

These, with twenty-three other persons, were confirmed, and I was encouraged to indulge my own feelings by dwelling upon both services, and endeavouring to impress those who listened to me with a full sense of their importance, and of the blessing to be derived from them. None of the various scenes through which I have passed, in my summer's visitations, have produced a deeper impression upon myself, nor excited warmer interest for the welfare of those to whom it has been my privilege to minister.

WEST CHESTER.—TRURO.—AYLESFORD.

Friday, August 25.—Mr. Townshend drove me seven miles, that I might see sixty acres of very valuable marsh land on the Westmoreland glebe, the value of which must be lost to the Church, because there are no means for defraying the expense of dyking it. I suggested several plans, but fear none of them can succeed. Here Dr. Jarvis and Mr. Black took their leave, after affectionate attention to me in this part of the diocese, and returned to Shediac and Sackville. Soon after our return to Amherst, where Mr. Kilvington, now my son-in-law, met me, I set out for Truro, and he accompanied me. We had a very pleasant drive of thirty miles to West Chester, on the Cumberland Mountains, where we lodged.

Saturday, August 26.—A drive of thirty-four miles through a beautiful country, Londonderry and
