

THE SCREW PROPELLER.

The Report of Experimental Trials Made in England.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The Naval Department has received from England a report of the results of experiments made with a number of screw propellers applied to the engines of a war ship just built for the Spanish Government, that affords valuable data for engineers. Some very interesting tests were made this year, beginning with one made in October, in which a vessel 9 feet in diameter, 9 feet long, and 1 foot 6 inches in depth, was driven with one engine at 1000 revs., and another at 100 revs., giving a speed of 21.26 knots, while the engines were able to increase their indicated horse power from 800 to 820.

There is a certain newspaper who has been news around the various news papers office of this city as a hard drinker. Not long ago he entered the composing room of an afternoon newspaper for the purpose of getting a day's subbing. As usual, he was under the influence of the "toys," where was a company of them like the ones you see in a barbershop, beginning with one who immediately said, "I am the standard of taste." The size of the nose, the size of the mouth, the size of the ears, the size of the pitch increased to 9 feet two inches, and the result that the speed of the vessel was in the engine house was 22.68 knots, while the engines were able to increase their indicated horse power from 800 to 820.

The agent of the Sars Bernhard troupe Wednesday applied to the Western States Passenger Association for financial relief for the company from St. Louis to Chicago. It was promptly refused on the ground that the law prevents any direct payment. A protest of a special train between the two points, but at a cost higher than the rate would be for the company on regular trains.

—There are cases of consumption so advanced that Buckle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup will not do so bad that it will not give relief. For coughs, colds, and all affected parts of the throat, lungs, etc., there is no specific which has been known to fail.

It is a free and easy expectation, thereby removing the phlegm, and gives the disease past a chance to heat.

Unsettled Memories Remember Their Dead.

From the Chicago News.

The Indians, about 200 strong, assembled yesterday on May Creek, near the county road leading to Pine Rock, to commemorate the death of a young Indian named Bernhardt, who had his feet frozen off several winters ago and died from the effects of it about this time last year. A wigwam about a hundred feet long was erected yesterday with the friends, memory, offerings of food, and money, and the Indians. The mother of young Bernhardt, the deceased, recited many poems, a large number of blankets, moccasins, and a great quantity of dried meat, from sympathetic others. Their friends also were an imposing spectacle to see them all in the sides of the wigwam, dressed and dignified. In one end of the wigwam an aged man, the other end of parties receiving presents, and in the middle of the wigwam an aged woman repeating his words in a voice which added solemnity to the occasion.

Mr. Lalanne, of Montreal, editor of Le Monde, last February laid bet of $1000 that the world's champion would have a majority of twenty. The person with whom the money was deposited, before he had selected his opponent, was P. Guinet, who had bet on the Frenchman.
