

The Catholic Register.

"Truth is Catholic; proclaim it ever, and God will effect the rest." BALMEZ.

VOL. VIII.—NO. 1.

TORONTO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1900.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Current Topics.

The floor of the House of Commons was a scene of war. The Boer war had just broken out, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

tain and France would be the most regrettable event that could happen. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

answer the other for they do not, here at least, accept the same ultimatum. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

principal facade placed towards the West is a triumph of the lapidary's art. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

bottom, from end to end, all along the line, had no national coloring whatever. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

Dr. James H. Hamilton and Dr. Douglas Hydein support of his conclusions. Dr. Hydein proceeded to say that from an educational point of view the work that has been done in the past is not sufficient. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

While the first Canadian Contingent is in the field, the second Canadian Contingent is in the process of formation. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

England in 1899. In the Atlantic Monthly is an article entitled "England in 1899," by R. B. Cunningham. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

the great obstacle in the way of realization is the supremacy of the Pope, which, as Professor Maitland strives to prove, maintained a England until it was rejected by Henry VIII. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

the most celebrated is the Capilla del Condestable, constructed in the style of the 16th century, erected outside the walls, on the site of the old castle. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

Irish education in any sense whatever could not possibly be until Irish occupies a foremost position in all our schools, in our educational systems and programmes. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

Will you use all legitimate efforts to maintain Protestant supremacy in the Constitution of this Empire? Will you oppose all attempts— 1. To alter the Coronation oath? 2. To open the Throne to a Romanist? 3. To repeal the Bill of Rights or the Act of Settlement? 4. To throw open the offices of Lord High Chancellor of England and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to Roman Catholics? 5. To endow with public money a Roman Catholic University in Ireland? 6. To grant State aid of any description for the furtherance of Ritualistic or Romanist objects? 7. To open diplomatic relations with the Vatican? 8. To give any increased political powers to the Church of Rome? 9. To grant further privileges to the Jesuits and monastic orders of the Roman Church in these Realms? 10. To support legislation— 1. For maintaining Protestant supremacy in every branch of the Constitution and life of the Empire? 2. For the maintenance and enforcement of the laws of the land, as defined by highest Courts of the realm? 3. For the enforcement of that portion of the Act of 1829, which extends the Jesuit Order from the United Kingdom? 4. For the effectual inspection of convents and monastic institutions, and for the adequate protection of their inmates? 5. For the maintenance of the Imperial Protestant Association of course, enters into various details as to the methods of works which its organizers consider most likely to assist in the accomplishment of the objects it has in view. We are not, however, satisfied with the present position of the principal need at the present moment is the supplying of sufficient cash to enable it to undertake a satisfactory manner the meeting of the demands which the accomplishment of its ambitious programme will necessarily require. We trust the following list of suggestions will be found to be of service.

The attention to the Boer war made by Mgr. Broche, Archbishop of Montreal, in the course of a sermon preached at the special midnight Mass in celebration of the Holy Year, is being widely quoted. He expressed his regret that the Holy Year should not have opened with universal peace. Instead, fear and unrest were in all hearts. The nation whose flag proceeded them had entered upon a war, the consequences of which must affect them. Already their sons had departed for the field of battle, and others would soon join. His Grace made an earnest invocation for the speedy restoration of peace. "The flag which protects us," said Mgr. Broche, "and which gives us our liberty is at war with a bitter enemy. Let us hope that the war will soon end with the triumph of our good country and of the principles of justice propounded by the Church." Surely those ultra-patriotic scribblers who have been warning the people against the possible, nay, probable defection of the French-Canadian people from British connection will now contain their souls in peace. But a war between Great Britain and France would be the most regrettable event that could happen. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

the great obstacle in the way of realization is the supremacy of the Pope, which, as Professor Maitland strives to prove, maintained a England until it was rejected by Henry VIII. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

the most celebrated is the Capilla del Condestable, constructed in the style of the 16th century, erected outside the walls, on the site of the old castle. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

Irish education in any sense whatever could not possibly be until Irish occupies a foremost position in all our schools, in our educational systems and programmes. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps. The Boer war was a war of attrition, and the House was divided into two camps.

Will you use all legitimate efforts to maintain Protestant supremacy in the Constitution of this Empire? Will you oppose all attempts— 1. To alter the Coronation oath? 2. To open the Throne to a Romanist? 3. To repeal the Bill of Rights or the Act of Settlement? 4. To throw open the offices of Lord High Chancellor of England and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to Roman Catholics? 5. To endow with public money a Roman Catholic University in Ireland? 6. To grant State aid of any description for the furtherance of Ritualistic or Romanist objects? 7. To open diplomatic relations with the Vatican? 8. To give any increased political powers to the Church of Rome? 9. To grant further privileges to the Jesuits and monastic orders of the Roman Church in these Realms? 10. To support legislation— 1. For maintaining Protestant supremacy in every branch of the Constitution and life of the Empire? 2. For the maintenance and enforcement of the laws of the land, as defined by highest Courts of the realm? 3. For the enforcement of that portion of the Act of 1829, which extends the Jesuit Order from the United Kingdom? 4. For the effectual inspection of convents and monastic institutions, and for the adequate protection of their inmates? 5. For the maintenance of the Imperial Protestant Association of course, enters into various details as to the methods of works which its organizers consider most likely to assist in the accomplishment of the objects it has in view. We are not, however, satisfied with the present position of the principal need at the present moment is the supplying of sufficient cash to enable it to undertake a satisfactory manner the meeting of the demands which the accomplishment of its ambitious programme will necessarily require. We trust the following list of suggestions will be found to be of service.