment, and a collection of rebellious colleers and lads whose conspirating takes a melodious form, and you have merald Isle." Jeff De Angelis, the agile and amusing comedian whose last appearance in this city was in the support of Della Fox, is well suited in his present role of Prof. Bunn. His humor is spontaneous, his methods are legitimate, and he works hard to entertain his audience. One thing that maired his work last night was the constant byplay, intended for the edification of the other members of the cast, but easily perceptible to the spectators. Probably Mr. De Angelis does not indulge in this in the larger cities. There is no reason why he should do so

It is hard to determine between the vocal merits of the principals and the chorus. Every individual voice is a¹ good one, while the chorus work is easily the best heard here this season. The tener role is filled by Edmund Stanley, whose rich, full voice and handsome presence make him an ideal exponent of the part of Terence O'Brian. "Have You Met a Man," and I'm Descended from Brian Boru" were his work in the concerted numbers was equally pleasing. The sight of the well-filled house must have been much more inspiring to Mr. Stanley than the array of empty benches to which he sang when he appeared here last spring with Eugene Cowles' excellent concert company. Miss Helena Frederick made a sweet heroine, and her fine soprano voice was heard to advantage in her different numbers. The vocal laurels, however, fell to Miss Kate Condon. who fills the part of Molly O'Grady the vivicious colleen who acts as understudy for the Fairy of Carig Clee na. Miss Condon possesses a rich, vibrant contralto voice, which showed careful cultivation. Miss Amalia Field, who plays the Countess of Newtown was at once recognized by the audience as one of the principals in "Dolly Varden." She was given too little opportunity to display tralto voice. Gerald Gerome sings well as Pat Murphy, the blind fiddler, save a success with his "Song of the Devonshire Men," which is also made the medium for the introduction of a very pretty stage picture. Miss Edna Burd's pic lant face and chic manner make here filling of the soubrette role very pleasing performance. Miss Burd has the qualifications which should win her success in similar parts. F. Stuart Hyatt, as Dr. Fiddle, was a dead-ring-er for "Sunny Jim" in his make-up. More use might be made of him as a mirthmaker.

Tre costumes were beyond cavil, but scenery was not out of the ordinary. The company sang "God Save the King" at the close of the performance. The well-bred members of the audience remained standing until the curtain descended.

Head Office-London. Ont.

This company owns the leases on 200 acres (room for 300 wells) of the most desirable lands on the oil-producing rock, in that wellestablished and dividend-paying oil territory, near Dutton, in Elgin County. Western Ontario. Only a rail fence divides the holding of the London Elgin Oil Company, Limited, from the developed property of the prosperous Elginfield Oil and Gas Company, with thirtyeight producing wells and an output of 900 to 1.000 barrels per month. The stock of that company is now held at $2 (double its par value).
