OLD MAN LEE WINS FOR THE INDIANS

Leaders Played Snappy Ball and Grays Were Easily Downed.

NEWARK, Sept. 17.—The Indians held to their game and a half lead in the international race by defeating Providence today, 5 to 1. The game was won handsomely by Lee, outpitched North and the Braves playing with their old-time snap.

LUCK AND SOME GOOD PITCHING GIVES GANZEL

Leafs Lose Last Game on Home Grounds Two to One—An Error Helped Hustlers to Score Their Runs.

While the baseball season of 1913, as far as Toronto is concerned, failed to wind up in a grand blaze of glory, yesterday's finishing touches were not so warm. The Leafs and Hustlers again had a real tussle, but Lucksy Ganzel got thru with another close one. The last score at the island was 2 to 1. Ganzel, c. credit for his team, gathered together a scrappy outfit and they took head and shoulders over any other team that was indulged in mortal encounter with our own battered champions at the home lot this summer. The Rochester infield could not be proved upon, and the outer works is no mean affair. It is all in a day's work, up nicely and it looks blue for the Leafs for the rest of the week over on the south shore.

It was free admission day for the youngsters and the Leafs have lost interest in the doings of the Leafs for not more than two hundred of the future statesmen and ball players of the fair city of ours braved the elements to get the last glimpse of the once mighty crew for many a month.

John Ganzel has the team, but also has the Goddess of Luck hypnotized and gets every break that is coming. A little over-anxiousness on the part of Fred Merbert in the second round lost a double play and Rochester came thru with two runs. It is all in a day's work.

This is how it happened. McDonald singled and then Simmons rolled at Herbert. The big fellow whipped it too fast to second and the heave was wild. Holly was pulled off the bag and both runners were safe. It was sure double play and right here is where the game was lost for Merbert sacrificed; Devin singled to centre and both runners latched. Wilhelm lined to McConnell, after Jacklitich had rapped out a single, and Devin was doubled up.

Rochester was lucky to get by in the first round without the Leafs scoring. Meyer was given a walk, and then O'Hara singled, left. Krocy drove one a mile a minute towards right field and McMillan touched second and pegged to third for Merbert to nab him. Devin opened the fourth with a double, while Merbert walked. H. Bradley's grounder that looked good for a base, H. Bradley stole second, but was caught. Wagner, infield chasing him. Bradley supplied the needed hit to score H. Bradley. Wilhelm twirled grand ball through and the locals could only collect. H. Bradley and Wagner gathered. H. Bradley's high one in the ninth with one hand, after a great run. It was the fielding feature of the day.

Hans Wagner Again Doing the Unexpected

"He has been doing the unexpected all his life," laughed Fred Clarke, the other pitcher, in discussing Hans Wagner's peculiar traits. "I'll never forget the first time I pitched him to bat."

"It was in Louisville, back in 1897. Honus had been with us only a few days. I didn't know him then as I know him now. We were playing Pittsburg, and Jess Tennant was pitching against us. We were not hitting Jess, and as I had noticed the Dutchman to be fast, I asked him if he could bait. He said he could."

"So I told him to bait one down the third-base line and try to get on. He selected the spot for his purpose, and while we sat back waiting for his bait, he didn't do a thing but knock the ball clear over a distillery for a home run."

"The next time his turn came I asked over at the distillery he could bait another one like that. He never cracked a smile, but said he thought he could. He did. The first good baseball season of his life. The Pirates were not hitting us at all. They were two of the longest home runs I ever saw, and one into two squares over the old Louisville distillery we beat Pittsburgh that day, 2 to 0."

A more recent incident one that occurred about six weeks ago at Forbes Field. The Pirates were not hitting us at all. Honus had not been hitting a lick for a long time. The pitcher's average was dwindling daily. He seemed unable to do a thing but hit pop flies and grounders."

Along in the seventh inning Clarke became impatient. Selecting the biggest, ugliest and thickest Cuban wood bat he could find, Clarke handed it to Honus, a leading home run hitter.

"Now, Dutch, go up there and hit one. Doggone it, hit one like you used to. Take it up to it and let me see you hit that ball as you have been hitting it all these years."

Honus granted a reply, took the ugly-looking club and strode to the plate, and while the crowd was waiting for the back of the bat to strike the ball, he struck the ball, but missed it.

"Strike one," bawled Hank O'Day, who was umpiring.

The Lodger infielders punched their gloves and cleats like monkeys, all of them being set to handle a hard drive if it came their way.

On the next ball pitched, Honus bunted a soft roller down the third-base line and beat it out. That bunt paved the way for two Pittsburg runs and the victory.

THAW IS SAFE UNTIL JANUARY

Supreme Court Cannot Take Action for Several Months at Least.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(Can. Press.)—Weeks, months or possibly years might pass before the supreme court would act finally upon Harry K. Thaw appeal from the habeas corpus proceedings now pending in New Hampshire. Of late, however, the court has disposed of such important cases quickly.

Whether an appeal to the supreme court from the action of Judge Aldrich, federal district judge in New Hampshire, before whom the habeas corpus proceedings were brought may be granted, will rest entirely, it is said, with Judge Aldrich himself.

Upon the request of either the State of New Hampshire or of New York, the court might advance the case for consideration about the first Monday in December. In the ordinary course of events, a decision would be handed down in the following January or at least early next year.

Much doubt is expressed here as to whether the New York authorities could find a way to have the higher courts review Judge Aldrich's action should he release Thaw from custody.

You can't beat it. Kuntz's Old German has the class, alright. And it's put in Peacock Green bottles to prevent it from deteriorating when exposed to light. Better order a bottle yourself, old man."

NEW ILLUSTRATED BOOK ON PANAMA

Showing the World's Great Waterway in Picture and Prose From Beginning to End. To End.

No similar book ever published was so widely read as "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose," which "The World" presents to its readers on the plan explained elsewhere in this issue. It is a great big beautiful volume, twice the size of an ordinary novel, and contains the complete story of the Panama Canal in picture and prose.

WILLIS J. ABBOT, the author of this book, has for many years been a writer on international topics. This has not only fitted him for handling the subject in question, but has given him a large acquaintance among officials who have been instrumental in building this mighty inter-oceanic waterway. So the story is complete from the time when Columbus sought for a natural water course to the Pacific Ocean, up thru the centuries of revolution and warfare and on thru to the realization of the greatest achievement of this day and age. It tells of the people and the country; the various strange modes of life; the occupations, sports and pastimes of the natives; how they live and dress; in fact, it is filled with local color and heart interest, set forth in a chatty style that at once grasps and holds the reader to the very end.

Such a work cannot help to be of vast importance in the education of all who would desire to keep abreast of the times. The old as well as the young will find information of rare educational value throughout this volume. The illustrations cover every subject treated. They consist of more than 600 photographic reproductions, and include numerous pages in color that portray the richness of the scenery in this great tropical garden. No similar work was ever so profusely and expensively illustrated.

The World wants every one of its readers to have a copy of this beautiful new illustrated book, and to that end a certificate is printed daily in the "beater" to get it when accompanied by a small expense fee to cover the actual cost of the various items of distribution. This is all explained in the Panama certificate.
