

HAD BOILS ALL OVER HIM

There is only one way to get rid of boils and that is by going right to the seat of the trouble—the blood—as the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters

cleanses the system and removes all the foul matter from the blood in a way that few medicines will do. Mrs. Chas. Rankin, Bulyea, Sask., writes: "A few years ago my husband had a terrible time with boils. On one arm he had 16 between his elbow and wrist, five on the back of his neck, and several more on the different parts of his body. He tried everything he could think of, but got no relief until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, and to his surprise it completely relieved him of his boils in a very short time." B.B.B. has been on the market for the past 46 years; be sure you get it when you ask for it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Adv't.

SCOTT CONVICTED IN MURDER CASE,

Former London, Toronto Broker Is Found Guilty at Chicago.

DEATH ON GALLOWS

Associated Press Despatch. Chicago, Dec. 12.—A jury after 45 minutes deliberation tonight found Russell Scott of London and Toronto, Ont., former Canadian financial wizard, guilty of the murder of Joseph Maurer, 19-year-old cigar clerk, during a holdup last April, and fixed his punishment at death on the gallows. The jury took two ballots. The sensation of the trial was the testimony of Russell T. Scott himself. The former Toronto promoter was one of the three witnesses called by the defence, the other two being Charles Britz, a government agent, whose testimony was relative to the revocation of liquor permits at the drug store where the shooting occurred, and Edward Ehrlich, the night engineer of the building in which the pharmacy is located.

Scott On Stand. Scott, a picture of what the well-dressed man will wear during the early part of 1925, rose to the stand. His suit was pressed to a nicety, his hands and face were immaculate. In fact, his face was almost too white, it betrayed the fact that he was afraid. The first questions from the defence counsel brought out his story, the story for which his lawyers have been preparing the jury.

Scott Told His Version. He said that on the night of April 2, when Joseph Maurer, the youthful drug clerk, was killed, he—Scott—called for his brother at their hotel and the two brothers had dinner together and went to the movies. After the show, at about 10 o'clock, they went to the drug store. Scott said that with Edison, the drug store proprietor, Miss Davis and Douglas, they went to the basement, where he ordered a quart of Scotch whiskey. All drank a good deal, and half an hour later the ginger ale and ice had given out.

Brother Drunk. He alleged that his brother, Robert, had become quite intoxicated and had gone upstairs to get more ice. Shortly after, Russell testified, he heard sounds of a scuffle and sat up to see what was happening. He said that when he was half way up the stairs, three shots were fired. He claimed he saw his brother running out of the store, gun in hand. He himself made his getaway, stepping over the dead body of Maurer as he went.

He testified further that his brother, Robert, handed him the death gun, that he took it from him and hid it in his coat pocket. There it was found next morning.

COWARDLY CREW BLAMED BY COURT

Commissioner Finds Fatalities in Wreck Due To Lack of Discipline.

Montreal, Dec. 12.—A denunciation of the "lack of discipline on the part of the mate and second mate, and such cowardice displayed by the second mate and some members of the crew," who took to the boats indifferent to the safety of two women on board the vessel, is contained in the report of the Dominion wreck commissioner on the stranding of the lake steamer Glenochie in Lake Ontario last November with the loss of three lives.

The commissioner finds that as the ship stranded, the crew, without orders of guidance, congregated aft and launched a lifeboat, in which nine men took refuge. One returned to the vessel when ordered by the master, and five came back when a rope broke, endangering their lives. The remaining three were drowned.

The report reveals that confusion reigned on board at the stranding. Two women were on board, one a passenger and the other a member of the crew.

The master of the Glenochie, Capt. Victor Charter, was exonerated, but the first mate, Albert Bonin, had his certificate suspended for one year. Of the second mate, Laurentian Lacroix, the commissioner says that "the court could not deal with him but lake vessel owners would possibly bear in mind his conduct, which had been criticized in the report."

By Courier Press to The Advertiser. Hop-Skip Harbor, Dec. 13.—Your commander is pleased to report that we have arrived, after incredible hardships at Wishbone Inlet on the edge of Santa Claus Land. Our lives were saved by Spud, the small spotted dog loaned us by Bob Dowler. As you will recall, Spud is a compass dog and, under certain conditions his tail points north. One of these conditions is that a bit of sugar be sprinkled on the end of his tail. Three days ago we were caught in a terrible storm, and lost a sledge with all our sugar on it. We had nothing to eat but one animal cracker, which we divided with Spud and the other dogs. Without any sugar, Spud couldn't point and we didn't know which way was north.

The next morning I stumbled out of our tent, made out of a large umbrella. The ground was covered with a white substance which seemed too coarse for snow, and I

EXPLOSION IN FACTORY CAUSES $100,000 LOSS

Scores of Wagons and Trucks Blown To Bits in Montreal Blast.

Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, Dec. 12.—Following an explosion which dumped a whole floor level into the street, fire this evening destroyed the premises of Omer Quintal, Limited, carriage makers, in the east end of the city. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The damage is estimated at $100,000. Buildings in the vicinity were threatened by the blaze for a time. Fifteen wagons and 50 trucks which were stored in the building were blown to pieces by the explosion.
