

Article 14 - Rule of Specialty

1. A person extradited under this Treaty shall not be prosecuted, detained, tried or punished in the territory of the requesting State for an offence other than that for which extradition has been granted unless:

- a. that person consents in writing before a judicial authority in the requesting State, after having been informed of his or her rights by the judicial authority;
- b. that person has left the territory of the requesting State after extradition and has voluntarily returned to it;
- c. that person has not left the territory of the requesting State within 30 days after being free to do so; or
- d. the requested State has consented thereto. For this purpose, the requested State may require the submission of any document or statement mentioned in Article 7, including any statement made by the extradited person with respect to the offence concerned.

These stipulations shall not apply to offences committed after extradition.

2. If the charge for which the person was extradited is subsequently changed, that person may be prosecuted or sentenced provided the offence under its new description is:

- a. based on substantially the same facts contained in the extradition request and its supporting documents; and
- b. punishable by the same maximum penalty as, or a lesser maximum penalty than, the offence for which that person was extradited.

Article 15 - Re-extradition to a Third State

A person extradited under this Treaty shall not be subsequently extradited to a third State without the consent of the requested State, except in the cases provided for in subparagraph a, b, and c of paragraph 1 of Article 14. The requested State may require the production of the documents received from the third State supporting the latter's request for subsequent extradition, and any statement made by the extradited person on the matter.

Article 16 - Consent to Extradition

1. A person whose extradition is sought and who has been arrested pursuant to this Treaty may consent in writing before a judicial authority to be returned to the requesting State and to be held in custody pending such
