

background of practical experiences is outstanding on the matter of nutrition adequacy and relief budgets

1. Miss Goodeve, Nutritionist, Child Welfare Association, Montreal Social Agencies.
2. Miss Marjorie Bell, c/o Visiting Housekeepers Association, Toronto.

The problems of relief budgets are so much more than a question of simple or ideal diets that it is a matter much more for those engaged in actual welfare work than for a specialist examination. Once again, however, it is clear that such experienced persons have been among the advisors of the Winnipeg Unemployment Advisory Board.

If there were no such body as this Board, or they were not already acquainted with such studies as have been made, and with budgets and methods in use in other cities, the desirability of such an investigation as Mr. MacNamara suggests would be clear. I am much less certain of it in view of the good advice they already have.
