BUTTER SHOWS SLIGHT RAISE

The Supply This Morning Was Limited and the Demand Was Brisk.

EGGS AT 28c A DOZEN

Roads Are Very Bad, and the Farmers Find It Impossible to Get Into London.

There was a very small market again this morning for the country roads have become practically impassable in the last few days, and only people in the immediate vicinity of the city have been able to come to market. As a natural result the attendance this morning was very small, and will likely remain so till trading becomes somewhat better.

There were a number of produce merchants on the market, but the day was sold well, despite the fact that the disagreeable weather prevented many of the persons who regularly buy on the market being present.

Green Stuff.
There was a very good supply of lettuce, which sold at the domestic rate. The market was offered, but not in very large quantities. It sold at $1.00 a dozen or ten cents a bunch. A few radishes were offered at five cents a bunch, and green onions at the same price.

In other vegetables there was a good supply of cabbages and also a very large showing of potatoes, which did not sell very briskly.

Butter Not Plentiful.
Butter was not very plentiful, and as a result of the good demand, showed a tendency to increase somewhat on Saturday's price. Rolls sold for 25c and crocks for 21c.

Eggs were only moderately plentiful, but 25c remained the standard figure for the day.

There was practically no heavy stuff offered today, and the load of hay, which was offered yesterday, sold for $15.00 but the seller refused an offer of $17 to bring a load tomorrow.

Oats, too, were scarce and inclined to be higher, one load fetching $12.25. There was little change in meat prices. Dressed hogs remained at about $11.50 though one or two lots brought $11.60 and as high as $11.75.
