A COURSE IN ADVERTISING

Organization Considers Offering Instruction to Technical School Staff.

The London Advertising Club is planning for a busy, fruitful season, and when the executive committee and officers met Wednesday evening in the club rooms of The Huron & Erie Mortage Corporation wears suggestions were age Corporation many suggestions were brought up for the welfare of the club and the benefit of the community. A letter written by one prominent usinessman, a member of the executive businessman, a member of the executive of the club, regretting that absence from the city prevented his being present, stated that, in his opinion, one of the best things the club could do was to inculcate the proper spirit of pride in London citizens, so that they would boost for the city, not only at home, but when traveling. The club has been strongly imbued with this spirit from its inception, and at the annual convention of advertising clubs at San Francisco when traveling. The club has been strongly imbued with this spirit from its inception, and at the annual convention of advertising clubs at San Francisco last July kept London more prominently to the fore than any other Canadian city.

A Course in Advertising. The suggestion adopted by the meeting was that the club should offer to conduct an advertising course at the Technical School this fall and winter, giving evening lessons, at which students of advertising, clerks, store proprietors and others could attend. A letter was written to the principal embodying this offer of the club's services

Restrict Membership.

With a view to preventing the club from becoming unwieldy, it was decided to admit only fifteen more members, after which a waiting list will be animated, and no new member will be admitted until a vacancy occurs. Quotes Browning's Words in Touching On Character.

MANY FLORAL TOKENS

Headquarters Staff Is Present When Full Honors Paid Officer's Memory.

"I have mentioned some of the features of his character, but to esteem him rightly, one must think of the whole man, the blend of strength and tenderness, of fear of the whole man, the blend of strength and tenderness, of fearless independence and understanding sympathy, of the spirit of liberty and of reverence which madehim a man whose loss will be deeply felt. The world at this time of unrest and change stands greatly in need of such men, who remain true to the great principles of the past, yet fearlessly pushed forward into the new age, guided by a living faith in God's living spirit. He would be the last to claim 'that he had already attained and was already perfect,' but his defects were the shadows of his virtues. As we think of the man who has gone from us, the words of Browning suggest themselves to us:

'He was one who never turned his back, but marched breast for-ward, Never doubted clouds would break, Never deemed that though right were worsted, wrong would triumph;
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better,
Sleep to wake." PROGRESSING FAVORABLY. — George Ashwell, 606 Princess avenue, has received word from his son, Lieut.

In the foregoing words, Rev. W. J. Knox, minister of the First Presbyter-ian Church, brought to a close a beautiful and touching tribute paid today to the late Capt. (Rev.) William Ernest Hindson at the impressive military funeral service held in Talbot Street Baptist Church at 2:30 o'clock.

CONSIDERABLE RECOVERY

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I was pleased to notice that The Advertiser promptly repudiated as colorless and insipid that verbal monstrosity, the name adopted by our city council for the new military hospital soon to be under way. As The Advertiser and the council have invited suggestions from the public for a more fitting cognomen, I am going to suggest a name that is at once euphonious and characteristically Canadian. There has been an agitation recently for a change in our Canadian flag that I think would be admirable, and that appeals to many. They would replace the almost meaningless symbols in the present design with a simple maple leaf —the Canadian national emblem. I am going to suggest a name that will help to crystallize the idea. It is the Maple Leaf Military Hospital.

The name will suggest (1) the sweet fragrance of our fields and forests; (2) it will suggest our splendid political position, free as the mountain air, and yet under the sheltering aegis of the world's freedom. Some 50,000 of our bravest and best have made the supreme sacrifice, while hundreds of thousands have been made the supreme sacrifice, while hundreds of thousands have been maimed and crippled and blinded as tribute to Canadian independence and sterling worth, and the strength and solidarity of the empire.

The poetess has well said, "Leaves have their time to fall," and the maple leaves in crimson and gold now beginning to fall suggest to us full blown maturity and eventual decay. But oh! think of the myriads of human leaves prematurely struck down by the cutting blast of bloody and relentless battle! Well may we lament with the "Wizard of the North," the immortal Scott:

"Yes, prattlers, yes; the daisy's flower Again shall paint your summer bower. Again the hawthorn shall supply The garlands you delight to tie. To mute and to material things New life revolving summer brings: The genial call dead nature hears, And in her glory reappears.

But o'll view for the sure tribute to Canadian independence and tribute to Canadian world's greatest empire: "Daughter I am in my mother's house, But mistress in my own."

And in her glory reappears. But oh! my country's winter state, What second spring shall 'ciprocate? What powerful call shall bid arise The buried warlike and the wise?

Gen. Shannon Attends.

Brigadier-General Shannon personally attended the funeral accompanied by the grant of the door without his coat or shoes on. From his appearance Tomlin thought that he had just gotten out of bed. Gootson admitted that he was at 11 Maitland on Wednesday evening, but said that he had only gone there on his way home to Philip street, after he had spent the evening at a neighbor's house. When questioned about the two safes and other office furniture that was seen in the Philip street house, Gootson said that as there was a chattel mortgage on it he could not remove it. The place, which was normally a dwelling, had been used for business purposes, but not for some months.

Clash of Counsel.

Clash of Counsel. During the evidence there occurred several exchanges of repartee between Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop and quarters staff, who rode with him after the vehicles containing the chief mourners.

At the church the casket was placed at the altar, just beneath the flag-draped pulpit. A place in the central pews was reserved for the military representatives, of whom there were a large number in addition to those who attended officially.

Six Officers Are Bearers.
Six brother officers performed the duties of pallbeares, Capts. G. T. Bartlett, J. C. Carling and G. A. Gerald of the C. G. R., and Capts. M. J. Alken, J. K. Pope and H. D. Dunnett of the W. O. R.

Rev. H. H. Bingham, pastor of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, and Rev. W. J. Knox conducted the service, the first making the announcements, Mr. Norton offering the prayers, and Mr. Knox delivering the address.

Referring to the passing of Capt. Hindson, to pay the last respects to whom such a large assemblage had gathered in the church, Mr. Knox decirated he esteemed it a high privilege to be allowed to pay a tribute to the exceptional worth of one whom he had not known long, but deeply, to one in whom "the Christian graces which were the fruits of his natural character were never more apparent than in the days of long and painful illness."

A Drink After a Fast.

The junk that had been found in the yard at Philip street belonged to another dealer to whom Gootson said he rented the storage space at the rear of the house. That the house was not included he was quite emphatic.

Questioned as to where he got the whiskey, Gootson said that he had taken it from his Maitland street house on Monday last. That day was a Jewish holiday, and all good Jews fast all day, and he said that he could not eat after a fast unless he had a drink of something to steady his stomach after its period of rest.
