men dropped from exhaustion at the police school for instruction in the old 68th Regiment Armory while undergoing Commisioner Bingham's new corrective drill for those guilty of violating the code. They were attended by a police surgeon, and then sent to their homes. Two or three have to go thru more drills before their sentences are completed.

Fifty patrolmen were at the session, nearly all of whom were serving sentence for infractions of the rules.

The doctor who attended the men says their exhaustion must have been patent to any observer. "They were too fat and heavy," he said, "and I am surprised that they were able to stand it as long as they did. Their lack of condition was so evident that it was only extraordinary gameness that kept them going."

It is said that the men were forced.

If any information is received, communicate at once with his wife, 8814 Cottage Grove-avenue, Dauphin Park, Chicago."

Mrs. Jim is described in a letter to Chief Grasett as an estimable woman "of strong moral character, who is lie as long as they did. Their lack of condition was so evident that it was only extraordinary gameness that kept them going."
