AUDITOR GENERAL

ROLE UNDER ACT

Question No. 39 on the Order Paper—By Hon. Senator Leblanc (Saurel):

8th December 1987—With respect to the Auditor General Act, S.C. 1976-77, c. 34, why does the Act refer to the Auditor General's role in relation to the House of Commons only rather than to Parliament in general or specifically to both the Senate and the House of Commons?

Reply by the President of the Treasury Board:

The role of the Auditor General is described in sections 5 and 6 of the Auditor General Act. He is required to examine and report on the financial statements to be included in the Public Accounts.

Since under section 55 of the Financial Administration Act these Public Accounts are required to be laid before the House of Commons, it follows that the Auditor General's report on the Accounts would be similarly addressed.

Once tabled, both the Public Accounts and the related Report of the Auditor General are public documents which may be utilized by the House of Commons and the Senate in exercising their responsibilities.

Section 3.(1) of the Auditor General Act does recognize the responsibility of the Senate with regard to the removal of the Auditor General. It reads as follows:

3.(1) "The Governor in Council shall, by commission under the Great Seal, appoint a qualified auditor to be the
