

The Toronto World.

An independent Liberal Newspaper. Published every morning at 6 o'clock at No. King Street East. Extra copies are published whenever there is one of sufficient moment to demand a special issue.

The Toronto World.

The only one-cent morning paper in Canada, and the only one-cent evening paper in the city of Toronto. Professor Huxley is in receipt of $7500 a year, made up of the salaries of the several offices he holds.

The PRESIDENT of the Canadian press association, in his annual address yesterday, said there was not one of them who did not appreciate the great services which Mr. Goulin Smith had rendered to their association, and his residents and successful efforts to raise the tone of the press of his adopted country.

THE MAIL is very severe on Mr. Anglin for taking government printing. Mr. Anglin was in the wrong, and we are glad to see the Mail denouncing it, but now that the Mail has a job office, the managing director should have a care. Some wily government official will be sending a job round "unknown" to both minister and manager.

SINCE THE SLIGHT RELIEF of President Garfield last week, everybody has been asking, will he recover? Of course no one can answer this question positively, but our opinion is decidedly that he will. People appear to die, as a general rule, get their friends to read the Bible and sing hymns to them.

FOUR WEEKS have gone by, and yet the results of the entrance examinations of the Toronto collegiate institute have not yet appeared. We believe this is the only school in the province of which this can be said. The trustees are responsible to the public, and it is their duty to find out where the blame really rests, and to see that the anomalies do not occur again.

BEHOLD THE POOR DOGS imprisoned on Taylor's Island, Niagara Falls, and unable to get off unaided. Many schemes have been suggested for relieving the prisoners, and on Wednesday a kind-hearted actor thought he had perfected an arrangement whereby he could land the dogs on the cliff above them. He was therefore considerably surprised when warned by the owner of one of the dogs that if he succeeded in his undertaking, he would not only find himself arrested, but also find the dogs on the island next morning.

CONCURRENTLY with spelling reform is another change of less importance, but dictated by the demands of economy in time and money. It is doing away with unnecessary capitals. The use for capital letters is a mere arbitrary thing, and one of spelling—i.e. fact, every newspaper office has a set of rules of its own, and no two agree. Only competitors know the amount of time lost in reaching for "u" caps.

quick-printed newspapers that are leading in this reform.

THE DUKE OF AROU is reported as reflecting her majesty's personal opinion on the Irish land bill of Mr. Gladstone. But even the queen will have to accept it if it is carried by the lords, and they are discreet enough not to throw it out.

THERE is much said and written about the reformer Parnell, yet but little of the reformer Arch. In fact, the latter is at the head of a movement in England which is probably of quite as much importance as that guided by Parnell.

THE MAIL should really have a responsible correspondent in so important a city as Kingston. In reporting the inspection of the 14th battalion, their correspondent (who really should read the newspapers and keep posted) says that "for the first time" since his arrival in Canada Major-General "Luard has 'talked a battalion'—the 14th. This is all wrong, for the first time the general inspected the "Queen's Own" he said that, "in spite of the difficulties" the battalion had met with in performing "drill in so dense a crowd, he could only compare them to the old 'Inns of Court' battalion, or 'Devil's own,' which was well known as the finest volunteer battalion in the world."

THE RAILWAY WAR. The action of the Grand Trunk in carrying the railway war into Africa—that is, cutting the rates on east-bound passenger and freight traffic as well as on west-bound passenger traffic—has been the subject of much discussion, and it is interesting to note that the American railway magnates, and they are painfully alive to the fact that Mr. Rice holds the trump card. The Grand Trunk is determined to have its share of business, and if the other roads try to prevent it, then they must take the consequences.

THE BONUS SYSTEM CONDEMNED. The bonus hunters have at last got the law against them in the United States. The supreme court holds that no legislative power exists whereby taxes can be laid for the benefit of or encouragement of manufacturers. The suit was brought by an iron bridge company against the city of Topeka, Kansas, to enforce payment of bonds issued "to encourage the establishment of manufacturing factories," as a consideration for the company's establishing and operating its shops within the limits of the city.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA. The Masque has run over one hundred continuous nights in New York. Mr. Alexander Henderson's new theatre in Panton street, Haymarket, is to be called the Comedy theatre.

THE OLD RELIABLE. The remedy that has stood the test of time is Dr. Fowler's extract of wild cherry. Almost infallible to cure dysentery, cholera, cholera infantum, and every form of summer complaints.

"THE THORN IN THE FLESH."

To the Editor of the Toronto World. Sir—Dr. Wild's statement of the various chapters held regarding St. Paul's "thorn in the flesh" is no doubt remarkably refreshing to his audience; but yet the solution to which he gives his personal view is by no means original.

THE further down the three days in which his physical sight was suspended his spiritual vision was opened, "light" did most his spiritual eyes; and this "light," as he said, "came to him as the light of heaven." The comparative weakness of his physical eyes, and the comparative strength of his spiritual eyes, and the comparative weakness of his physical eyes, and the comparative strength of his spiritual eyes, and the comparative weakness of his physical eyes, and the comparative strength of his spiritual eyes.

THE ROMANCE OF AN EGG.

Chapter Second of a Very Old Story, which goes to show that Old Ladies are not Always Bore.

The young woman employed by the egg and butter dealer of Grand street, Brooklyn, who, in handling some eggs in the store, discovered one which contained a message, written in pencil, asking the girl who received it to open correspondences with a young farmer in Tennessee, was in the New York Sun (and the Evening News) of the love match made by means of the egg had widely read, and wherever she went in the vicinity of her home she was pointed out as the woman who got a lover through an egg. The story was often told how she had responded to the farmer's egg-shell message; how a letter came back which really was a flame in her heart; how she continued the correspondence, and sent her photographs; how one came back to her representing a sturdy young farmer; and how the lover came to meet his correspondent, puffed the question, and with him, in the next day, they made to make love to her and try to consummate the romance. A young policeman in the city story and remembered that the city was the next day, in the next day, they made to make love to her and try to consummate the romance.

The girl's eyes were red with weeping when she posted the letter, and she addressed it to the young man who was to marry her. The girl's eyes were red with weeping when she posted the letter, and she addressed it to the young man who was to marry her.

She smiled with indignation at once, and having bathed her eyes in cold water, she started for a New England town, and began a suit for $10,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage. The girl had no money, and the lawyer had no money, and she was set in motion without some incentive, amounting to at least $25. She returned to the better and egg dealer, and he had been tally distressed, but still bent upon revenge.

Can Cows Count? Gooe Andrus, an extensive farmer of Gooe Prairie, Mich., and one who has had much success in stock raising, recently stated as a most singular fact that his drove of cattle always knew on what day they were to be sold, and he had been obliged to give them salt at the barnyard every Sunday morning during the spring and summer months, and he had been obliged to give them salt at the barnyard every Sunday morning during the spring and summer months.
