

THE NOVELS OF E. W. HORNING

PECCAVI

"'Peccavi' is at once the most serious and the strongest novel that has issued from Mr. Hornung's engaging pen. . . . A striking and admirable story."
—The Spectator.

DEAD MEN TELL NO TALES

"It is story-telling of the most direct kind and holds the attention from the first page to the last. Mr. Hornung seems to us in each succeeding book from his pen to gain in confidence and authority, and we do not hesitate to place him among the first of the comparatively new writers who must be reckoned with."—Literatur.

THE SHADOW OF A MAN

"Mr. Hornung is one of the foremost writers, and Anstralla is, as she should be, proud of him. There is a freshness and vigor in his writings which belongs to few men. He is master of his subjects. His characters are men of flesh. There are no subtle soul studies in his books."—San Francisco Bulletin.

THE ROGUE'S MARCH

"Mr. Hornung has succeeded admirably in his object: his Anstralian scenes are a veritable nightmare; they sear the imagination, and it will be some time before we get Hookey Simpson, the clank of the chains, and the hero's degradation off our mind."

—London Saturday Review.
