

the League, all waiting for him to take the lead in the transfiguration of Labor. He hesitated.

"Well, my lord," said Broadbent, "we wait your answer. Surely you have made up your mind. We are prepared to follow you to the death."

"No doubt—a—Mr.—Broadbent ; but, Mr.—Broadbent and my good friends, I—I—have lately had to reconsider the subject of this address with some care, and—in fact, gentlemen—I have seen reason to change my opinion."

FINIS.
