transparent to the person she intended to slight. Depositing her burden upon a table she bent over it, pretending to rearrange the grapes and stir the con-tents of the pitcher, that her face might cool before he had a chance to scrutinize it. His presence in this place was odious to her. What had she, in her self-abasement and earnest reachings after a nobler life than he had ever thought of, or aspired to, to do with his masquerading tricks and persiflage? His mummery, then and there, was more than heartless—it was an insult to her, with the recollection of her broken vows and blighted life dogging every thought of possible happiness. Her residence in Hamilton had no everer trial than these chance encounters with him - her husband's

"Nectar and grapes of Eschol!" he exclaimed in a tone of calm despair, referring to the contents of waiter and "You may not believe it, Mrs. Fordham-in fact, I don't expect you to, for it is the nature of your sex to trust and trust again-but you are nourishing a serpent! a base trickster! yet one of whose want of originality I am ashamed! The interesting invalid dodge is the stalest and flimsiest known to the guild of artful dodgers. Now, if I were in his place-

"I am heartily glad you are not!" escaped Jessie, against her will to treat him with civility for Roy's sake. Her emphasis of sincerity was unmistakable and wrought with various effect upon her two auditors.

"So am I?" laughed Roy, his eyes alight with more than mirth. "The grapes you cannot touch, my grasping friend! They were a present to me, not an hour since from Miss Fanny Provost-a basketful, wreathed with exquisite flowers. She believes in the reaiity of my interesting invalidism. As for the nectar—give him a sip, Jessie, It is not fair that one man should monopolize all the good things Jessie poured out the draught, without jest or smile; then stook back with a gesture that bade him help himself if he would. She would not be a party to the sport, Orrin perceived.

"A spiteful show of disdain!" he thought contemptuously. "She is hardly worth a scene!' To show that he was not repelled or overawed, he advanced a step; took up the goblet with a profound obeisance; stared in her eyes, and swallowed a mouthful. Roy's shout of exultation and the uncontrollable grimace of the dupe, moved Jessie to a smile, but she did not speak.

the tragic gravity of one who had made up his mind to die like a man.
"So Socrates might have glared and of the slighter trees—cedar and arbores might have glared and id Roy. "The hemlock, growled!" said Roy. "The hemlock, jailer?" mimicking the other's tone. "Not this time, my dear fellow! Only sage tea, sweetened with honey and stiffened with alum—an incomparable gargle, according to such eminent au- gale, whose crown not only touches the thorities as Miss Eunice Kirke, her sister, and, last and least, Dr. Bradley."

to the last. "Sage tea! I go home a wiser, if not a bester man. I am glad to see there is nothing the matter with you, Roy, while I lament, as one of your blood and lineage, over your unblushing hypocrisy. Mrs. Fordham-

You used to call her 'Jessie,' " interrupted Roy. "I said 'Cousin Hester' yesterday to your bride. Shall I imitate your formal address?"

"No. But my little wife is august in nobody's eyes. Whereas, Mrs. Fordham—Cousin Jessie—I beg your par-don! Which shall it be?"

His back was to Roy; his meaning gaze upon herself was, to her preception, audacious insolence. Not daring to resent it in Roy's hearing, she yet obeyed the wifely impulse to seek his protection. "That is for your cousin to decide.

My name belongs to him!" She said it proudly, flashing her wide eyes from one to the other, and moving involuntarily nearer to Roy.
Wyllys caught up the last words.

"His relations should be yours, if the partnership be in good faith, and on equal terms."

That is for him to decide!" answered she, precisely as before.
"Thank you! I do not shirk the responsibility," said Roy, putting himself in the breach, as usual, when he saw her nonplussed or disturbed. "Another sip of nectar, Orrin, before you breast the storm?"

A wry face was the response, and the most fascinating man in Hamilton bow-ed himself out. As he drew the door to after him he glanced across the hall. The room Roy had showed him as his was opposite, and the door open. There was fire in that grate also; a lady's Jessie was more faithful to the one great passion of her life, and less philosophical than he had been ready to believe. Her scrupulous avoidance of him whenever this could be done without awakening suspicion; the half bitter retorts that fell now and then from the lips she would train to the utterance of conventional lies: the indignant sparkle of the eyes that answered the searching appeal of hiswhat were all these but the ill-concealed tokens of an attachment that had so inwrought itself with the fibers of hearts and being as to defy her strenuous attempts to pluck it forth, or keep it out of sight. It was a revelation to him and a flattering one—one that mented serious consideration.

The devil got hold of him in that hour, sifted him as wheat, bringing all that we's base in his nature uppermost. Heretofore he had shunned everything that could secure for him the reputa-tion of a "cicisbeo." When a woman was once married, she became an object of indifference to him. He accounted the pursuit of such, a hazardous and flavorless exhibition of Lotharoism which the refined age should frown down. He was not a gourmand or libertine, he had often proudly asserted to himself. Pleasures of that stamp he left to men of grosser tastes and coarser grain. He had meant to allow his cousin all the domestic peace which should honestly fall to his share, and to cultivate amicable relations with his cousin-in-law-Roy's wife-who had given conclusive evidence of intelligent appreciation of "C'este une autre chose!" he mut-tered between his teeth, and complacently knocked the snow off his boots upon the marble steps of his "mansion.'

His most heartless propositions al-ways sought cover in the facile foreign tongue.

A writer in the last generation defined an egotist to be "one who would burn down his neighbor's house to boil an egg for himself." Orrin Wyllys was an egotist.

CHAPTER XXII.

The snowstorm waxed furious as the day wore on. Jessie unclosed the blinds of the windows opposite the bed, that Roy might see it in all its might and beauty.

"It is a foot deep in the street," she "Witches' broth?" queried Orrin, with said. "The evergreens in the Campus vitae-are bowed nearly double. There is one," laughing with almost her olden glee, "the ambitious arbor-vitae near the east gate, which you said last Sunground, but is frozen there, while the Orrin took up his hat, undismayed it! It reminds me of the poor lady roots hold firm. I wish you could see who, in her rage to be ultra-fashionable, had her hair dressed very a la Chinoise-dragged up so high and twisted so tightly on the back of her head, that she could not get her heels to the floor. of that phrase, "I can't." But intemperance is only a form of disease, and there may come a time in the progress of any disease when it can't be stopped. That's what we mean when we talk of "galloping consumption." It's like a horse running away with us. We can't stop it. Strength will stop the wildest horse. Strength is the great necessity in the stopping of disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured thousands who had obstinate cough, bronchitis, weak lungs, spitting of blood, emaciation, and similar ailments which if neglected or unskilfully treated lead to consumption. It cures by strengthening the lungs and giving them power to throw off disease.

"I had been troubled with bronchitis and catarrh of the head for eight years; had severe cough and at times great difficulty in breathing," writes J. W. Howerton, Esq., of Bigfall, Hangock Co., Tenn. "A portion of the time my appetite was poor and part of the time I was unable to do anything. I had been treated by our best country physicians for several years but with little benefit. I had been reading about your medicine for several years but hadn't much faith in it. Last spring I concluded that I would try it and before I had taken one-third of a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' I began to mend. I continued taking it until I had taken seven bottles. Now I feel like a new man and can do as hard a day's work as any man. I advise all of my friends who are diseased to take Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

TONS OF MONEY

Shipped From San Francisco to the Philippines

Byrne With 70 Men Broke Up a Big Band of Robbers-150 of Them Killed.

San Francisco, July 25 .- The largest shipment by the government of coin to Manila, as far as bulk is concerned, since the outbreak of the war, was loaded on the transport Tartar, which sails for the Philippines today.

FIVE TONS OF COIN. It weighed about five tons and was brought under a strong guard from the mint to the transport dock in two heavy drays and a wagon. The total sum is $1,300,000, besides nickels and pennies, $100,000 being silver, weighing over three tons. The money is contained in 53 iron-bound chests. The Newport and Ohio sail Wednesday with part of the Nineteenth Infantry and a large number of recruits. The Indiana, which returned with invalided soldiers, will sail again with recruits

150 ROBBERS KILLED.

Washington, July 15. - The war department has made public a cablegram received on Sunday from Gen. Otis, giving fuller details of the fight with the robber band on the Island of Negros.

Its text fellows: "Campaign against mountain robber bands, Negros, more successful than reported. Byrne, with his 70 men, killed one-third of the 450 assembled, including their leader, a Spaniard or Spanish mestizo. Pursuit then made by Lieut. Evans, and detachment, Sixth Infantry, who killed three and captured one of the robbers; captured 100 dead stock, many spears and bolos, large quantity of provisions and destroyed a hundred huts. The two casualties in Byrne's fight are Ptes. David S. Anderson, killed; Albert B. Jerkes, slightly wounded, both of Company K."

LAWLESSNESS IN OLD KENTUCKY

Deadly Antagonism Between the Philpot and the Grifin-Morris Factions.

London, Ky., July 24. - The gravity of the situation at Manchester, Ky., and generally throughout Clay county, owing to faction fights, cannot be overestimated. Many non-combatants have left their homes, abandoning Manitoba. their crops, and as many more as can will leave soon. Even here in London the insecurity is felt to such an extent that some families are leaving. An outbreak is expected at the trial of the Philpots, charged with killing Aaron Morris and others. Both parties mustered armed forces for marching into Manchester. The Philpots have 52 armed horsemen and no one knows How many footmen. The Morris and Griffin faction also have a large force. The Philpots say the latter includes the White-Howard faction. On the other hand the Morris faction say that the Bakers have made common cause with the Philpots. Both sides are fully White-Howard faction, has openly espoused the cause of the Griffins.

THE TRIAL IS ON. The trial of the Philpots for killing the Griffins on Little Goose Creek last Monday is set for today at Manchester. The factions are on hand, the Philpots outnumbering the Griffins and Chadwells by one-third, and all are armed. Robert Philpot, the only wounded man on the Philpot side. save Ed Fisher, son-in-law of Granville. Philpot and his friends insist on remaining armed during their trial, and say they will not be shot down while prisoners, as was Tom Baker. The trial is being held 26 miles from railway, telegraph or telephone communication.

FIVE NEGROES PUT TO DEATH. Bainbridge, Ga., July 25. - Decatur and Early counties are still greatly excited over the recent lynching of negroes. One negro has been lynched and his body mutilated; two have been found dead, and their scalps are reported to be on exhibition at Saffold, while the bodies of two others were found lying near a railroad track in the disturbed district. The cause of their death is in doubt. Crowds are still hunting for five other negroes who were implicated by Louis Sammons, one of the men lynched, in the assault on the Ogeltree family.
