* WAR SUMMARY *

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

AY by day, after the long winter of preparation behind their lines, and of stonewalling on their front, the allies are pressing forward somewhere or other, and they are making changes in the war map that Imperial German Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg has on his table. When they have modified it to their satisfaction they will present it to the chancellor as a basis for concluding peace, and they will not take any evasions or equivocations from him, or no for an answer. Before Verdun the French are now firing 100 shells to every one fired by the Germans. On the Picardy battlefield the British fired five million shells in August, with their factories working at only one-third of their output, and, as so far in October, foggy weather has precluded that sustained intensity of fire, an immense accumulation of projectiles is being made, so that when they reopen the drum fire in preparation for an advance, the volume of their bombardment will exceed all past experiences.

The latest advance of the British forces in Picardy was on court to a point north of Les Boeufs, taking 150 prisoners. This action drew considerable hostile shelling on those two points. The British army now occupies a valley in front of a small ridge, which the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defending before Bapaume, and progress has to be the Germans are defended b

London, Oct. 18.—With the heights overlooking Bapaume firmly in their grip, the British are making a direct push for the town. The low ridge which blocked the way to the Bapaun several points, and altho severe fighting will come before the town is won. many obstacles have been cleared.

Advancing northwest of Gucude court and between Guedecourt and Les Boeufes, Haig's troops are now ready to begin the attack on Le Transloy, the sole fortification that separates the British from the Bethune road. This village is very heavily fortified, but the possession of the low heights to the west lightens the task

The greatest allied effort is being made where the line swings southward near the Peronne-Bapaume road. The immediate objective of this drive is Sailly. Here the French attacked six times, but were unable to advance Berlin reports. There is no indication of such heavy fighting in the Paris statement.

Battle Still Rages. Apparently a battle of a larger scale une road. This, the German statement says, was hurled back with heavy loss for the attackers.

But in this connection it must be recalled that Germany has been inclined to exaggerate the scale of the fighting in the west, that the holding of her ground might seem a more notable achievement. But whether fighting on a large scale is going on now the content of the content of the order. In the upper valley of the Ofuzul, west of the frontier, an enemy attack was repulsed and our cavalry has driven back in the Magyaros defile, to the west of Mituzu, six attacks by enemy infariry on the customs station at Crasna.

"In the valley of the Buzcul we repulsed with sanguinary losses an attack of the country who was a large scale is going on now the customs." ing on a large scale is going on now or not, it is certain to be resumed be-fore long. For the allies hold the advantage in position and shell power.

Clay pushed the gun aside and continued on his way. The bold bandit, when he recovered from his surprise, said "Good-night!" and took to his heels. The police have been furnished with a description.

checked in their forward sweep thru the upper Marcs Valley and in the Georgeny Mountains on the northern part of the front, and they have cleared the three important valleys of the Cyergyo, Mezek and Csik in eastern Transylvania of all Roumanian forces. The gateways into Roumania are still in Roumanian hands. Everywhere the Teutons are meeting the most desperate resistance in their attempts to smash thru into the enemy's territory. This is the encouraging feature to the allies. The longer Falken-hayn's troops are prevented from pouring in thru the Alpine and Car-pathian passes and invading northern and western Roumania the more promthan that reported in the allied statements is going on along the Somme the Roumanians retired from the front. It is apparent that such moves alone will check Falkenhayn's carefully planned and engineered drive. He has shown in many ways that no amount of pressure on the Teuton lines on other battlefields, will deter his cuting his offensive at all costs. The danger to which Roumania is exposed has been realized by the allies in time to save Germany's newest foe from the fate of Belgium and Serbia, pro-vided Roumania will help to work out her own salvation, according to the common plans. The effect of the thinning out of the Russo-Roumanian lines in the Dobrudja already is being felt the not to an important extent. Windsor, Oct. 13.—Angered by Maior T. B. Balfour's success as recruiting officer for the Canadian Dragoons at Amherstburg, German agents from Detroit, it is believed, made an attempt on his life last night by firing at him as he sat at dinner in the home of Levi Wright, farmer, of Malden road. The bullet embedded itself in the wall near where he sat. Balfour and Wright rushed to the door just in time to see a motor leaving the front gate. The machine carried no lights. This is the second attempt at the assassination of Major Balfour, the other being while he sat in his office at Amherstburg barracks, less than two months ago. He believes some threats to "get him" are being attempted.

Special Cable to The Toronto World. London, Oct 13.-After making progress north of Gueudecourt, and Les Boefs on a mile and a half front the British spent the day in consolidating their positions and in shelling the Ger mans at Le Transloy and Bapaume, an important road centre. This latest stroke has given them control of the low ridge behind which the Germans had massed men and guns in order to resist the British advance. Fierce fighting was required to ous the Germans from this position of vantage. Meanwhile a heavy engagement is going forward at other sections of the front. Heavy pressure is being everywhere maintained by the allies

The Greek cabinet sat with the chief of the general staff until midnight, discussing the note. The council was resumed in the morning when all the demands of Admiral Du Fournet were accepted.

the form which Greece's proposals to the entente with a view of abandoning neutrality should take and declared his conviction that Greece's future depended upon her joining the entente. He expressed a readiness to do so, not demanding more than a guarantee of the integrity of Greece and such material assistance in equipping the army as would be essential to render Greece's participation in the war of real value to the allies.

Must Gusrantee integrity.

Discussing a telegram from M. Romanones, the Greek minister to France, on Sept. 30, reporting a conversation with Premier Briand, the sovereign pointed out that the three compensations which the French premier offered informally did not include a guarantee of integrity, and he expressed the opinion that Greece's entry into the hostilities was impossible without an official pledge to this effect from the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia.

Awaits Allies' Reply.

The monarch stated further that he was not disposed at this time to insist even upon discussing Greece's territorial aspirations, to which Premier Briand referred, but he felt that a war cabinet when formed should have a character to inspire the confidence of a great majority of the country, without which any full mobilization would be impossible. The king asserted that in view of the probability that the entente governments would reply shortly to Greece's first tentative proposals, he did not consider it necessary for the new government to take any steps before the receipt of a reply.
